RED CROSS TO REFUSE $25,000,000 IF VOTED, PAYNE TELLS SENATE

Chairman Is Accused of Making Agency Political Ally of Hoover.

CARAWAY SUGGESTS THOSE AT HEAD QUIT

Robinson Gives Committee Sketch of Executive's War Humanitarianism.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

As had been generally predicted in the Senate corridors for several weeks, the American Red Cross was precipitated yesterday into the midst of the bitter fight between President Hoover and the Senate over the proposed appropriation to relieve distress.

Chairman John Barton Payne caused the blow-off when he told the House subcommittee on appropriations, which is conducting hearings on the Robinson-Black amendment to give the Red Cross $25,000,000 for relief, that the central committee of his organization had met and decided that it could handle the situation in the drought stricken areas without congressional assistance, but that it would not accept the $25,000,000 if tendered, and would not undertake the job of administering to the unemployed.

The committee meeting was held Tuesday, he said.

As soon as word of what he had said got to the Senate, the restraint with which senators have referred to him heretofore, and the undying affection and esteem with which they have often tempered their remarks, were cast aside and he was charged with making the Red Cross a political ally of the President.

Resignation Demanded.

There was even a demand for his resignation.

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, pointed out that Mr. Hoover is president of the Red Cross, and asserted that his attitude in this matter "is incomprehensible to his most intimate friends."

"It has been said by the chairman of the Red Cross," he went on, "that that great organization's existence is at stake, that its possibility of surviving is tied up with the defeat of the Federal appropriation to be expended through Red Cross agencies for the relief of those in distress.

"The answer to the Red Cross in refusing to respond to the requirements of the situation, in declaring its purpose to refuse to distribute any fund appropriated by Congress, has done more to discredit that great organization than anything that has happened, or that can happen."

Senator Robinson submitted that if the Red Cross will not distribute the money, Congress will set up its own agencies.

"The Red Cross has ceased to be an independent organization of mercy and has become a political asset of the President of the United States," Senator Caraway declared.

Wants Hoover to Fight "in Open."

He demanded the President "come from behind the Red Cross and fight in the open."

"It would be so much more courageous if the President," he said, "would stand out starkly in his own person as denying relief to the hungry and suffering for political reasons, instead of dragging in the Red Cross."

Asserting that the action of the central committee did not "represent the sentiment of the millions who have contributed to the Red Cross," Senator Caraway said "the organization ought to rid itself of these men."

Of the central committee of eighteen there were eleven members at Tuesday's meeting, Judge Payne told newspapermen, of whom five are appointed by the President. They were, besides Judge Payne, Surgeon General Riggs, of the Navy; Surgeon General Ireland, of the Army; Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills and Solicitor General Thacher. The other members in attendance were Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. Henry P. Davidson, Mrs. August Belmont, Elliot Wadsworth, of Boston; George E. Scott, of Chicago, and John D. Ryan.

Minutes Reveal Action.

A copy of the minutes of the meeting, as presented by Judge Payne, said that after the chairman had related the organization's financial situation, the meeting had "unanimously" voted "that it is the sense of the central committee that the Red Cross is in a position adequately to complete the task it has undertaken in the drought-stricken areas, and it hereby assumes the responsibility of completing said task without public appropriations;" and also voted "unanimously," "that it is the sense of the central committee that the Red Cross can not accept the administration of the funds for general relief purposes, as provided for under the terms of the bill which has passed the Senate and is now pending in the House of Representatives."

This refers to the $25,000,000 for distress throughout the country, the original idea of the Senate having been to appropriate only $15,000,000

Chest Contributions Nearing $1,000,000

Results of First Day's Solicitations Reported at Luncheon Yesterday Indicate Success; Government Unit Takes Leadership in Campaign.

The Community Chest campaign approached the $1,000,000 mark as the totals of the first day's work were reported at an organization luncheon yesterday. A total of 5,209 pledges were obtained, amounting to $221,549.82, which brought the amount subscribed so far to $959,000.

This was a substantial increase over the showing made by Chest workers last year. Reports for the first day's work in 1930 totaled $822,000.

Leadership in the campaign was taken by the governmental unit. Workers in this division reported that they had raised $100,342.45. John C. Koons, representative of the unit predicted that his group would fully subscribe its $350,000 quota.

The Metropolitan unit was second in the amount of money raised yesterday with $48,000, while the special gifts committee, which had failed to meet its $1,000,000 quota, gained $45,325.

Funs contributed to the Community Chest represent not charity but "share-ity," Elwood Street, director, declared in a talk over radio Station WMAL last night.

"It must be clear to each one of us, especially in such times as this, that many people are in need through no fault of their own. The thousands of people who come pressing upon the Community Chest organizations for aid because of unemployment are victims of economic causes beyond their control, which our city, our Nation and our world have not yet learned to control," he asserted.

"Modern society is so organized that economic depression throws millions out of work who have no recourse, when their resources are exhausted, but to apply to our charities for aid. In helping them, we, who still have jobs, are not merely giving our surplus, but sharing what we have with those who have not. such giving is not charity, but sharity.

"So also the people throughout our country, who are being aided by the

INDIANA COAL MINE EXPLOSION KILLS 20

Two Injured Are Taken From Shaft by Rescuers, Who Risk Life in Gas.

AUTOS BLOCK HIGHWAYS

Linton, Ind., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—More than a score of coal miners were killed when 600 pounds of black powder exploded in the Little Betty mine near here late today.

About 25 men were in the north main sector of the mine when the blast occurred. Two of the men, critically injured, were brought to the Linton Hospital. One of them is expected to die.

Dr. C. C. Hamilton, who was dispatched to the scene from the Linton Hospital, reported tonight that rescue workers had reached all of the blast victims and that all were dead.

The explosion was believed to have been the result of a spark igniting the blasting powder sent down for the shot-firers as the day shift was coming off duty.

The identified dead were:
JESS TEMPLETON, Linton.
LOTUS MITCHELL, Pleasantville.
OTTO HALE, Sullivan.
JOE WALLACE, Pleasantville.
BEN SNYDER, Linton.
The injured are:
Earl Bedwell, probably will die.
Don Burris.

Burris, who was conscious when taken from the mine, told the story of the explosion.

He said that he was at his usual work as a trip rider on a conveyor when the explosion occurred. Although he was a mile back from the shaft opening, Burris said the blast upset the conveyor and broke the trolley. He was knocked to the floor of the mine.

Calling to several men near him, he told them to grasp the conveyor trolley and use it as a guide to the entrance. Burris said he did this himself and set off in the pitch darkness. Later he was overcome by

VANDERBILT NAMED IN MUSSOLINI TALE

Like Butler, Is Said to Have Repeated Hit-and-Run Charge Against Duce.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The name of Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., scion of one of America's outstanding families, was brought into the Butler-Mussolini imbroglio yesterday, when it developed that he, too, had recited the story about the Italian dictator being a hit-and-run driver.

In replying to the question of whether he did or did not make the statement that Benito Mussolini ran down a child and then continued on, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler has answered in the affirmative.

At the same time he refuses to reveal the identity of the man who told him the story, holding that to name him would be unethical.

The name of Mr. Vanderbilt was brought into the controversy when members of the Rotary Club in Reno, Nev., and the journalism students of the University of Nevada recalled he had made a speech before them in which he said Mussolini's car had run over a child.

Gen. Butler told the story in a speech which he made in Philadelphia on January 19. A friend of his, he said, had a ride with Mussolini in an armored car, and in the course of the ride they ran over a child. The friend, so the story goes, screamed, whereupon, Gen. Butler narrated, Mussolini declared that it was only one life and that the affairs of state could not be stopped by it.

When Mussolini heard of Gen. Butler's speech, he communicated with Nobile Giacomo de Martino, the Italian Ambassador here, who lodged a protest with the State Department against such "untrue" and "slanderous" allegations.

There followed a demand upon Gen. Butler for an explanation. His reply

LABOR CABINET WINS TWICE TO STAY IN OFFICE

MacDonald Government Beats Conservatives on Trades Bill.

RESIGNATION WOULD HAVE BEEN OFFERED

Liberals Aid Ministry Vote; Baldwin Will Continue Attacks Later.

London, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government fought off two conservative attacks late tonight with the aid of the Liberal party and thus remains in office, whereas defeat probably would have meant its immediate resignation.

Both victories were on motions offered by Stanley Baldwin, leader of the Conservatives and former premier, against the hotly contested trades dispute bill.

The first was to reject the bill on second reading and this, with most of the Liberals abstaining, brought a vote of 277 against 250, or a margin of 27 for the Labor government.

Crisis Proves Dangerous.

Sir John Simon and a few other Liberals, who are opposing the measure in all its stages, voted with the Conservatives, but with the majority of the balance-of-power party abstaining, the administration had sufficient strength to weather one of the most dangerous crises in its more than 19 months of life.

No sooner had this result been announced than Baldwin again jumped up, offering a motion that the bill should be considered in committee of the whole instead of a small standing committee, as proposed by the government.

This time the Liberals lined up with the government instead of abstaining and the result was 306 against 244, or a margin of 62 for the prime minister's forces.

Excitement Marks Vote.

Scenes of great excitement marked the voting, for the house had been in session all day and knew that a fateful division was approaching as the hour neared midnight. The government would almost certainly have resigned had it been beaten.

While the bill thus carried on second reading, it still has to go through committee stage and third reading and thus the administration's troubles are far from ended.

Seven Liberals joined Sir John Simon in voting with the Conservatives on the first division, which carried the bill on second reading. Another voted with the Laborites.

Although split tonight, the Liberals are unanimous in their intention to propose a number of amendments in the ensuing committee stage. These are of so far-reaching a character that they would render the bill a shadow of its former self if carried.

Called Prejudice, Panic Law.

The law causing all the rumpus has for its purpose the amendment of the Conservative trades dispute and trade unions act of 1927. The latter was rushed through Parliament by the Baldwin Conservative government after the great general strike of 1926, and the Laborites have fought it ever since by declaring it a law of class prejudices and panic.

The main controversial issues of the current bill involve the definition of an illegal strike or lockout, the right to peaceful picketing and the question of political levies on trade unionists. Opponents of the present measure fear it will make possible and legalize an-

MELLON FEARS HAVOC IF BONUS CASH IS LOOSED

Warns That Payment Now Would Result in Greater Economic Ills.

PREDICTS BIG DEFICIT IN QUIZ BY SENATORS

Secretary's Appearance at Hearing Viewed as Showing Hoover's Stand.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Mellon told the Senate finance committee yesterday proposals for cashing the bonus certificates of World War veterans are "without economic merit" and that instead of improving conditions would "deepen" the world depression.

Mr. Mellon was questoined closely as he predicted a Treasury deficit of $375,000,000 and warned the cash conversion plan would not only have "serious consequences" on public credit, but also would "greatly disturb world equilibrium."

The veteran Secretary had barely concluded his statement of the administration's opposition when Senator Harrison, Mississippi, a Democratic member of the committee, told the Senate "a majority of the committee is going to favor some relief."

Mr. Harrison announced he favored paying the veterans the present cash value of their certificates.

Senators Scent Possible Veto.

Mr. Mellon's personal appearance was considered by committee members as added evidence of the administration's strong attitude toward the proposed legislation. It increased belief among some senators that President Hoover would veto a bill to pay the veterans the face value of their certificates.

Mr. Mellon's prepared statement, which was read to the committee by Undersecretary Mills, confined its attack to the proposal for paying the face value of the certificates, which would cost about $3,400,000,000.

Later, however, Mr. Mills said the same objections would apply in lesser degree to the proposal to pay the present value of the certificates, the cost of which has been estimated at from $1,700,000,000 to $2,100,000,000.

"It's only a matter of degree," Mr. Mills said. "One would cost $3,400,000,000 and the other $2,100,000,000."

Secretary Questioned.

Members of the committee did not wait for the reading of Mr. Mellon's statement before beginning to question him. The Treasury Secretary and his assistant, sitting on either side of Senator Watson (Republican), Indiana, acting chairman, alternated in answering the questions.

Senator Couzens (Republican) Michigan, a long-time foe of Mr. Mellon, took a leading part in the questioning.

Replying to questions by Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, Mr. Mills estimated the public debt has been retired in the last ten years to the extent of $3,459,000,000 more than required by law.

Mr. Harrison interjected that the debt had been retired beyond requirements of law "by overtaxing the people."

Couzens Takes Hand.

"It is a strange coincidence," Mr. Couzens remarked, "that the amount by which we have retired the public debt in excess of what was required is just equal to what we now want to give our soldiers."

"Yes," Mr. Mellon replied, "but the country was in a better condition to

Calvin Coolidge Says:

One trouble with the argument proposing to revive business by distributing a cash bonus among the veterans of the World War is that it proves too much. If only that were necessary to make good times probably we now should have our greatest peace-time prosperity for the amount of money being paid out by all our governments is the greatest on record. If prosperity is the goal a distribution of public money would evidently be more effective if given to everybody.

Another difficulty is the necessity of borrowing this fund. At a time when capital has been exhausted and needs to be recreated by earnings the dissipation of a large sum of borrowed money would only delay prosperity. We can not lift ourselves by our financial boot straps. Any one familiar with governmental finance knows that borrowing increases the burden on production and is a wasteful process. The future is already overmortgaged. We need to conserve, retrench and reduce expenses to income.

What the veterans gave can not be measured in money. It was priceless. Both paying a cash bonus and borrowing money to revive business are part of the same delusion that the people can rely on the Government alone to furnish salvation.

TRAPPED IN SWAMP, ROBBER SLAYS SELF; COMPANION GIVES UP

Third of Laurel Holdup Trio Escapes in Car From Scene.

PRISONER IS THOUGHT PAL OF WHITTEMORES

Watches Worth $1,500 Are Recovered Under Ice; Women Arrested.

Washington police were notified late last night that Baltimore authorities had captured Paul Taylor, a third suspect in the holdup yesterday of a Laurel jewelry store following which one of the bandits killed himself to avoid capture. Taylor was seized after police traced a telephone call he made to his wife in Washington, asking that money and clothes be sent to him. The truck which the holdup trio used was found in front of the place where Taylor made the call, police reported.

Trapped in a frozen swamp near Laurel, Md., yesterday, one of the three bandits who held up a jewelry store in that town shot himself rather than face the guns of a pursuing posse. Another of the holdup men was captured alive, and is believed to be the last member of the notorious Whittemore gang, of Baltimore.

The dead man is L. C. Taylor, 32, of Topeka, Kans., shot through the head and through the stomach. The other is Thomas A. Phillips, 30, of Indianapolis. A third man is thought to have escaped in the stolen truck which was used by the bandits. Police have his name and address and his capture is expected momentarily.

The gang made off with watches valued at $1,500 after they had held up Sol Lazerovitz, proprietor of the jewelry store. They had been seen during the hold-up, however, and Maryland State policemen were on their trail within five minutes. One of the bandits drove off in the truck, but the other two took to the swamps along the Patuxent River.

Less than 10 minutes after the men left the store, State Policeman Guy E. Bopst met Taylor on the banks of the river. Although he had the gun used in the holdup in his hand, Taylor did not threaten the policemen. He turned the gun on himself, and when the first shot through the body did not kill him, the roughly dressed man shot himself again in the right temple.

Women Are Arrested.

Phillips was captured by Lieut. Tom Garrison and L. E. Dutron, of the county police force, as he returned to a tourist camp where two women awaited the men. Phillips was taken to Prince George County jail at Marlboro, while the women are being held in the jail at Ellicott City for Prince Georges authorities.

Lazerovitz said that Phillips and the other man came into his store about 10:30 o'clock and asked to look at watches. A few minutes later Taylor, who had driven the men the store in a bakery truck, also came into the place with a .38-caliber revolver and a small black handbag. Lazerovitz was forced into the back of the store and tied with rope which one of the men took from his pocket.

The jewelry store is half of a building, the other half of which is occupied by a radio shop conducted by W. L. Armstrong. Through a window in the partition, Armstrong saw the holdup, and called the State police substation about two miles east of Laurel. Bopst and Policeman Arthur Plummer rushed to the town, giving the pair only a short start.

Police Find Watches.

After Taylor shot himself a search disclosed the bag of watches apparently hidden under the ice about 100 yards upstream. There were signs here that the other man had escaped across the river on the ice and was heading toward Baltimore.

Residents of the town identified Taylor as a former resident, who had left about two years ago. He was known to be stopping at Moesberg's

BRADY PROSECUTION SUDDENLY AT REST

DEFENSE BEGINS TODAY

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 28.—Checkmated in its attempt to introduce testimony which it considered highly important, the prosecution in the trial of Leroy Brady, accused of being the man behind the bomb which cost the lives of three at Seat Pleasant New Year's Day a year ago, suddenly rested its case today.

The unexpected move found the attorneys representing Brady unprepared and court was adjourned shortly after 3 o'clock until tomorrow morning, when the defense will begin presentation of testimony.

The technical legal battle had raged throughout the day as the trial dragged and dragged—despite Judge Robert Moss' plaint: "Gentlemen, I don't like to complain, but this case is getting along very slowly."

The jury remained in the court room today less than two hours as the prosecution and defense wrangled technical points before Judge Moss. In nearly every instance objections by the defense were upheld by the presiding jurist.

He refused to allow the State to introduce testimony of Dr. Robert Wood, of Johns Hopkins University, an expert on explosives, on how he reconstructed the missile which killed Naomi Hall Brady, her sister Dorothy, her brother Samuel, and maimed three others.

Neither would he permit Ivan Gentry, of the garage where the Brady brothers worked, nor Joseph Itzel, 20-

U. S. EMPLOYE HELD IN LIMERICK SLAYING

Fred Baumann, of Prnting and Engraving Bureau, Grilled by Police.

INFORMATION IS SOUGHT

Fred Bauman, an employe of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, was arrested last night by homicide detectives and is being held in the Third Precinct for investigation in connection with the murder of Beulah Limerick on December 31.

Detective Sergt. John F. Flaherty, head of the homicide squad, arrested Baumann at his home on Canal street in Georgetown after they uncovered evidence of his intimacy with members of the Limerick family.

Detectives said that Bauman will "have a lot of explaining to do." Bauman admitted to detectives that he knew the slain girl, but was more intimate with other members of the family.

On the day of the murder Baumann was at the Limerick home, after the girl had been pronounced dead by J. Lyman Greene, a Casualty Hospital interne, police said. Throughout the investigation, the authorities said, Baumann has remained close to the Limerick family.

So far as police can learn, Baumann was never an escort to the girl; but had been friendly with one of her sisters. Since the imprisonment of Vernon Limerick, William E. Paddy and Richard Reed in connection with the killing, Detective Sergt. Flaherty said, Baumaan has been carrying food to the prisoners, both at the precincts where they were held and also at the District Jail.

Det. Srgt. Flaherty and Carlton Talley grilled Baumann for two hours

EDWINA BOOTH.

Screen Actress Sued for $50,000 by Wife of Film Player.

Los Angeles, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Edwina Booth, a screen actress, today shouted denials of an illicit love affair with Duncan Renaldo, film actor.

She denied charges that the actor had spent nights at her Hollywood home, or that she had made love to him on a liner returning from Africa.

The questions were asked by Paul Shapiro, attorney for Renaldo's wife, Mrs. Susette Renaldo, who has sued the actress for $50,000 damages, charging alienation of her husband's affections. Mrs. Renaldo says that the love "theft" took place while the actress and Renaldo were in Africa filming the picture "Trader Horn."

Miss Booth, who said her real name was Josephine Woodruff, testi-

Alfred E. Smith Expresses Sorrow for Herbert Hoover

Note of Sympathy Comes After Discussion of Wickersham Report in Which Former Governor Says "President Holds the Bag."

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The man who failed to get to the White House in 1928 feels sorry for its present occupant.

Alfred E. Smith told the advertising Club of New York today, "I feel sorry for the President. He sits on top of Capitol Hill holding the bag."

This expression of sympathy came after a discussion of the Wickersham report and the eighteenth amendment in which the former governor declared he felt certain the eighteenth amendment would be defeated if it should come up for ratification at present.

"During the war," he said, "America disregarded its Constitution, setting up an unequal dictatorship in its place. We had regulations as to consumption of gasoline, of sugar and of meat, and we did everything we were told to do in line with patriotism.

"After the war a lot of well-thinking people thought that we could try anything which seemed good, and the eighteenth amendment was enacted. We later came to the conclusion that this was not the way to do it. Should anybody try to ratify such an amendment now, it would fail, I am sure."

Of the Wickersham Commission's report, he said it "did one good thing. It was at least unanimous in finding that the thing is not right."

Mr. Smith defended the doctrine of States' rights, asserting that no one wants to make Kansas wet when Kansans "want to be dry, even if it's only on the surface, but they have no right to tell us to be dry."

tourist home, on the Baltimore boulevard, about 2 miles east of Laurel.

County policemen had arrived by this time, and Lieut. Garrison hid himself near the place. He saw Phillips go into the house, where he was arrested. A quantity of jewelry was found in the rooms, although all the proceeds of the Laurel robbery were recovered when the black bag was found. Phillips is said to have been wearing a wrist watch from Lazerovitz when arrested.

Phillips was with two young women when he was arrested. They were taken into custody and gave their names as Frances Taylor, wife of the dead man, and Elsie A. Olsen, of Minnesota. As they were arrested in Howard County they were taken to the county jail at Ellicott City. No charge was placed against them pending a further investigatoin of the case.

Whittemore Baltimore Gang.

County policemen said that they had been told by Baltimore authorities that Phillips was a former member of the gang led by Richard Whittemore, who was executed in Baltimore in 1927. If this Phillips is the one connected with the Whittemore gang, he participated in the holdup in 1925 of Gottlieb's saloon in Baltimore, the crime for which Whittemore and several others went to the penitentiary. Whittemore was executed for the murder of a jail guard, which occurred during a jail break.

Although warned by Baltimore police of the slippery quality of members of the Whittemore outfit, Prince Georges County authorities are relying on their new $45,000 jail to hold him. No special guard is being placed over him, although he is in solitary confinement. He has not been charged, but will have a preliminary hearing this morning.

According to the story told by the women, they had been in the tourist home for several weeks before the execution of the robbery. They were traveling in a car said to belong to Taylor.

The truck used in the robbery, which belonged to a Washington bakery, was reported stolen from Connecticut avenue near Legation street northwest. Police believe that the third man, who drove away in the truck, was to pick up his companions along the boulevard after they had confused the pursuit in the swamp. The quick arrival of police did not give the bandits the start they had counted on, so that Taylor was trapped on the bank of the river. The truck has not been found.

"Worst Gangster in State."

Garrison said last night that Baltimore police characterized Phillips as "the worst gangster in the State of Maryland" and said that he was the brains of the old Whittemore gang. Taylor's fingerpirnts are being taken for comparison with Baltimore records, as police do not believe that he was using his real name.

The spot where the cornered bandit shot himself is on the Patuxent River only a few hundred yards above the Baltimore boulevard, and within sight of the road. It is less than a quarter of a mile from the store where the robbery took place. His body was taken to Kaiser's undertaking establishment in Laurel.

At the time of his arrest, Phillips, who was said to have been armed, told police that he was the last surviving member of the "Reed gang" which worked "north of Baltimore." He is said to have twice escaped from the Baltimore City Jail.

He told Garrison that he would not have returned to the tourist home if he had known that police were so close on his trail. He thought that he would have time to take the women and the other jewelry with him.

Rapid Spread of Flu Over Nation Reported

(Associated Press.)

A rapid spread of influenza was reported by the public health service yesterday, with a total of 7,275 cases now as compared with 3,867 a week ago.

The public health service estimates the disease is about five times as prevalent as shown in the report, since several States do not require influenza reports and others have only the statistics furnished by physicians.

Cotton Men Fight Farm Board Fund

Shippers Demand Inquiry and Repeal of Law Creating Agency.

The drive in the Senate to defeat the additional appropriation of $100,000,000 sought by the Federal Farm Board was started yesterday when a delegation representing the American Cotton Shippers Association appeared before a subcommittee considering the appropriation bill for the independent offices.

The shippers' committee, composed of J. W. Garrow, of Houston; C. W. Butler, of Memphis, and Walter Parker, of New Orleans, told senators the board's activities were rapidly destroying the export market for American cotton while promising aid to only 8 per cent of the cotton growers of the United States.

Mr. Butler, spokesman for the shippers, advocated searching investigation of the "economic effects of the Farm Board act," and immediate removal from the market of 1,300,000 bales of cotton held by the board for "stabilization purposes." He demanded also withdrawal of the Government from the cotton market and repeal of the Farm Board law.

Member of House Sues for Divorce

Representative Thompson Alleges Health Hurt by Nagging.

Defiance, Ohio, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Representative Charles J. Thompson, 68 years old, of the Fifth Ohio District, today filed suit for absolute divorce from his second wife, Katherine A. Howe Thompson, who has asked a limited divorce in the District of Columbia.

The veteran legislator charged that by constant nagging and scolding, his wife has seriously menaced his health "which she knew to be impaired at the time of marriage." She also has sought to have him disinherit children by his first marriage and bequeath all his property to her, his petition adds.

He recently advertised that he would be responsible only for debts incurred by himself, Thompson averred because "she threatened to ruin me financially by running up bills." Papers in his wife's action for limited divorce have not been served, Representative Thompson said.

WET CIRCULATION TWICE THAT OF DRY

PLAN RUM FOR DENTISTS

(Associated Press.)

A conclusion that the Nation's antiprohibition newspapers as a whole have approximately double the circulation of those favoring the dry law was reached yesterday by the Methodist Board of Temperance.

In a survey of 1,346 daily papers having an aggregate circulation of 32,994,609 the board placed only 320 of these as definitely "wet." Their combined circulation, however, was estimated at more than 21,000,000 or 64 per cent, while that of the 809 "dry" papers was 10,488,553, or 32 per cent. There were 115, mostly of small circulation, described as "neutral."

Prohibition Director Woodcock said new regulations were being considered to give dentists the same quantity of medicinal liquor as is now allowed hpysicians.

One Wickersham Idea Adopted.

Commissioner Doran, of the Industrial Alcohol Bureau, announced the adoption of one of the Wickersham Commission recommendations. It would permit physicians to enter on their prescription stubs, without specifying in the prescription itself, the ailment for which whisky was prescribed.

The Senate appropriations committee approved the fund requested by the Prohibition Bureau, adding $147,180 to bring the total to $11,516,680.

The House expenditures committee, meantime, postponed its investigation of wire tapping by prohibition agents because of the illness of Attorney General Mitchell. He was said not to be seriously ill.

"Even Break" Not Found.

The Methodist Temperance Board also made available the figures of another survey, covering 1,438 newspapers, of which 37 per cent were said not to give prohibition an "even break," while 35 per cent was described as "biased" in handling prohibition news. Board officials said that not all of these, by any means, were "wet" papers.

From the point of view of circulation, the 340 newspapers covered in the eleven Northeastern States were described as most predominantly "wet." Of a total circulation of 13,653,613, the antiprohibition papers had 10,382,129 circulation, or 76 per cent. In the fourteen Western States, however, circulation was divided almost evenly, being 47 per cent by "dry" papers and 49 per cent "wet," with the rest neutral.

In the fifteen States and the District of Columbia the circulation of the papers included was approximately 2,600,000 for and 2,300,000 against prohibition.

U. S. EMPLOYE HELD IN LIMERICK KILLING

last night at the Third Precinct, at the conclusion of which they announced that the prisoner "is capable of giving us valuable information concerning the murder of the girl."

The prisoner is 30 years old and is a widower, his wife having died two years ago. Incidentally, Mrs. Ethel Anadale, sister of the slain girl, is employed at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where Baumann works.

Det. Srgt. Flaherty said that the police have been "unable to link Baumann with the crime, but believe that he may be able to supply some needed information." So far as police can learn, Baumann does not own a pistol.

The grand jury investigation, which has been under way since Monday, is said to deal only with possible charges against the four persons held by the coroner's jury after the inquest. They are Pvt. Robert F. Langdon, of the Police Department; Vernon Limerick, the brother of the dead girl; Richard Reed, who is said to have posed as her husband, and William Paddy, who took her to a dance the night she was slain and is supposed to be the last person who saw her alive.

Mrs. Bargfrede was the last witness yesterday. Her testimony is believed to have paralleled that she gave at the coroner's inquest, although, it was understood, she may have injected the "new suspect." Mrs. Bargfrede at the coroner's inquest testified that she had gone to the dead girl's home the day of the death and had been cautioned by Mrs. Dora Limerick, the girl's mother, not to say anything.

Other witnesses in the day were Mrs. Limerick, Earl Reed, brother of one of the suspects; Alfred Paddy, brother of another suspect; Detective Sergt. John F. Flaherty, head of the homicide squad of the Police Department, and Ethel Anadale, a sister of the dead girl.

David and William Limerick, brothers of the dead girl, and Robert Lee Merchant and Sigfred Michaelis, her friends, are among the witnesses slated to be heard today.

Heflin to Fight For Senate Seat

Gives Formal Notice of His Intention to Grapple With Bankhead.

(Associated Press.)

Formal notice of a contest against the seating of Senator-elect John Bankhead, of Alabama, was given in the Senate yesterday by Senator Heflin, defeated by Bankhead in the last election.

Heflin, who ran as an independent, said his petition would charge fraud, intimidation, coercion, bribeery and illegal expenditure of funds in the election. Bankhead was the regular Democratic candidate.

It was not certain last night what effect the Heflin move would have on the Norris resolution to extend the powers of the Senate campaign funds committee to seize ballot boxes in the last senatorial election, including Alabama. The resolution is on the calendar.

Hypnotism Theory Is Held As Third Honeymoon Begins

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh W. Thomasson, now on their third honeymoon in parts unknown, are the centers of a legal wrangle. A relative of the capitalist has asked a hearing into his sanity.

Lawyer for Capitalist, 73, Hurls New Charge at Young Bride.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Hugh W Thomasson, 73-year-old capitlist, once pictured his 29-year-old bride as an enchantress into whose eyes he feared to look because "it makes me shake all over," Stephen C. Rogers, his attorney said today.

The lawyer, in giving his hypothesis of the mysterious "third honeymoon" which yesterday took the couple from her $35,000 home in suburban Clayton, to parts unknown, added a theory of "hypnotism" to his already spoken belief of "a plain case of kidnaping."

"I once asked Thomasson to come to my office and 'sit in' while his wife testified," Rogers said. "It was then Thomasson made the remark about his wife's eyes."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomasson began their "third honeymoon" after Mrs. Ella F. Bolles, Thomasson's second cousin, appeared in probate court at Clayton and requested a hearing into Thomasson's sanity. The hearing, which was set for Saturday, will not take place unless Thomasson can be served within Missouri.

Attorneys for the couple continued their wrangling today with renewed wealth to the points in dispute. Edward Foristel, one of her lawyers, said Thomasson was "worth several million," but Rogers insisted "the bulk of his holdings was transferred to Mrs. Thomasson Monday after their "second honeymoon" and reconciliation. The transfer involved property worth 700,000.

QUO WARRANTS STEP BLOCKED IN SENATE

Walsh Resolution in Recall of Power Board Sent to Calendar.

HALTED BY SHORTRIDGE

(Associated Press.)

The proposal for a court test of the controversy between President Hoover and the Senate over tthree members of the Power Commission moved forward another step yesterday, but final approval was blocked by one of the Senate minority opposing the plan.

The resolution to authorize carrying the case to the courts was approved by the Senate audit and control committee, but Senator Shortridge (Republican), California, prevented its consideration in the Senate.

Chairman Deneen submitted the committee's report and asked for its immediate consideration, but Shortridge objected.

His objection sent the resolution to the calendar to await its turn, but a majority of the Senate can call it up for action.

Leaders of the movement to recall the nominations of Chairman Smith and Commissioners Garsaud and Draper of the Power Commission indicated they would seek early approval of the resolution.

The measure, introduced by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, would request District Attorney Rover here to institute quo warranto proceedoings to test the right of the commissioners to office in view of the Senate's reconsideration of their confirmations.

The resolution also would authorize the Senate judiciary committee to employ counsel to represent the Senate and work in cooperatoin with Rover.

Kansas Sends Oil Appeal to Hoover

Governor Accuses Big Concerns in Urging Tariff Protection.

Topeka, Kans., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Expressing himself as "astonished and appalled" at failure of the Washington oil conference to provide tangible relief for stripper oil wells of southeastern Kansas, left without a market outlet since January 1, Gov. Harry H. Woodring today addressed appeals to President Hoover and the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

The governor, who said he was studying what action the State might take toward relief, accused major oil companies of "laying waste" to Kansas oil fields while importing from abroad.

"If the tariff policy of the Republican party means anything," Mr. Woodring, a Democrat, said in his message to the President, "it should mean protection to home industry, and especially an industry in which is involved the policy of the conservation of a great natural resources."

SENATORS INCLUDE MEAT IN PRICE QUIZ

Inquiry Into Fluctuations of Commodity and Security Values Also Asked.

BREAD STUDY IS FIRST

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday broadened the scope of its food price inquiry to include meat as well as bread and sugar.

It also received a proposal from Senator Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, for appointment of a separate commission to investigate causes and remedies of fluctuations of all commodity and security values.

The resolution of Senator Carey (Republican), Wyoming, directing inquiry into the meat and meat products prices was approved without opposition and wasturned over to the Capper committee.

Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the investigating committee, announced a meeting for today to employ special investigators. He said the inquiry into bread and sugar prices would proceed ahead of that into meat.

Mr. Steiwer's resolution, which went over for future consideration, would authorize a civilian commission to be appointed by Vice President Curtis for the broad study of value fluctuations.

He proposed that the commission consider all factors influencing price relationships and all practices which may directly or indirectly depress the prices paid to producers or enhance the prices paid by consumers of food products, including all practices which influence said relationships by affecting credits and values of securities and commodities.

Chairman Capper of the committee making the inquiry said the Senate's action would not change the committee's plans and that the investigation of the prices of bread and flour would come first.

Mr. Capper announced the committee will meet today to determine if possible upon an investigator to handle the details of its inquiry.

Production of Cars Shown Increasing

(Associated Press.)

An increase in United States automobile production last month, as compared with the previous month and the same period last year, was announced yesterday by the Commerce Department.

Production last month was 155,601 vehicles. This compared with 135,752 in November and 120,007 in December, 1929. Total production for 1930 was given as 3,354,870 cars and trucks. The output in 1929, which established a new record, was 5,358,420.

Woman Hurt in Odd Accident.

An odd accident resulted in a woman's spraining her ankle yesterday. Mollie A. Aaronson, of 601 Park road, was walking on Park road near Fourteenth street when a bed, propped vertically against a wall fell and struck her. The bed was among furnishings being moved out of the building.

CONGRESS TO DECIDE RUSSIAN EMBARGOES

Treasury Official Declares Proposed Restrictions Up to Lawmakers.

SEES WEAKENED TARIFF

(Associated Press.)

The House ways and means committee was informed by Assistant Secretary Lowman yesterday that proposed embargoes on Russian goods are a matter of policy for Congress to determine.

"I do not care to express an opinion," the Treasury Department official said.

He added that a bill to exclude forced-labor products, aimed at Russian commodities, would only weaken a prohibition on such goods written into the new tariff act to take effect next January.

Two of the House conferees on the new tariff—Minority Leader Garner and Representative Bacharach (Republican), of New Jersey—said the tariff provision was designed to reach imports that proposed legislation would restrict.

Mr. Garner said the tariff conferees had spent three days drafting the provision and inquired whether it did not go far enough. The Texan told one witness, who stressed the necessity for protecting American labor from unfair competition, that "American cotton laborers have a right to consideration, too. Last year we sold Russia $40,000,000 worth of cotton."

"There is a possibility," Mr. Bacharach put in, "that, as Mr. Garner suggests, we might go too far."

Mr. Lowman said the tariff provision would exclude all convict-labor products, while the proposed legislation would exempt certain goods, some of which were not produced domestically in sufficient quantities.

He said, in response to questioning, that Amrican exports to Russia for 1930 were estimated at $150,000,000, and imports at $30,000,000, and that he believed exclusion of imports would result in shutting off exports.

Lumber, manganese and coal producers' representatives urged the committee to enact an embargo against forced-labor products. They described depressed conditions in American industries and said protection from such competition would help them.

The hearing was concluded after Hugh H. Cooper, American engineer supervising an 800,000-horsepower project for the Soviet government, declared that in five years the United States could sell Russia a billion dollars' worth of goods annually.

Representative Fish (Republican), New York, urged execution of his Communist investigation committee's recommendation for a first-hand American investigation of convict labor in Russian lumber production and later of forced labor conditions.

Fish Hails Five-Year Plan.

"The five-year plan is a success," Mr. Fish said, adding that through it Russia would capture the world markets for wheat, lumber, manganese and cotton.

Should Russia refuse to allow United States investigation, as she denied Great Britain, Mr. Fish insisted that "a flat embargo" should be laid against timber.

Mr. Cooper testified on behalf of the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce that the Treasury Department's interpretation of present tariff restrictions on forced-labor products were sufficient in themselves to "kill Russian trade."

This organization is conferring with Secretary Lamont and the Treasury, Mr. Cooper said, in an effort to get a new interpretation.

William S. Bennett, of Chicago, representing a West Virginia coal concern, insisted that the present tariff provision "can't be enforced."

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, former chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, asked on behalf of the Reserve Officers Training Corps, "What is $100,000,000 worth of trade to us? We're facing revolution."

Enright Indicted With Jack Walton

Former New York Police One of 19 Accused in Oil Mail Fraud.

Oklahoma City, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Jack Walton, ousted Oklahoma governor; Richard Enright, former police commissioner of New York, and S. E. J. Cox., former associate of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, were among nineteen persons indicted for mail fraud by a Federal grand jury today.

The indictments were returned in connection with the reported promotion operations of the defunct Universal Oil & Gas Co. here. Henry Knight Miller, editor of the magazine "Psychology," also was among those indicted. Cox and other reputed officers of the company have been free on bond for several months.

Walton, Enright and Miller have not been arrested.

Hoover Congratulates Religious Society Head

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday congratulated Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the International Christian Endeavor Society, on the occasion of that organization's fiftieth anniversary.

The President said: "The celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor is indeed an occasion for worldwide gratification to all who have witnessed its steadfast service of the high ideals of life and character. I join its multitudes of friends in best wishes for continued success and growth."

Hidden Numbers Lead To Recovery of Autos

Hidden identification numbers have enabled local police to recover two expensive automobiles stolen in New York City recently and sold to dealers here. Detective Frank Alligood, of the automobile squad, said that the usual motor numbers on the cars had been altered, but that the secret numbers were intact.

One dealer here paid $2,800 for one of the cars, while the other was purchased for $1,600.

Alfalfa Bill Ousts G. O. P. Road Official

Oklahoma City, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, picturesque head of State where politics usually is in turmoil, today ordered removal of Lew Wentz, millionaire Republican State Highway Commission chairman, from office.

In campaigning for the governorship in last November's election, Gov. Murray, a Democrat, bitterly criticisedWentz's activities. The governor declared for a wider distribution of road funds to benefit county rather than State highways.

RED CROSS TO BAR $25,000,000 RELIEF

CALLED POLITICAL MOVE

for relief in the drought-stricken areas.

The administration would not accept it and the matter has now been broadened to cover unemployment in the population centers.

Senator Robinson referred to the course the fight has taken when he said:

"If the administration had exercised ordinary comprehension of the true situation, ordinary intelligence in dealing with the present difficulties; if it had acted promptly, if it had responded to the Nationwide call in the beginning of this session, it would have required far less than will be required before the 4th of March shall have come."

Judge Payne told the House committee the reason the Red Cross would not undertake to deal with the unemployment situation was that other agencies were dealing with it and that the Red Cross could not be a party to any duplication of effort. In response to questions as to whether it could not distribute the congressional fund through agencies already at work, he insisted his organization just could not do that.

Means Adding Agencies, He Said.

And to attempt to distribute the unemployment relief themselves, they would have to set up countless organizations, he said.

The Democratic senators particularly have been boiling over Judge Payne's part in their controversy with the President ever since he told the Senate appropriations committee the Red Cross had adequate funds to take care of the drought situation, and a few days later joined in an appeal for $10,000,000 more, and again over the story published a few days ago that a subcommittee of the central committee had called on the President to tell him the Senate's agitation was embarrassing the Red Cross in its appeal. The subcommittee in question was composed of Judge Payne, Undersecretary of the Treasury Mills and Assistant Secretary Hope.

But even after that, every time they would refer to Judge Payne they would grit their teeth and use most affectionate terms. They did not want the Red Cross dragged into the thing.

Asserting that the President's attitude "is incomprehensible to his most intimate friends," Senator Robinson said of Mr. Hoover:

"Before he became President he was the recognized leader of relief movements in this country and throughout the world. He came to the Congress just following the close of the World War and appealed for the appropriation of $100,000,000 of public funds to be expended in feeding foreigners, Europeans, who were in great distress.

"He came again to the Congress of the United States in the name of human mercy and charity and appealed to us to appropriate $20,000,000 for the benefit of hungry Russians.

Refers to Old Incident.

"Then the question was raised by the committees of the Congress as to whether it would not be best to provide such funds as might be made available through voluntary contributions to charitable organizations, including the Red Cross.

"Mr. Hoover then called attention to the fact that the resources of many citizens had been depleted by the processes of the war, that Community Chest campaigns were being carried on in many of the cities for the purpose of meeting local requirements; and he then declared that it was his solemn and final judgment that the correct policy was to take money out of the Federal Treasury through the legislative process and distribute it through charitable organizations, of which he was the directing agency, for the benefit of foreigners.

"And the Congress accepted the viewpoint of Citizen Hoover. It appropriated, for the two purposes I have already described, $120,000,000 of public money, and Citizen Hoover distributed it, and his name became known throughout the world."

Asserting that the people are less able to contribute now than they were then, Senator Robinson said every city in the country recently has carried on a community chest drive or is preparing to do so.

House Group to Act Today.

The House committee, in the meantime, concluded its hearings and will take action today on the Senate amendment, which is incorporated in the interior appropriation bill. It is assumed that it will uphold the President and recommend against the proposal. Then will come the maneuvers of the House leaders to hold their forces in line.

A commentary on the standard of living on Arkansas plantations was given the committee by Albert E. Evans, Red Cross director of relief in that State. He disclosed his organization was feeding the distressed people of that State on $2 a month per person, $8 per month for a family of four. The $8 budget buys from 100 to 120 pounds of food. That the commentary is on the standard of living and not on the adequacy of Red Cross assistance, however, was disclosed by comparative budgets on which plantation owners maintained these people before the distressed period. In fact, it was disclosed the Red Cross is giving a family two cans of tomatoes a month. The plantation-owner budgets before the distressed period did not call for tomatoes.

"Is pellagra on the increase?" asked Representative Byrns, of Tennessee.

"Not appreciably," replied Mr. Evans.

He had a comprehensive picture of conditions in his State and what was being done, in decided contrast to Henry Baker, in Arkansas until two weeks ago and now in charge in Oklahoma, who seemed to know very little about the needs in that State.

Hyde and Wilbur Talk On Road-Building Plans

(Associated Press.)

Secretaries Hyde and Wilbur conferred yesterday on means of speeding construction of public roads in national parks to increase employment. For road building in national forests, Congress included $1,500,000 in the recent emergency appropriation measure.

In addition, $7,500,000 would be authorized for the purpose under the Leavitt bill, now before President Hoover after passage by both the House and the Senate. Heretofore the annual appropriation has amounted to $3,000,000.

LUNCHEON MEETING IS TOLD CHEST IS NEARING $1,000,000

Red Cross Drought Relief Fund are the victims of elements in nature beyond their prediction or control. Washington, through the Community Chest, has assumed the obligation to supply $100,000 for the need of these drought sufferers.

"Again, what we who have food and shelter and clothing and the necessities of life offer, is not charity, but share-ity."

Greater cooperation on the part of the Catholic men of Washington in the Community Chest campaign was urged last night by the newly elected officers of the Washington section of the Baltimore Archdiocesan Union of Holy Name Societies at an annual meeting at St. Teresa's Hall.

Pleads With Catholics.

Caesar L. Aiello, of Hyattsville, reelected president, told the 400 delegates of 53 local parishes that the Chest offered Catholic people of Washington an opportunity to unite in one great army to help those in need.

"Our archbishop has spoken, our priests are leading the way, and it is now up to the 80,000 Catholic people of this city to back the officials of the Community Chest by giving more to this campaign than they have ever given before," he declared.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith celebrated their fortieth anniversary yesterday by attending the Chest report luncheon and each turning in a sizeable report as their day's collections.

The couple had planned to take a trip to Florida this week, but Mrs. Goldsmith, unwilling to leave until the campaign was safely over the top, decided to postpone the trip. She is working on the Special Gifts Unit, the Group Solicitation unit, of which she is vice chairman, and also helping a team in the Metrtopolitan Division. Mr. Goldsmith is a keyman in the Group Solicitation Unit.

Among the unique gifts received by the Chest this year was the offer of Thomas L. Saxon, of Kensington, Md., who works in Washington, to give two blood transfusions to charity patients during 1931, when, as, and if needed. Mr. Saxon made a cash contribution to the Chest and offered the transfusions in addition. He explained that he has "type 2" blood and is willing to serve at any time for any patient designated by any organization in the Chest.

Developments today in the campaign for the Chest will be the presentation of "Silver Candlesticks," a playlet writen in the interest of the organization, presented over WOL by a group of players recruited from the Community Drama Guild.

Community Chest radio speakers today are Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer, over WMAL at 5:30 p. m.; Everett Sanders, WRC, 5:55 p. m.; Daniel S. Ring, WOL, 6:30 p. m., and Lisle Burroughs, WJSV, 7:15 p. m.

Stimson's $5,000 Gift Swells District Fund

The District of Columbia's contributions to the Red Cross drought relief fund reached a total of $78,475.65 yesterday with the addition of $8,800 brought in during the day. Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson contributed $5,000, while an anonymous contribution of $3,000 was acknowledged by the local chapter.

Individual contributions of $100 or more were as follows:

Henry L. Stimson	$5,000.00
Anonymous	3,000.00
Young Men's Shop	100.00
W. A. H. Church	100.00

Senate Bill Increases Washington Patrol

(Associated Press.)

Appropriation of $500,000 for an immediate increase of 250 men on the border patrol under the Immigration Bureau was voted yesterday by the Senate appropriations committee. The fund was added to the measure for the State, Justice, Labor and Commerce Departments, reported yesterday.

The Senate committee added $2,451,993 to this four-department measure as passed by the House. The committee boosted the fund for next year's operation of the Prohibition Bureau by $147,180, allotting $11,516,680 for this work.

Soldier Is Arrested; A. W. O. L., Is Charge

A soldier was arrested at Union Station yesterday because, according to Detective William F. McDuffy, he was soliciting money. When the man produced a furlough slip showing that he is John Gulbin, attached to the Fifty-first Coast Artillery at Fort Monroe, Va., he was locked up and held for action of military authorities. The paper showed that his furlough ended January 2 and that he was absent without leave.

OFFICER ON CUTTER WAS DRUNK, CLAIM

Josephine K. Witness Says Boatswain Drank Six Bottles of Ale.

CAPTAIN OF SHIP KILLED

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—One of seven witnesses produced by the British consul general at an inquiry into the shelling of the Canadian rum-runner Josephine K., testified positively today that Boatswain Karl Schmidt, in command of C. G. 145, the cutter which captured the rum boat, was intoxicated when he boarded his prize.

Of six other members of the rum-runner's crew taken before the board of inquiry to tell what they observed about Schmidt's sobriety, one said he saw the boatswain drink a bottle of ale and the others had no evidence to offer on the subject.

Consul Asks for Time.

The seven witnesses were brought into the hearing room after a recess requested by Gerald Campbell, British consul general in New York. He asked the board for time out that he might round up testimony bearing on Schmidt's condition.

At yesterday's session of the inquiry the boatswain admitted he fired the shells which struck the rum boat, one of which mortally wounded William P. Cluett, the captain. Schmidt denied he was intoxicated or had taken a drink.

Louis Selig, Halifax seaman, was the witness who declared unequivocally that Boatswain Schmidt had been drinking. Schmidt appeared to be "very intoxicated," Selig said. "He staggered."

Says Talk Was Incoherent.

Selig declared he saw the boatswain down "six or more" bottles of ale and "a couple of whiskies." He added that Schmidt's talk was incoherent, although he clearly caught one sentence: "It is too bad the captain got shot."

Harry Jewell, also of Halifax, testified he saw Schmidt drink one bottle of ale.

Tomorrow the Josephine K. will be taken on a speed test to determine whether she could best the C. G. 145 in a fair race. Ballast will be provided to take the place of the liquor removed from her.

Haste Urged in Report On Rum Boat's Capture

(Associated Press.)

The State Department has communicated again with the Treasury urging that a report be given on the capture of the Josephine K as expeditiously as possible.

Desire to have the report in the hands of the Canadian Legation before the arrival Saturday of Prime Minister Bennett, of Canada, was the cause of the State Department's urging haste. Indications were that the Treasury would turn the report over to the State Department Thursday or Friday.

Rumrunner Belonged To Americans, Is Hint

(Associated Press.)

A "suspicion" that the rumrunner Josephine K was American-owned has been communicated to the State Department by the American Consulate at Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

Department officials said the consulate's report was based on a rumor in Yarmouth that the vessel was owned by the same ring in this country that owned the Canadian registered rumrunner I'm Alone, sunk in March, 1929, in the Gulf of Mexico with loss of life. American ownership could not be established on the basis of the consulate's report, however.

Broker Goes to Trial In Stolen Bonds Case

New York, Jan. 28 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—James A. Connolly, Minneapolis broker, was placed on trial in Federal Court today on a charge of using the mails in selling stolen bonds.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

IF the civic influences of Biloxi, Miss., ever get that improvement in the channel of Back Bay, or whatever it is they are after, they should put up one of those markers such as grace our city halls and other public buildings—you know, "Built in the administration of Mayor Guinness and Aldermen So and So," —theirs should read "to the memory of Pat Harrison."

Single-handed yesterday he wheedled $30,000 out of Senator Dave Reed and other Republican guardians of the Treasury, and they smiled as they gave it to him.

* * * *

THE War Department supply bill provided that if Biloxi civic spirits would put up $30,000 the War Department would put up $82,000. Apparently the Biloxi spirits haven't got $30,000 right at this time.

Anyway, Pat offered an amendment that local interests shall put up $5,000 now, $5,100 annually for five successive years and whenever the War Department wants it, they will construct a public terminal.

Reed promptly made a point of order against the amendment, whereupon Pat pleaded: "Oh, I hope the senator won't do that."

* * * *

IT WAS such a touching plea and filled with such eloquent pathos, that Reed agreed to withdraw his point of order and let the Senate vote on it.

Inasmuch as there were only about five senators on the floor, that suited Pat fine. But Reed declared that he would be darned if he would just give Pat the amendment outright. He insisted that the whole Senate had to vote on it.

"Now the senators will come in here uninformed about the matter—I wish the senator wouldn't insist upon a roll call," Pat pleaded in that way of his. But Reed was adamant and the roll was called.

Whereupon the senators came tramping in and after some hurried conversations with their colleagues, concluded that the issue at hand was Pat himself, and forthwith voted 70 to 2 in favor of his amendment.

They will probably run over and tell the House conferees to strike it out, but that was an unusual tribute that Pat got, at that.

CITY ALLEY MEASURE IS DEAD FOR SESSION

Budget Bureau's Disapproval Assented To by District Commissioners.

FINANCES SAID TO FORBID

The alley population of approximately 13,000 will probably be still visible when the throngs of tourists visit the National Capital during the Washington bicentennial celebration next year as a result of the action of the Budget Bureau, revealed yesterday, in disapproving the alley closing bill sponsored by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and approved by the District Commissioners.

The Commissioners yesterday sent to Congress an unfavorable report on the bill in view of the Budget Bureau's ruling that the measure is contrary to the President's financial program at present and because the District government has no money to carry through the work.

Under the scheme set forth in the measure the Commissioners would select the alley dwellings to be bought or condemned by the United States Housing Corporation. To begin with the latter was to utilize the $500,000 surplus credited to it since the World War and to receive an annual appropriation of $500,000 from the Federal Government funds, part of which would be paid back by the sale or rental of the property thus acquired.

The Commissioners in their report yesterday made it clear that they considered the bill "meritorious" and that "there is a need for correcting the alley conditions in the District of Columbia to provide better sanitation and to approve the appearance of the city."

Explaining the finances of the District government would not permit backing the project, the Commissioners concluded "it might be inopportune to enact the legislation at the present session of Congress" in view of the conflict with the President's program.

A recent report prepared for the Park and Planning Commission stated that there are 126 of these alleys which contain 10 or more dwellings. Not only are they unsanitary and unhealthy, the report stated, but "they constitute hidden communities in which disease, vice, and crime flourish."

The worst of the alley dwellings, particularly frame houses, have been gradually eliminated and those that remain are said to be fairly substantial structures, the majority of them being brick.

Victim of Padlock Act Sues Landlord

Father of 13 Children Says Only Six Days' Notice Preceded Eviction.

As a result of an eviction under the padlock provisions of the national prohibition act a suit was filed yesterday in District Supreme Court against the owner of the premises.

Joe Zanelotti, father of 13 children, who recently was evicted by deputy marshals from premises on C street northwest, near Thirteenth street, is the plaintiff.

Lorenza Costa, of 310 Thirteen-and-one-half street northwest, is named as defendant and landlord.

Zanelotti, through Attorneys Louis Whitestone and W. R. Lichtenberg, tells the court he was not given the necessary 30 days' notice to move. He states he knew nothing about the padlock hanging over his home, due to a former tenant, and asserts he was given only six days' notice. He also asserts that as a result of the eviction he was compelled to lose five days from his work and to pay other expenses incident to moving.

Fall Appeal Arguments To Be Heard Monday

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals announced yesterday that it will hear arguments on the appeal of Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, next Monday.

Fall is appealing from a District of Columbia Supreme Court conviction which resulted in the imposition of a sentence of a year in jail and a fine of $100,000. He was convicted on an indictment which charged him with accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny, millionaire oil magnate. Doheny later was acquitted on a charge of giving the bribe.

Navy officials have declined to speculate over what will be done to Gen. Butler if he admits telling the Mussolini story, but it seems most likely that he will get a reprimand.

BLAST AT COAL MINE KILLS 20 IN INDIANA

gas and knew nothing more until after he was rescued.

Five rescue teams of six men each were sent down into the affected area as soon as the blast was reported. They were able to reach the two injured men about two hours after the explosion, and in two more hours brought five bodies to the surface.

As soon as news of the tragedy had been spread, roads to the mine were choked with automobiles.

The mine, said to be one of the most productive in the State, is owned by the Little Betty Coal Corporation, of Chicago. L. H. Dayhoff is president.

The rescue workers were badly hampered by poisonous air, and in calling for reinforcements the volunteers were warned that they were risking their lives in going into the shaft. The mine was badly damaged, a fact which further blocked the efforts of the workers.

This was the second major mine accident in Sullivan County in recent years. On February 20, 1925, the city mine in Sullivan was wrecked by an explosion similar to today's blast. Fifty-one miners were killed, only one man being brought out alive. Soon after today's explosion became known, crowds gathered at the mine mouth, including many women and children of the miners' families.

CROWDS INCREASING AT NEW CAR DISPLAY

8,000 Visitors View Exhibits at Auditorium in One Day's Showng.

WORKING MODELS SEEN

Although the crowds attending the eleventh annual automobile show at the Washington Auditorium are growing steadily, reaching a peak of more than 8,000 yesterday, there has been virtually no "traffic congestion" on either floor of the huge exposition building, it was pointed out last night by officials of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, sponsor of the event.

According to the show management, the layout of the exhibits this year has been such as to promote the smooth and uninterrupted flow of visitors through the Auditorium. Provision has been made for spacious aisles the length and breadth of the building, with a minimum of "bottlenecks" to stem the pedestrian stream.

The result of this planning, it was pointed out, has been to enable every one to see all the exhibits on both floors in convenience and comfort, despite the fact that the crowds are large and have been growing larger from day to day.

Show Opens Early.

Another factor which is enabling a greater proportion of Washington's motor-minded public to see the show in a leisurely and unhurried manner is the early morning opening. With the show available, beginning at 10:30 a. m., and continuing until 10:30 p. m., an unusually long session is provided. The morning and early afternoon sessions thus far this week have attracted a large number of women visitors, show officials state.

With but three days remaining before the close of the show on Saturday night, exhibitors already are expressing their keen satisfaction with the material results gained. They anticipate, further, that the last three days of the show will prove even more encouraging. All agree that public interest in the show and in the values offered is greater this year than ever before.

Working Models Shown.

Stripped chassis, working models of mechanical developments, accessory, equipment, marine and aircraft displays last night held the attention of the throng at the auditorium, in addition to the more than 150 different passenger car models on display, while music from the orchestra on the stage provided a lively background for the proceedings.

Tonight the audience of Station WRC will be addressed by Whitney Leary, president of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, and Richard J. Murphy, show manager. It is said that an announcement of distinct importance to the public will be made in this program.

Bus Terminal Opened By Stage Corporation

Opening of a new bus terminal at 1349 E street northwest, from which buses may be taken for Richmond, Norfolk, Miami, New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Los Angeles, was announced yesterday by the Great Eastern States. The new terminal is provided with a waiting room, checking service and other accommodations.

The Great Eastern stages has for some time been operating buses between Washington, Norfolk and Newport News to the South, and Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Buffalo to the north. The Chester Valley bus lines, the Blue Ridge Transportation Co. and the Eastern Public Service Co. buses may also be taken at the new terminal.

Crushed Army Driver Brought Here by Plane

Badly crushed when a truck he was driving ran into a bridge near Fort Houston, Va., Corpl. John Williams, attached to the Quartermaster Corps at Fort Houston, was in a critical condition last night at Walter Reed Hospital, where he was taken after a plane trip to Bolling Field.

Corpl. Williams' truck crashed into a bridge over the James River, on the road to Norfolk, when Williams turned around to give a signel to a convoy following him. A bombing plane from Langley Field was commandeered and a fast flight made to Washington. Williams' home is in Nevada, Mo.

CROWD IS BARRED FROM SLAYING TRIAL

Defense Attorney Hints of "Horrible Obsession" of Slain Man.

CURIOUS SEEK ENTRANCE

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 28.—Behind closed doors a jury in corporation court today heard some of the evidence which Stephen D. Timberlake, one of the attorneys for Mrs. Essie C. Smith, stated yesterday would vindicate his client in the killing of her husband, John A. Smith, a railway trainman, and would brand the deceased as having had a "horrible obsession" toward his 15-year-old daughter, Clarice.

On motion of attorneys for the defense, Judge A. D. Dabney cleared the courtroom at the opening of today's session because of the nature of the evidence they said would be brought out.

Defendant Takes Stand.

The first witnesses to testify were Sol Weinberg, druggist, and C. F. Dirickson, prescription clerk. A half hour later the widow, who fired eight or more bullets into the body of her husband on the night of November 7, took the stand to relate her story of what led up to the tragedy. She was still on the stand when court adjourned at 5 o'clock this afternoon. She will resume her testimony tomorrow morning and will be followed on the stand by her daughter and a son, Furman Smith.

Indications are that the trial will not be concluded until probably late Friday afternoon. Instructions which will be given the jury were discussed tonight by Judge Dabney and opposing counsel.

Hundreds of curious men and women milled around the courthouse throughout the day with the hope of getting a glimpse of the principals. Throngs blocked all doorways leading to the ancient building and many stood on boxes peering in windows. A dozen or more law students from the university heard portions of the evidence submitted by Mrs. Smith.

Commonwealth Rests.

The Commonwealth rested its case late yesterday after having called eleven witnesses. Later, the jury was taken to inspect the Lexington avenue home in which the slaying occurred.

According to description furnished by the two physicians, Smith's body was bullet-riddled. One of them stated three bullets entered his back, his right arm was shattered and other slugs entered his legs.

Jerry Farris, a caretaker at Riverview Cemetery, asserted that on "four or five" different occasions he saw Mrs. Smith and her daughter meet "a man who worked in a store on Belmont street" at the graveyard. Fife asked Farris if he could identify the man as Joe Vanderhoff, who was killed in an automobile accident last September, and the witness said he did not know Vanderhoff, but had not seen the individual in the store in recent months.

Trade Commission Promotes Horton

Assistant Chief Examiner Will Have Charge of Investigations.

James A. Horton, of the chief examiner's division of the Federal Trade Commission, yesterday was appointed an assistant chief examiner of the commission. He will be assigned to the commission's investigation activities.

Mr. Horton for the past year has served as chairman of the commission's special board for investigation of false and misleading advertising. He became connected with the commission in 1921. During the World War he was principal attorney for the Postoffice Department in the enforcement of the postal provisions of the espionage and trading with the enemy acts.

Born in Youngstown, Ohio, Mr. Horton was educated in the public schools there, later graduating from the law department of the University of Michigan. He practiced law in Ohio before he came to Washington in 1917.

Future Passenger Airships Described by Expert Here

(Associated Press.)

Ships of the future, speeding their passengers through the air instead of plowing the waves, were pictured yesterday before the House interstate and foreign commerce committee.

The group has under consideration a bill to encourage the building of dirigibles in America and to provide for helpful air mail subsidies similar to those now in existence for airplanes and steamships.

As evidence that the proposed airships are feasible, numerous witnesses cited the records of the Los Angeles and the Graf Zeppelin, praising the latter for its round-the-world and Europe-South America-North America flights.

Jerome G. Hunsaker, vice president of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation, of Akron, Ohio, which is building two giant dirigibles for the Navy, described the airship he believes will some day carry passengers and cargoes around the world.

For economical operation on an international route, Hunsaker predicted an airship of 7,500,000 cubic feet, able to carry 80 passengers and 25,000 pounds of mail and express in addition to a crew of 50. Such a ship, he said, including parts and helium to lift it, could be built for $4,500,000.

For transatlantic service, Hunsaker said, terminal sites in the United States should be established in the general vicinities of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Richmond and Alexandria, Va. The European terminal probably would be in the Rhine Valley between Paris and Berlin.

Hunsaker testified that original construction of ships and terminals would cost about $9,000,000 and urged early passage of the pending bill.

Other witnesses who approved the bill were Cletus Keating, of New York; William P. MacCracken, jr., former Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics; Paul W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation, and Charles A. Lawrence, of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

Phone Products Used Elsewhere

Company Attache Tells Rotarians of Assistance to Industry.

The by-products of the Bell Telephone laboratories which are of no value in the development of the telephone have become highly important in other commercial fields, W. W. Wheeler, general information manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., told members of the Rotary Club last night.

He said the work of the laboratories was devoted primarily to scientific study of sound, its reproduction and electrical transmission, but that sometimes when at work in the field its scientists discovered many strange phenomena of nature. When these have commercial application they are given to other industries for use under license.

Among the discoveries made and perfected by the laboratories Mr. Wheeler referred to the orthophonic phonograph, the artificial larynx and the talking motion picture. He showed several talking pictures made at the Bell laboratories.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

REMOVAL OF DEEMS STIRS ALEXANDRIA

Citizens, Meeting, Denounce Action of School Board Against Colonel.

DESCRIBED "TOO ACTIVE"

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Following close on the heels of the information which became public yesterday that the Alexandria school board had requested the "replacement" of Col. Clarence Deems, jr., professor of military science and tactics in the Alexandria High School, a meeting was held last night in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, of representatives of various civic and patriotic bodies of Alexandria, to consider a protest against the action of the school board, and to request the city council, which meets today, to withhold action until the citizens of Alexandria may be fully informed of the conditions, and a thorough investigation of the facts made.

Attending the meeting were Sidney Weil, commander of the local post of the American Legion, chairmen; John Barton Phillips, president of the chamber of commerce; Roger C. Sullivan, president of the Kiwanis Club; Fred C. Goodnow, past president, representing the Rotary Club; Harry F. Kennedy, patron of the Martha Washington Chapter, Order Eastern Star; Miss Helen Norris Cummings, president, and Miss Esther H. Green, secretary, of the Cameron Club; Mrs. Charles Eliett Cabell, past regent of Mount Vernon Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, past president of the Daughters of the Confederacy, and Clyde B. Lanham, representing the Junior Order of United American Mechanics.

It was announced by the chairman that a meeting of the city School Board was held last Saturday afternoon, with these members present: Urban S. Lambert, chairman; E. E. Lawler, Mrs. John B. Abraham and Dr. John T. Ashton. The other two members of the board, Gardner L. Boothe and Mrs. Jennifer Broaddus, were absent on account of illness.

Col. Leavitt, of Baltimore, representing Maj. Gen. Sladen, commanding the Third Corp Area, having jurisdiction over the R. O. T. C. units in this territory, was present. The request that Col. Deems be removed was made, and Col. Leavitt refused to consider the matter without the presence of Col. Deems, who was then summoned to the meeting. It is understood that the superintendent of schools, R. C. Bowton, charged, among other things, that Col. Deems has been "too active in civic affairs." The statement was made last night that Mr. Bowton informed Col. Leavitt that he, Mr. Bowton, was responsible for the establishment of the R. O. T. C. unit in the Alexandria High School, and Chairman Weil claimed this credit for the American Legion Post, which was responsible for the establishment of the cadet corps after two years of unsuccessful effort.

Upon motion of Mr. Kennedy, a telegram will be sent immediately from the committee to Gen. Sladen:

"We protest the action of the Alexandria, Va., school board in asking the removal of Col. Deems without an opportunity to be heard or defend himself and condemn such action as un-American, unpatriotic and communistic and that action be deferred until a thorough investigation can be made of any charges against Col. Deems."

The committee urged that all interested citizens of Alexandria who can do so, appear at the meeting of the city council this afternoon.

The Cameron Club yesterday sent this telegram to Gen. Sladen:

"Taxpayers and citizens of Alexandria, members of the Cameron Club, unanimously protest against the withdrawal of Col. Deems from the military training in our schools. He has appreciably increased a higher standard of honor, conduct and patriotism since he has had charge of the boys and his withdrawal would be a serious loss to our country. The school board alone has had any knowledge of this effort made to force the withdrawal of Col. Deems. The citizens whom it concerns are indignant at the manner in which this has been conducted. We ask that no hasty action be taken by your staff.

"Helen Norris Cummings, president.
Esther H. Green, Secretary."

Mr. Goodnow stated that Col. Deems has been commended by Gen. McArthur, chief of staff of the Army, as the most efficient officer in charge of R. O. T. C. work, and in Mr. Goodnow's opinion, this action of the Alexandria school board, will place an absolutely unwarranted blemish on a hitherto untarnished record in the service Col. Deems was retired after 35 years of active service in the Army.

A special meeting of Alexandria Post, American Legion, of which Col. Deems is a member, will be held tonight, also to go on record as protesting the action of the school board.

The principal speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club today will be Dr. Charles Armstrong, surgeon in the United States Public Health Service. He is recognized as an authority on Psittacosis, what has become commonly known as "parrot fever," and will give a talk on that subject. The committee in charge of the program is composed of Dr. O. A. Ryder and Dr. W. Lewis Schaeffer.

Forty-five beginners have so far been enrolled in the public schools of the city, and will start their classes Monday. Yesterday was the last day for white children in the older portion of the city to register. White children in the annexed territory will be enrolled today and Friday at the George Mason High School.

Colored children will be enrolled today at the Jefferson School. The hours for enrollment for all pupils are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., and from 1:30 to 3 p. m.

All children are required to be vaccinated, and parents are required to present birth cards. Those who will be 6 years old on or before February 1 are entitled to enrollment.

Mrs. Annie Ball Pierpoint, widow of John E. Pierpoint, died Tuesday, at the home of her niece, Mrs. Percy E. Clift, 217 North Columbus street. The body was taken to Wheatley's funeral home, where funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon by the Rev. D. L. Snyder, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Burial will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery.

Mrs. Margaret Weaver, widow of Albert Weaver, died yesterday at the Anne Lee Memorial Home for the Aged. She was about 75 years old, and for the last three years had lived at the Anne Lee Home, coming here from Culpeper. The body was taken to Wheatley's funeral home.

Mrs. E. C. Scott, 91 years old, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Laura V. Smith, 212 West Peyton avenue. She is survived by four children—Mrs. Laura V. Smith, Capt. W. W. Scott, E. C. Scott, and Capt. Edward H. Scott. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the Baptist Church at Hampton, Va.

According to reports made by local physicians, there is an epidemic of grip sweeping Alexandria, there being several hundred cases under treatment. The malady, however, appears to be of a mild character.

Mrs. Anderson claims $3,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been suffered as a passenger on a bus November 15, 1929. It is alleged that the complainant, when the bus started suddenly, was thrown against hte cash box of the bus and injured. She is represented by Attorney John Barton Phillips.

Members of Alexandria Post, American Legion, accompanied by Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, U. S. A., retired, and Col. Clarence Deems, U. S. A., retired, will go to Fort Humphreys tomorrow night for an "outpost" meeting, and will be entertained in the day room of the Thirteenth Engineers. Master Sergt. Marc Freemen, a member of the Alexandria post, is chairman of the Fort Humphreys entertainment tcommittee. The visitors will be served with army "chow."

GAMING DISMISSALS AWAIT ROVER ACTION

Police Witnesses Absent, Court Voids Charges in "Clean-Cut" Cases.

FITZPATRICK TO EXPLAIN

Passing the buck was the order of the day yesterday in Police Court when six so-called "clean-cut" gaming cases were dismissed by Judge Ralph E. Given for want of prosecution.

Assistant United States Attorney John R. Fitzpatrick sanctioned the dismissals on the grounds that the police had failed to respond to summons. Inspector Thaddeus Bean, in charge of the vice squad, however, declared the men wanted in Police Court were in the District Supreme Court on other cases.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover later in the day declared he had received no word from Mr. Fitzpatrick despite a demand for an explanation. Mr. Fitzpatrick was understood to have sent Mr. Rover his explanation, but at a late hour it had not reached the chief prosecutor.

"All I know about the case," said Mr. Rover, "is that a member of the vice squad came to me this morning and reported that Mr. Fitzpatrick had authorized the dismissal of these cases. He stated that one member of his squad had filed a written statement that he would be in the District Supreme Court while others had told another assistant orally they would be so engaged."

Pending the receipt of Mr. Fitzpatrick's explanation, Mr. Rover refused to comment on the question whether he would ask his assistant to resign.

Policemen involved are F. D. Hilliard, F. A. Truscott, F. O. Brass, N. O. Holmes, J. K. Baker, Arthur Ralph Williams, F. C. O'Mera and H. G. Bauer.

Defendants who were freed as a result of the action are John Innocenti, Joseph Savia, Peter Mantos, Louis Pentos, and Tillie Ware, Negress, and Pearl E. Stevenson, also colored.

CRISIS IN DANVILLE STRIKE IMMINENT

Compromise, or Failure, May Be Announced Today in Textile Trouble.

SECRECY IS MAINTAINED

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Jan. 28.—The Danville textile strike situation appeared tonight to be moving toward a crisis, with some form of compromise or possibly failure formally declared tomorrow, when a "full statement" is promised by union officials.

With the strikers themselves saying that "we should know tonight or tomorrow what's going to happen," and with local strike officials engaged in long conferences this morning and this afternoon, it was apparent that a momentous situation had developed.

C. S. Garrison, called from a meeting with Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers, and Miss Matilda Lindsey, women's organizer, this afternoon said that no definite announcement would be made tonight.

Vote Is Possible.

He admitted, however, that it was possible that a vote might be taken at a closed meeting in Dansylvania Hall by the strikers, in regard to continuance or termination of the strike. He denied that the strike was about to fail, but spoke of the possibility of a compromise, adding that premature publicity might ruin its chances.

Admittance to tonight's membership meeting was by card and all were bound by the oath of secrecy not to divulge what transpired. Gorman appeared at the meeting, however, and was reported to be more sanguine over a compromise than at any time thus far in the strike. Garrison, speaking before the meeting opened, said: "Nothing will be given out tonight. What happens will be simply a step in developments which may come to fruition tomorrow."

He indicated that at a given hour tomorrow a press statement would be issued. Secrecy continued this evening to cloak union activities. There was good reason to believe that H. R. Fitzgerald was not in New York as reported, but in Danville, and that other persons were here whose presence is not generally known.

The impression tonight here was that the strikers were told of the difficulties in continuing the strike, and of terms by which it could be brought to an end, their answer to be vital in determining the issue tomorrow.

Union spokesmen have stated with emphasis recently that the strike would be continued "through summer, if necessary." The nonunion forces at work in the mills, however, approximate numerically the strength of the union, there being at least 3,700 on the pay rolls now.

Money Difficulties.

There have been recent money difficulties experienced by the union, disease is abroad among the strikers and last week the union found that the stockholders were as a unit applauding the mill management strike conduct and that there was no hope for a split in their ranks on the labor issue.

Schoolfield police continued their hunt today for a further cache of dynamite caps and fuses. Yesterday evening 6,000 caps and 400 feet of fuse were found in a sack in a field, a farmer, burning his plant beds, making the discovery.

The storage house of the Collins Granite Quarry, near Schoolfield, was robbed Monday night and more than 11,000 dynamite caps stolen, also fuse. No dynamite is kept at the quarry, now inoperative.

Black Diphtheria Laid to Drought

Stanley, Va., Reports Low Water Caused Malady; Children Victims.

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Jan. 28.—Low water courses for months harboring vast quantities of filth and decaying vegetable matter, are blamed for an outbreak of what is known as black diphtheria in the Stanley neighborhood of this county.

The malady has caused the death of several children in that neighborhood—two were buried in the same grave today near Stanley.

The malady is an intestinal affection, working upward through the body. The baffling nature of the disease has caused the State Department of Health to send a specialist to the stricken section. Except in rare cases older people appear to be immune.

BUICK'S MASTER CONTRIBUTION TO GEAR-SHIFTING AND GETAWAY

Silent Syncro-Mesh

in all BUICK Straight Eights including the Series priced from $1025 to $1095 f.o.b. Flint, Mich.

Automotive experts pronounce the Syncro-Mesh Transmission one of the outstanding engineering advancements of the last two decades, comparable in importance to four-wheel brakes and the electric starter.

Here is what this remarkable new feature means to drivers of Buick's four great eights in terms of vastly improved safety, quietness of operation, getaway and handling ease.

● The Syncro-Mesh Transmission adds greatly to the safety of Buick travel. Going down long hills or on icy pavements, when it becomes necessary to slow down—one can shift instantly into second without effort or clash, and the engine is thus used as a brake, providing maximum control at all times.

● The Syncro-Mesh Transmission brings safety and silence to gear-shifting. Gears can be shifted smoothly and silently from first to second, second to high, and from high back to second, always easily, always without clash. . . . Quick and easy shifting provides greater control and safety.

● The Syncro-Mesh Transmission helps to give wings to Buick at the traffic light. Second speed gears are quiet and smooth and the car can be accelerated up to 45 miles plus in this gear, then quickly and quietly into high, thus giving remarkably fast getaway.

● The Syncro-Mesh Transmission makes every driver an expert in gear-shifting. So perfectly are the gears synchronised, so easily do they operate, that shifting is a joy instead of a task. Drive a Buick and know the joy of expert shifting to all gears—quick, quiet, effortless and safe.

All Buick models—priced from $1025 to $2035 at factory—provide the fine advantages of the Syncro-Mesh Transmission as well as Buick's Valve-in-Head Straight Eight Engine, Torque Tube Drive and Insulated Body by Fisher. America awards the Eight as Buick Builds It 56 out of every 100 sales of the fifteen eights in its price class—an extraordinary tribute to extraordinary dollar-value.

RELIEF OF VETERANS.

Secretary Mellon's unqualified opposition to cash payment of veterans' adjusted compensation certificates leaves little chance for enactment of a measure for that purpose. The effect of his testimony, added to Gen. Hines' analysis of the various bills on this subject, is to convince most people who are giving serious thought to the question that Congress will not convert the veterans' insurance into cash. No argument that has been advanced warrants such action, while there is a preponderance of evidence that is favorable to increasing the loan value of the certificates.

The Secretary of the Treasury views the question from a broad economic standpoint. If bonds were issued to raise the $3,400,000,000 necessary to make immediate cash settlements with all veterans they would absorb about one-half of all the capital that is available for long-term investment in the United States, during a normal year. Funds available for purchase of Government bonds issued in the regular course of fiscal operations would be depleted. Interest rates would be increased and the security markets would be disorganized. Mr. Mellon believes that any benefits to the veterans and any temporary stimulation of business that might be expected from veterans' expenditures would be more than offset by the derangement of the country's finances.

There is a strong disposition in Congress, however, to look at the problem from the viewpoint of the veteran as well as from that of the Treasury. Many veterans are in distress. If Congress can devise a plan that will afford them relief without sacrificing their endowment policies and without jeopardizing the financial program of the Government, it will probably be enacted into law. Apparently this can be done only by increasing the loan value of certificates to an amount that would not put a staggering burden upon the Treasury. In this way the veterans would retain an equity in their certificates and protection for their families in event of their death. The purpose for which the endowment policies were authorized would be preserved. Veterans would be able to obtain funds for their immediate needs, but they would not be tempted to remain on the unemployed list until their endowment was exhausted.

No one would think of asking citizens to surrender their life insurance policies for the sake of increasing the money in circulation. Congress can not ask veterans to make such a sacrifice, even though some of them are willing to do so. Under present circumstances the veterans' insurance affords relief to thousands of families in distress. If the certificates were converted into cash they would produce an artificial stimulus for a few months, but in the end all families of veterans would suffer.

The Senate finance committee and the House ways and means committee might well concentrate their attention on a measure to extend the borrowing privileges of veterans. The status of the Treasury and the welfare of the veterans and their families seem to forbid Congress to go further than that.

NIAGARA FALLS.

Preservation of Niagara Falls has become a subject of interest throughout the country. It is well known that the river is gradually annihilating this magnificent cataract. Since the recent demonstration of nature's destructive work sentiment in favor of preservative measures has become very active. In suggesting to the Canadian government that the International Niagara Board meet to deliberate on this subject President Hoover gives expression to the general desire.

Geologists say that it would require thousands of years for the falls to "commit suicide." This does not mean, however, that their scenic value may not be impaired. The crumbling of a section of the cliff on the American side may not indicate anything unusual, but geologists expect other sections of the escarpment to fall in the near future. This is perhaps not so serious as is the comparatively rapid erosion of the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side.

In 1928 the International Niagara Board reported:

> In the interests of the more than 2,000,000 annual visitors to this scenic center it is most desirable that the measures for providing a substantial betterment of the spectacle should be inaugurated at an early date.

The board rejected all elaborate plans for works in the main rapids as destructive of some of the principal scenic effects. Obviously the public would object to any plans that would give the falls an artificial appearance, but careful methods of controlling the flow of water over the brink might add centuries to the natural life of this unique spectacle.

It is to be hoped that the public will not relinquish interest in the subject until every practical step for preservation of the falls without impairment of their natural beauty has been taken.

WILL THE RED CROSS PERISH?

The fundamental principle upon which the Red Cross was founded and has been built is that of voluntary aid for those in distress. The Red Cross is not a Government bureau. It is an association to which any American is privileged to belong, through which Americans may spend of their time, energy and money for the relief of those stricken by disaster and for the mitigation of distress. If the Red Cross were to depart from these principles it would cease to exist.

In refusing to accept the responsibility for administering the $25,000,000 general relief fund provided in a bill passed by the Senate and now pending in the House, the Red Cross seeks only to guard against its own disintegration. "It is the sense of the central committee," says its resolution, "that the Red Cross is in a position adequately to complete the task it has undertaken in the drought-stricken areas, and it hereby assumes the responsibility of completing said task without public appropriations." How could the Red Cross do otherwise than refuse to accept the appropriation voted by the Senate? With such a precedent, the organization never again would be able to raise funds for disaster relief from the people themselves.

Senator Robinson, minority leader, says that if the Red Cross will not accept Government relief funds, Congress will set up its own agencies for their distribution. Here is a novel idea for the direct relief of unemployment. The Red Cross says that to administer the $25,000,000 fund would necessitate the duplication of relief facilities already functioning in various centers. Senator Robinson, however, has no fear of the effect of duplicating relief agencies. Each of the Senate's relief distribution centers would have to be manned with expert relief-dispensers. By creating these jobs alone the Senate would do a good deal to relieve unemployment. This is a time when patronage can be turned to extraordinarily good account, and here is an unparalleled opportunity to create jobs, jobs and more jobs. The only drawback to the Robinson plan is that the fund would be eaten up by the jobholders, and the starving would get no food.

The insistence upon a $25,000,000 appropriation from the Treasury to feed the hungry, when the Red Cross stands ready to do that work, has reached the stage of political insanity. The Senate's action has not only held up the seed loans to farmers, but it has struck a deadly blow at the world's most noble system of relief to human beings in terrible emergencies. No other system has ever been devised which could deal so promptly and adequately with human distress. The Red Cross is the pride of all Americans. They have responded to its call as if it were the voice of conscience itself, well knowing that the Red Cross, through its voluntary workers in every community, is the only agency by which wholesale death can be averted. Now a branch of the Government virtually asks Americans to quit their support of the Red Cross. It is a reckless and astounding act of folly on the part of the Senate.

The House can prevent this folly from destroying the Red Cross. The Senate's amendment should be rejected, and public faith in the Red Cross should be reassured by knowledge that the United States Government will not strike it down.

NO EMBARGO ON OIL.

Having failed in their effort to interest Congress in a tariff duty upon petroleum the so-called independent oil producers are proposing that an embargo be placed upon all petroleum imports, without regard to the country of origin. Committees of Congress are about to hold hearings upon this proposal.

These producers evidently do not realize that an embargo is an act which, if taken without provocation, is universally regarded as so unfriendly as to be a precursor of war. It is warranted in international law only as a "nonamicable measure of redress, short of war." No nation holding friendly intercourse with another will impose an embargo upon its goods or ships. With many nations the United States has treaty relations which would be violated by an embargo on petroleum. But whether it is bound by treaty or not, an embargo upon another nation's goods is a hostile act.

In some quarters it is supposed that an embargo upon goods from Soviet Russia would constitute a sound precedent for an embargo upon petroleum from all countries. But this is not so. The United States does not maintain intercourse with Soviet Russia, and has already laid an embargo upon the flotation of Soviet bonds in this country. An embargo upon all goods from Russia is not only justifiable, but is necessary for the protection of American labor against the competition of forced and convict labor of Russia. Such an embargo would be nonamicable, but it is warranted in international law, and no treaty or friendly relationship stands in the way of its enforcement.

The United States will not make enemies of friendly nations by placing an embargo upon petroleum. Those nations have not committed any acts which call for such a flagrant attack upon their commerce. But even if they should not retaliate, with ruinous effect upon American exports, an embargo upon petroleum would harm American citizens vastly more than it would damage foreign nations. The immediate result would be an increase in price of petroleum and gasoline, affecting every automobile owner in the country.

The maintenance of good relations with unoffending foreign nations is a bar against an embargo of any kind. It is impossible to impose a petroleum embargo and remain friends with nations that are wronged.

The imposition of a prohibitively high tariff duty upon petroleum would be a purely domestic act against which no foreign nation could justly take offense. But an embargo is a measure to be taken only as a means of redressing wrongs, such as are committed against the United States by Soviet Russia when it dumps convict-made goods in the American market.

SELECTION OF JUDGES.

Attorney General Mitchell has made a public issue of the President's right to select Federal judges. The question is one that may well be brought into the open for discussion. The people do not approve the distribution of judgeships as patronage, and they will stand by President Hoover in his efforts to abolish politics in connection with the judiciary.

The President is responsible for the men selected for the Federal bench. Naturally, he welcomes suggestions from senators, who are acquainted with individuals in their States. As a matter of practical procedure a senator from the State where the vacancy occurs submits a name for consideration. The Attorney General investigates the qualifications of the individual in question and advises the President accordingly.

When a candidate is found to be unqualified by the Department of Justice, the senator should submit another name. In the case over which the present controversy has arisen Senator Schall, of Minnesota, insists upon appointment of a man who is considered incompetent by the Department of Justice. His position is untenable. Certainly he can not contend that Minnesota has but one man who is qualified for a Federal judgeship. The President extends to him, by reason of a long-standing practice, the right to suggest nominees for the Federal bench. But the President can not be expected to favor any individual whose qualifications are called into question.

President Hoover is to be commended for his efforts to build up a strong judiciary. He makes political considerations subordinate to personal qualifications. Only politicians who are more interested in the building up of political machines than in an impartial administration of justice can object to such a stand.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF

From the Diary of John Quincy Adams, May 22, 1820.

I called upon Mr. [John C.] Calhoun, and he went with me to Mr. Thomas Law's, in Prince Georges County. On the ride we had much conversation upon various topics * * * We conversed upon politics—past, present and future. Calhoun's anticipations are gloomy. He says there has been within these two years an immense revolution of fortunes in every part of the Union; enormous numbers of persons utterly ruined; multitudes in deep distress; and a general mass of disaffection to the Government, not concentrated in any particular direction, but ready to seize upon any event and looking out anywhere for a leader. The Missouri question and the debates on the tariff were merely incidental to this state of things. It was a vague but widespread discontent, caused by the disordered circumstances of individuals, but resulting in a general impression that there was something radically wrong in the administration of the Government.

These observations are undoubtedly well founded. The disease is apparent, the remedy not discernible. The primary cause is that which has been the scourge of this country from its colonial infancy—speculations in paper currency, now appearing in the shape of banks; the great multiplication, followed by the sudden and severe reduction, of fictitious capital; then the great falling off in the price of all our principal articles of exportation, the competition of foreign manufactures carried on by starving workmen, with ours loaded with high wages, the diminution of commerce and the carrying trade, and the accumulation of debt as long as credit could be strained—all this, with ambitious and crafty and disappointed men on the watch for every misfortune, and welcoming every disaster, together with the elated hopes, the dazzling promise, and the mortifying reverses of the Florida treaty, accounts too well for the loss of popularity by the administration within the last year.

Yet the dissatisfaction is not general against the Government. The suffering interests have too much disposition to turn against each other. Their oppositions will terminate in struggles to place their respective champions in the next Congress. New York, the most deeply dissatisfied State, is so nearly divided against itself that its opposite disaffections will destroy each other. So will the agricultural and manufacturing parties; and I do not expect that the votes in the next Congress, upon any great point of internal or national policy, will materially differ from those of the present Congress on the same questions.

But whatever the result of the present inauspicious circumstances may be, they must work out their own termination. Government can do nothing, at least nothing by any measure yet proposed, but transfer discontents, and propitiate one class of people by disgusting another. Were it possible by wishes or exertions to devise an efficacious remedy, they would not be wanting. As it is, the arbiters of weal and woe, the healers and destroyers, Time and Chance, must bring the catastrophe or cure. As one of the agents, I have but one formula suited to all occasions—"Thy will be done."

Yes, That's Why He Dreads It.

SHORT CIRCUITS.

Egregious Fallacy.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: It seems so inexplicable, now, doesn't it, that millions of people don't want to stop drinking because you got a law to that effect? More inexplicable that anybody fancied they would.

Or Be Uncontented.

Minneapolis Journal: The Izaak Walton League advises farmers to raise pheasants, rabbits and other wild game on their farms and sell shooting privileges to hunters. Under such conditions, the cows will have to learn trench life.

"Guaranteed."

Frazee Press: A press report from Louisville, Ky., says that Federal prohibition agents have discovered indisputable evidence of an honest bootlegging organization. A cache of liquor was unearthed last week, half the bottles labeled "Pure Old Panther Juice, aged in woodshed. Bottled in barn. Guaranteed 36 hours old by the Moonshiner's Uplift Society."

Suggestion.

Spokane Spokesman-Review: At Washington a celebrated Spanish pianist stopped short in the middle of a Mozart concerto and waited until a lady got through coughing. This was hard on all concerned. Our suggestion is that during the cold-in-the-chest season pianists play nothing but extremely modern pieces, which are helped, if anything, by a little coughing in the audience.

UNCLE SAM'S WEALTH.

In a tabulation of the wealth of the four richest nations the Emporia Gazette finds that Great Britain led in 1860 and the United States brought up the rear. By 1900 the United States led by a small margin. In 1914 the estimated wealth of the United States not only topped all the others, but was just about equal to that of the other three combined, and in 1929 the estimated total wealth of the United States was almost exactly double that of Great Britain, France and Germany combined. At all four periods the relative standing of Great Britain, Germany and France remained the same, and remains the same today in that order.

In 70 years it appears that the wealth of the three European nations has just about doubled in each case; that of the United States has increased more than sixteen-fold. And since 1914, despite the war, the wealth of the three European nations is just about where it was when the war began, while the United States has increased in wealth by 250 per cent.

Such figures are misleading in some respects, but not relatively to one another. If wealth were computed today on the same adjusted measure of value as in 1914 it would be found that instead of holding their own the European countries have lost ground by not less than 35 per cent and the United States has gained less than 100 per cent.

JANET TELLS EVERYTHING SHE KNOWS.

When we've company for tea
Our finest silverware we see,
And when it is a special night
We always eat by candle-light.
Instead of bread there's buttered rolls,
And at the finish, finger bowls!

When company is here I get
A wobbly glass I may upset,
And several forks from which to choose
And mother tells me which to use.
I also have to sit up straight
And let the servant fill my plate.

When I see Anna walk about
And get the big blue dishes out,
And count the chairs and make a fuss
The way she doesn't do for us,
I always know there's going to be
A lot of company for tea.

And then I know I mustn't sprawl,
Or say: "I don't like that at all!"
Or give a tug at Anna's skirt
And ask her what is for dessert.
But very still I'm made to sit,
And I am not so fond of it!

The Lordly Palm Can Live Nowhere Except Where Nature Developed It.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

NOTHING in this world endures except the work of Nature.

In the ancient lands that cradled civilization, a mound of earth and sand marks the site of a long-dead city. Diggers expose the broken walls of temples and dwellings used by men two thousand years ago, and wonder what catastrophe overwhelmed a city so great and proud. But this is not the end. Beneath the ruins of the buried city the diggers find another, and beneath that a third, each in its turn buried and forgotten before the newer city rose above it.

Each civilization thought itself a fixture and its temples everlasting, but they were artificial things and Nature turned them to dust again.

In the jungles of Asia and of Central America are the ruins of long-forgotten cities, unknown and unseen by modern men until a new pathway was found through the air. Ages ago men cleared away the jungle, built their cities of stone, paved highways, held their heads high because of the property they owned. Then the men died and the jungle crept back to reclaim the little space taken from it. "The lion and the lizard keep the courts where Jamshyd gloried and drank deep."

Patient men, selecting parent stock with infinite care generation after generation, develop a superior breed of cattle or poultry or swine; but their methods are artificial and Nature undoes their work when their backs are turned.

The goldfish, developed artificially in pools and bowls, loses its glory when returned to running water and becomes again an unlovely carp. Nature will not preserve a type unless she develops it herself.

Consider now the ways of men.

Untold centuries before the beginning of recorded history, when men learned by the slow and painful process of trial and error, hard experience began to build the racial store of wisdom.

It was Nature's way—a patient business of trying new ideas, discarding the follies that resulted in bedlam, and preserving the customs and standards that were wise.

Are you alarmed when this generation tries to remake mankind—to equalize the sexes, to relieve children of discipline, to rob marriage of its sanctity, to destroy religion?

You need not fear. The customs and fads of a year or a generation are not natural growths. They are artificial mushrooms. They are man's work.

And the only ways that can endure are the ways developed by Nature—the old ways tried and proved by the wisdom of the ages.

PRO AND CON

Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great Show, "Politics," Staged in Congress.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

It is regrettable that a difference of opinion should prevail between officials of the Red Cross on the one hand and a group of members of both houses in Congress over the question of how to supply the society with funds for relief work. While this controversy rages, thousands and thousands of persons in the drought-stricken regions are suffering for the want of the necessities of life. Every day of delay increases their suffering, undermines their health and accentuates the threat of death from starvation.

Some of the senators express the doubt that the Red Cross is able to raise by popular subscription $10,000,000 at this time. The success of the campaign certainly is jeopardized by pending legislation proposing a gift from the Federal Treasury of $25,000,000. Contributions doubtless will be slow from private individuals until they know whether public funds are to be available or not. Congress ought to act immediately on the $25,000,000 Federal appropriation, so that both the Red Cross and the people will know where they stand. Immediate relief is imperative.

Goodby, Howell Bill.

New York Times.

The Howell bill would have added seizure and search in homes to the popular irritants. Its displacement, which means its defeat, was accomplished by a combination of those reasonable drys who do not want the burdens of enforcement multiplied when the officials are already proved unable to carry the present ones, and the wets who hope to modify or repeal existing laws and therefore are opposed to new ones.

Queer College.

Minneapolis Journal.

Senator Norris has a bill for the abolition of the Electoral College. The college has one point in its favor that is generally overlooked. It has never called on the Government for $100,000,000 for an endowment.

Specious Wheat Dole.

New York World.

The senators from the wheat-growing States who have supported this measure are either nobly unselfish or else egregiously shortsighted. Any release of the wheat held by the Farm Board, no matter for what purpose, is bound to have a depressing effect on current prices. Every bushel of Farm Board wheat given to the distressed people in the drought area displaces a bushel which might have been bought from the farmers. Of course, the Farm Board might take the money it receives for this wheat and buy an equivalent amount in the open market to replace what it has given up. Have the wheat-belt senators received assurance that it will do this? If so, the designation of the Capper bill as a relief measure is misleading. Relief is a secondary consideration.

Bonus, Then Pensions.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Secretary Mellon's statement of the strain that would be imposed on the Government's finances by the cash bonus plan has been widely published. A bond issue running into the billions would be the alternative to huge increase in taxes which the country would not stand for. Of course, the taxpayers would foot the bill in the end. The cost to the Treasury and the ultimate disadvantage to the veterans are considerations that must be weighed. But overshadowing even these matters is the fact that to redeem the certificates now would hasten the day when the men who served in the World War would demand pensions in addition.

Forbearance.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Mr. Nutt, Speaking for Pop-Eyed Fans, Holds That Five to Ten Runs a Game Are About Right.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just enjoyed reading the article by Baseball Expert Frank H. Young, in which he presents statistics showing how effective the batters have become within recent years.

"In games in which the victors scored at least ten runs," says your expert, "the Nationals won 28 and lost 11, the Yankees won 33 and lost 22, Philadelphia won 23 and lost 13, and the records of the other clubs were: Cleveland, won 21, lost 18; Detroit, won 12, lost 22; St. Louis, won 10, lost 20, and Boston won 5, lost 18."

With these figures in mind, I am led to ask, What, in order to get the best out of baseball, would be the proper score limit per game?

Of course, there is a limit beyond which a game is in danger of becoming more or less comic. My guess is that the common run of fans would make that limit anywhere from 10 to 20.

I agree with Dr. Henry Ward Bleecher that as a usual thing a low-score game is not as good as one in which the batters give us some idea of what's swat in baseball.

What I am thinking about is a game in which neither side makes more than three runs—but how!

I admit that such a game may be mighty exciting when great pitching is backed up by miraculous fielding. But speaking as a "pop-eyed fan," my Wickersham is that games of not less than 3 nor more than 10 runs on a side furnish the best all-round baseball refreshment.

F. E. A. NUTT.

Three Per Cent a Month Not Too Much for Short-Time Small Loans.

To the Editor of The Washington Post—Sir: Permit me to suggest that those who object to the bill permitting an interest charge of 3 per cent a month on loans are at fault because of an incorrect point of view.

They think of loans with which they are familiar, failing to give strict consideration to the fact that the bill is predicated on the need of people of small means for financial help in an emergency. That is to say, it should be viewed distinctly as a short-term, small-loan bill.

As a rough illustration it may be said that the loans contemplated by the bill are in a class with the loan of a rowboat, a horse, an automobile, a piano, a typewriter, a tool chest, a steam shovel or a dress suit. It is obvious that when such loans are negotiated as a matter of business, the fair return for a month or so must be high in comparison with that of ordinary loans.

The objection to an annual interest at 36 per cent is sound, as such a rate over a long period is usury.

Too much sentiment in the drafting of such a measure as that in question may do more harm than good. I think the 3 per cent a month bill is about as satisfactory as in the nature of things is reasonably possible. CITIZEN.

Everybody Honors Washington, Without Pay, Exclaims Lafayette—All Except Cramton.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Awakened by The Washington Post's editorial of January 23 on the George Washington Bicentennial directorship, the shade of Lafayette expresses himself:

He put away the cannon and the sabre
To build a better nation than his neighbor;
So now they beat a pathway to his door.
Here they come—Kings, Queens and Sages
And Sol (whoopee!) without wages,
Bringing bloom for history's pages!
All come trooping, all the ages
Come to praise him—as of yore.
I, too, laurels bring. J'adore!

Don't Disturb That Cherished Landmark of the Republic, the Washington Monument.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I decidedly like the purport of recent letters to The Post deprecating any attempt to "improve" the Washington Monument by substituting a more ornamental for its present simple setting. Admitting the possibility of improvement, I think it better to forego the attempt, lest it result after all, in tawdry discordance.

Probably next to the Capitol in the thoughts of sight-seeing tourists on their approach to the seat of Government is the Washington Monument. For generations it has been made pictorially familiar to the public in books, magazines and newspapers. As a symbol of solid citizenship it stands first.

Why at this late day disturb one of the most devoutly cherished landmarks of the republic?

FEDERALIST.

Men Put Back to Work—Employers Could Put More Back.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I think we can figure that 500,000 workingmen have gone back to work in this country since the advent of 1931. That should bring some prosperity, because 500,000 families will be buying in a normal way as soon as the bread winner gets his pay envelope. If the managers of industry could employ 3,000,000 more workingmen they would get 3,000,000 more families buying and all lines of industry would benefit, from canned goods and shoes to automobiles. This should be an easy matter if we consider that in America there are more than 3,000,000 people engaged in business who hire help. Add one more to the pay roll and stop unemployment. ALICE PAYLER.

Fair Weather Aids Work on Schools

Projects on Which Contracts Have Been Let Are Well Under Way.

Fair and mild weather for the last few weeks has aided the progress of construction work on five District schools or additions, Maj. H. L. Robb, Assistant District Commissioner, said yesterday, and as a consequence the projects on which contracts have been let recently are well under way.

The schools on which work has been started, the contract prices, and the contract dates of completion are: Charles Young Platoon, $199,850, September 1; Lafayette, $103,190, July 1; Horace Mann, $107,000, June 15; Crosby Noyes, $68,445, June 1, and Whittier, $83,000, July 16.

Plans are now near completion on the Western and Dunbar High School athletic fields, on which bids were rejected recently because they exceeded the amounts available. Consequently the specifications are being curtailed to meet the money in hand.

AGREEMENT IS NEAR ON MALL RAIL LINE

Officials to Meet Tomorrow; Value Set on Property Government Wants.

ESTIMATED AT $207,000

District authorities are understood to be near agreement with officials of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway Co. over the value of the tracks of the line in the Mall Triangle. A conference at which a bill is expected to be approved has been called for 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the corporation counsel's office.

A series of conferences have been held between the street railway company representatives and Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and his assistant, William A. Roberts, for the past several weeks. The Public Utilities Commission's engineering department has meanwhile made a survey of the property within the area and estimated it to be worth $207,000.

While the initial offer for sale of the railway company is understood to be well above this figure, it is expected that a compromise price will be agreed upon.

Four possible solutions are open to the railway line after their present terminal and tracks in the Triangle are taken over by the Federal Government. One is to reroute the tracks in the District; another is to end the railway at the Virginia side of the Highway Bridge and to provide buses to bring passengers into Washington; a third is to make a transfer arrangement with the Washington Railway & Electric Co. at Water street, and a fourth is the scrapping of the entire line in favor of buses.

THRONGS JOIN CHASE AFTER TWO ROBBERS

Chicago Motorist Pins One Youth, 19, Down Against Curb With Auto.

$150 LOOT IS RECOVERED

Chicago, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A battle royal raged on Michigan Boulevard today—close by the site of old Fort Dearborn.

Bullets whizzed instead of arrows; an automobile instead of a tomahawk.

When the smoke cleared away, police had arrested two Negro robbers who had held up a boulevard clothing shop; three bystanders and a policeman had been shot—none seriously; a motorist had battered one of the robbers against the curb, pinioning him; and $150 loot had been recovered.

The Negroes entered the shop, one of the Baskin chain, tied up three clerks, a girl cashier, and a customer with wire and fled with the $150 in cash.

One of the clerks freed himself, dashed on to the boulevard yelling "Stop, thief!" Noonday throngs took up the cry; a mounted traffic cop joined the chase. The bandits fired, police returning shot for shot. One of the Negroes was cornered in an alley; a motorist deliberately knocked the other against the curb, holding him there beneath his car for the law.

The Negroes said they were Clarence Hughes, 19, and Isadore Wilkins, 19.

Today's robbery was the third spectacular store robbery, or attempt, in Chicago in the last few days. One guard was killed and another wounded Saturday night in an attempted robbery at the Hillman Food Store in the loop. The bandits fled without obtaining $18,000 they sought. The Wieboldt Department Store at Lincoln and Ashland avenues was robbed of $19,200 Monday and a policeman and bystander wounded.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

—With NELSON B. BELL—

T may add something to the pleasurable anticipation of Washington picturegoers to know that "Cimarron" was hailed as one of the finest pictures of its kind ever released, upon the recent occasion of its New York premiere at the Globe Theater. So far, my examinations of the Gotham press have failed to turn up even one dissenting voice among the reliable commentators upon the past, present and probable future state of the cinema. The unanimity is as complete as it was in the Capital a week ago when two invited audiences were accorded previews of this expansive picturization of Edna Ferber's novel of the peopling and the growth of the vast Southwest.

All this is very heartening—or should be to those who have not yet seen "Cimarron"—because the Radio Pictures epic is due at the RKO-Keith Theater a week from tomorrow night at the 9 o'clock performance, unless present plans are suddenly

Among the many qualities of this film which impressed me particularly at the Congressional showing was that it managed unfailingly to strike the consciousness of the spectator with the fact that he was not viewing the passing of the Old West, but the coming of the new. There is nothing post mortem or clinical about "Cimarron;" it is an epic of courage, enterprise, building and growth. More than any other picture I have ever seen, it catches the real spirit of America. Creation, not destruction.

And despite its period and locale—the attrbiutes that make it a "Western"—"Cimarron," it seems to me, is in essence an indoor picture. I mean to say that during the 40 years covered by the story, we in the pews out front are more concerned about what goes on inside the four walls of the structures that spring up out of the prairie than we are in what transpires out on that prairie. This interest is fostered until at the climax of the pictured narrative we find ourselves perfectly at home in a luxury hotel in a wide-awake and modern metropolis, peopled by the same characters we met first in a wagon train, but tricked out in the trappings of city folks.

There is nothing of futility in "Cimarron;" it is an epic of achievement—and pretty good medicine, incidentally, for this period of depression. If they could do it, we must be a fine lot of dumbbells not to be able to!

Speaking of RKO-Keith's reminds me that, as announced here a fortnight ago, tomorrow night will inaugurate the new scheme of opening the new bills at the Fifteenth street house with the 9 o'clock Friday night performance each week. As I understand it, those attending the 7 o'clock final showing of "The Gang Buster" tomorrow night will be privileged also t oremain through the presentation of "The Royal Family of Broadway," making—if you ask me—a nice long show.

This policy will be adhered to for a sufficient length of time to give it a thorough test. If it catches on with the public, it will be made permanent.

This seems to be a day of reminders. A cordial note from "three little letters"—which happen to be real initials, more's the wonder—recalls to mind that not so long ago, when Allan Rogers introduced Grace Moore to a Loew audience, he claimed remote relationship to Jenny Lind, whom Miss Moore impersonated in "A Lady's Morals.' Although I am not sure that Mr. Rogers will be back in time to make the introduction, the opportunity bids fair to be repeated.

Following "The Eeasiest Way," next week's attraction at the Palace, the screen feature will be Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "The New Moon," co-starring Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore. By merest coindidence Miss Moore will appear in concert at Constitution Hall on Tuesday, February 10, during the run of "The New Moon" on F street. It is not unlikely that while in town she will look in on her picture audiences again, as shed id when here to sing at one of Mrs. Townsend's musicales.

Jeanne Aubert, the French singing comedienne playing the role of Denise Torel in Schwab and Mandel's production of "America's Sweetheart," at the National, attended the midnight screening of Rene Clair's "Sous les Toits de Paris" at the Rialto Tuesday night, she having watched it in course of filming in Paris and being a warm personal friend of both Albert Prejean and Pola Illery, who play the leads.

Mlle. Aubert I found an even more charming woman than I had suspected from her earlier performance the same evening singing Torel's torch songs and exercising that temperamental star's seductive wiles upon the malleable but rebellious Mr. Gus Shy, in the jovial Hollywood travesty currently occupying Mr. Rapley's commodious playhouse.

Furthermore, she entertained her own notions as to how American audiences might react to "Under the Roofs of Paris," which will be duly—I hope—expounded in the Motion Picture department of the Sabbath issue of this authoritative and tonic family journal. Five cents at all newsstands—buy them by the bundle!—(Adv.)

Before becoming engrossed in the blonde topic of Miss Aubert again, as is ape to happen any time after one has met her, it might be well to mention that next week's attractions in the downtown, first-run cinemagogues will be approximately as follows: Fox, Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor, in "The Man Who Came Back," and Fanchon & Marco's "Gems and Jams" stage revue; Earle, Barbara Stanwyck and Ricardo Cortez, in "Illicit," and Benny Rubin in person heading the vaudeville bill; Palace, "Constance Bennett, Robert Montgomery and Adolphe Menjou, in "The Easiest Way" and "Loew's Vaudeville Revue" on the stage; RKO-Keith's, Ina Claire, Frederick, Fredric March, Henrietta Crosman and Mary Bryan, in "The Royal Family of Broadway;" Rialto, Ben Lyon and Raquel Torres, in "Aloha;" Columbia, Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, in "Reducing," second week; Metropolitan, Saturday through Tuesday, Walter Huston, in "The Criminal Code," and Wednesday through Friday, February 6, Charles Farrell and Maureen O'Sullivan, in "The Princess and the Plumber.

With the opening tomorrow at the Fox of "The Man Who Came Back," the first costarring vehicle for Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor in over a year, doors will be thrown open to the public an hour earlier than usual on both Friday and Staurday. Doors will open at 10 a. m., with the first presentation of the feature at 10:30. Five de luxe performances, as we say down by the gas house, includnig the "Gems and Jams" stage show, Bob West's organlogue and all the rest of the trimmings, will be given both days—which is one of the reasons vaudeville actors and musicians eventually make those funny noises and begin tugging at the straitjacket!

They tell me that Ina Claire's reputation for being well dressed won't suffer any from the duds she wears in "The Royal Family of Broadway," coming into RKO-Keith's.

An original Chanel evening gown, a [illegible] chinchilla coat and another evening gown of gold lame are conspicuous in the wardrobe flaunted by the former Miss Fegan, of Washington.

The "lame" peratins to the Paramount bankroll after the modiste had been paid off!

With weather like this, how is your doobodis getting along—if eddy?

Sewer Removal Work Will Start

Preliminary Plans Made for Construction of New Justice Building.

Because of the determination of the Treasury Department to start construction work on the new Department of Justice, Interstate Commerce Commission and the Archives Building in the Mall Triangle by July 1, the District Engineering Department began drafting plans yesterday for removing water mains, sewers and other underground work in the area.

Several streets will be closed about April 1, according to Assistant Engineer Commissioner Hugh P. Oram, as condemnation proceedings will be concluded at that time.

The streets to be closed include Thirteenth and Thirteenth-and-a-half streets from B street to Ohio avenue, Ohio avenue from Twelfth to Thirteenth street, Louisiana avenue from Tenth street to Pennsylvania avenue, C street from Ninth to Tenth street and from Twelfth to Thirteenth streets.

Wife Claims Cruelty In Asking for Divorce

Alleging that since she lost her job with the Government, her husband has treated her cruelly, Winifred M. Riley, of Kentucky avenue southeast, near South Carolina avenue, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to grant her a limited divorce from Harry E. Riley, of the Diamond Cab Co. She also asks alimony.

Mrs. Riley charges that nine months after they were married her husband deserted her. Later, she says, they were reunited, adding that on January 6 she was forced to leave.

MAN, SIX CHILDREN DIE AS HOME BURNS

Mother Stumbles From House After Railroad Engineer Blows Whistle.

TWO OTHERS ARE SAVED

Williamsport, Pa., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Clyde Smith, 33, and six children ranging in ages from 4 to 17 years, were burned to death when fire destroyed their home at Powys, 7 miles north of this city, early today.

The mother escaped, badly burned, with a 2-month-old infant. A son, 9, also made his way to safety.

The dead, in addition to the father, are Frederick, 17; Marian, 16; Darfida, 14; Catherine, 11; Max, 8 and Gerald, 4.

The fire was discovered by a railroad engineer when his train passed the house. He blew the engine whistle in an effort to arouse the family, and then continued to Trout Run, a short distance north, and reported it. Just as help reached the burning house, Mrs. Smith, with the infant in her arms, stumbled from the front door. The son, Howard, aged 9, was with her. The mother's night clothing was burned from her body and the baby was also burned.

What Is Gum-Dipping?

Gum-Dipping

is the Firestone trade name for that patented, basic process which makes Firestone Tires fundamentally different from all other tires. It is one of the reasons why Firestone, through many years, has easily been able to make good the statement: "Most miles per dollar." It is not something done to a tire after it is made. It is something very vital done before the tire is made.

To grasp the full significance of Gum-Dipping, it is necessary to know something about how a tire is made and what goes on within a tire on the road. The body of the tire bears the principal strains in service. To it is attached the tread which provides traction and takes the wear of the road.

The usual tire body is built up of layers or plies of cotton cords between which rubber has been forced. Rubber is incompressible. Hence the tire body practically does not expand or contract to meet road shocks. It flexes—that is, it changes form.

The strain of the flexing tends to pull the plies apart and also to pull the cords themselves apart. A tire flexes about seven hundred times in a mile—which gives some idea of the strains and the friction which a tire must endure.

The great enemy to tire life is internal friction. Years ago the fabric was square-woven—and the cotton cords sawed, one across another.

If cotton rubs against cotton, the tire soon heats up and collapses. That is why the square-woven fabric tires were so short-lived. Then came the tires with parallel cords that could not saw each other. The best square-woven fabric tire would go scarcely four thousand miles. A poor cord tire will give at least twice that mileage. Making the cords parallel was a great advance—but it was only part of the battle against internal friction.

It was realized that if the fibers of cotton in a cord could be insulated one from another, then a step-up in tire life could be had comparable to that made by shifting from square-woven fabric to parallel cords. That is what all tire makers have been striving for. That is what Firestone has achieved.

Every cord used in Firestone Tires has been treated with a rubber solution which penetrates every cord and coats every fiber; and thus not only the cords, but also the very fibers within them are insulated.

Eight pounds of fine, pure rubber are, by the patented Gum-Dipping process, integrated into every one hundred pounds of cotton cords. This means three extra pounds of pure rubber added to an average set of tires—and added where it means most to the strength and the life of the tire. This extra rubber all goes into the cords of the tire—where you never see it.

Why

does Firestone put in this extra value? And what does it mean to you? It means just this. The performance—the extra value—has been shown for years on the road and in the laboratory. It has been proved that Gum-Dipping —increases the flexing life of a cotton cord by 58%.

—increases tire life by from 25% to over 40%, according to the severity of the service—the more severe the service, the higher the percentage.

Firestone

Gum-Dipped Tires are not just tires. They are thirty years of organized experience. They are sold only through Firestone Service Dealers and Service Stores and only as Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires—bearing the Firestone name and bearing the Firestone emblem that appears on this page.

Wherever you live—

city or country—a fresh and complete stock of Firestone products is near-by.

EDWINA BOOTH DENIES 'LOVE PIRACY' CHARGE

fied she did not know Renaldo was married until the boat on which the film company went to South Africa was sailing through the Red Sea. She said another member of the party then informed her the actor had a wife and 4-year-old son.

"Is it true that you made love to Duncan Renaldo," Shapiro asked.

"I certainly did not," Miss Booth replied.

"Did you tell your former husband, Anthony Schuck, Renaldo was completely in your power, even to the point of killing himself if you would not marry him?"

"Absolutely not."

"Did you write your former husband that you searched Renaldo's trunk obtaining photos belonging to Renaldo's wife and also letters she wrote him?"

Miss Booth refused to answer. On advice of her counsel she refused to answer other questions concerning annulment recently of her marriage to Schunk.

The blonde actress emphatically denied she ever asked Renaldo to divorce his wife so she could marry him. Instead, Miss Booth testified, she urged Renaldo to return to his wife.

Several times Miss Booth almost screamed her answers.

AN appeal for contributions to the Red Cross drought relief fund will be made by Gen. John J. Pershing tomorrow evening. Miss Mabel T. Boardman, national secretary of the organization, will introduce him. The program will be distributed over a nation-wide network and heard here from WMAL, 8:15 p. m.

Everett Sanders, secretary to former President Coolidge, will speak in behalf of the Community Chest this evening (WRC, 5:55 p.m.). Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer will voice an appeal for the same cause (WMAL, 5:30 p. m.). Speakers from the other ideal stations are Daniel S. Ring (WOL, 6:30 p. m.) and Lisle Burroughs (WJSV, 7:15 p. m.).

An international beauty broadcast will come from Paris this morning when Barbara Gould opens her new Parisian salon (WMAL, 10:45 a. m.).

Marion Harris, blues singer, will be the guest artist with Rudy Vallee's orchestra this evening (WRC, 8 p. m.).

HERBERT HOOVER Jr., who is ill in Asheville, N. C., will while away many dreary hours now communicating with old cronies in the radio field. The Radio Commission promptly granted him an amateur operator's license when he wired for such permission this week. Radio is both the hobby and the vocation of Young Hoover, who is technical radio advisor of the Western Air Express.

The talks on the World's Business given by Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, will be heard each Friday evening, beginning tonight (WMAL, 7:45 p. m.). Dr. Klein's subject will be "The Obsolescence of Machinery."

In addition to the regular Saturday evening musical broadcast from Station WRC, the Washington Gas Light Co. inaugurated a home-maker's period over WMAL yesterday morning. This period, directed by Ruth Sheldon, will be heard each Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

THE melodies of Sigmund Romberg will be played by the Don Vorhees Orchestra this evening (WJZ, 9:30 p. m.).

Records of NBC show that 39,425 microphone appearances were made in all divisions, New York, Washington, Chicago and San Francisco, during one month—a record. A total of 4,154 programs went on the air and 729 auditions were granted. Studio visitors totaled 29,096.

Jack Lowe, formerly with WOL, and Conway W. Cooke, are associated with R. D. Wyly, Inc., in the new radio division of that company, the first in a Washington agency.

The Revelers, male quartet, also known as the Brigadiers, will be absent from the microphone for three weeks while touring the Southwest with Will Rogers in behalf of the Red Cross.

RADIO listeners in the British Isles have been sitting up late o'nights for the past three weeks listening to American programs that have been spanning the Atlantic with unprecedented clarity. Without the aid of short waves, Station WTIC, Hartford, reports that it has been reaching across the 3,000 miles every night, providing programs that have been lasting four and five hours at a stretch without fading or static interference.

The 50,000-watt WTIC transmitter evidently occupies a stratgic position unrivaled in America for transatlantic broadcasting, since the station has had this success since it first went on the air. Last week letters were received from 58 fans in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales. Most of them own sets containing only three tubes, or "valves," as they call them. The majority of radio receivers in American homes contain from five to eight tubes.

Real stay-up-all-nighters, these Britishers. Greenwich mean time is five hours ahead of Eastern standard time, so to hear the programs, many of the listeners were listening from 1 a. m. to 5 a. m. One of them, A. V. Freeman, of Birmingham, England, named every musical selection he heard over a period of four hours.

Dan Interprets the Mode

Gracefully simple, an evening gown of soft satin with tiny pleats of the same material for trimming, and a graceful skirt. (A Dah-ray design.)

Paris, Jan. 28.

I SIMPLY love monkey fur! Yes, if you stop to think about it at all, it's as flattering and graceful a fur as there is—just because it fell out of favor because the world and her sister wore it doesn't make it unbeautiful, you know.

Now, it fell from favor some years ago, if you remember. And where has it been since? Well, hiding out, maybe, to stage a quick comeback into real elegance after all the little collars and wispy wisps had about worn themselves out of closets and off of cheaper garments.

And here's a secret—it is about to come back—so if you would be very clever, and you like monkey fur as I do, you will up and wear it this spring and summer, before the world and her sister gets going at it again. If you wait until fall, it might be too late—but this spring you may be sure it will be soon enough to be very, very smart.

* * * *

Another fur we haven't seen for some years is being brought out again for spring and summer—mole. By the way, that is called "taupe" in the French magazines, and the word creeps into many English fashion articles, I have noticed—so when you see it you will know that it doesn't mean a color, but does mean mole. Well, mole dyed into fancy colors is new, and smart. Maybe it's the air of being a real fur instead of a bunny or doggie made up "to look like what it ain't" that is responsible for the return to favor of this soft little fur? I can remember when it was a real luxury, mole, almost as expensive as squirrel!

* * * *

What about that extra ballast around your normal waistline? You know, that is pushed up there by your girdle or corset? It didn't matter a couple of seasons ago, when the waistline was at the hips, and hips had to be slender regardless. But these days when hips have to still be slender, and waistlines as well—well!

There doesn't seem to be a thing to do, my deah, not a single thing other than to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet that tells you what Dah-ray herself does about it! She subdues it with a little thing-a-gig which she calls "The Gay 90's Waistlet," and you can make it yourself from the instructions. Better see!

* * * *

Ah-ha, the slit skirt brought back, in and up again! Only now it isn't because skirts are so long or anything like that, nor too tight, either—today it is just an artistic expression of draping, as you can see from the illustration. This is an evening dress I designed for you, with little upstanding pleats for trimming, a graceful collar-sleeve effect, and an interesting skirt drape. Nice?

* * * *

And just to prove to you how very distinctive an evening hat can be—there's a sketch of a silver lame (lah-may) evening hat I saw on a smartly dressed woman, who wore a long-sleeved and high-necked soft silver lah-may dress—and stood out like a light in a crowd of very beautifully dressed and beautiful women. And she wasn't so good looking, either—but how chic!

* * * *

Au Revoir!

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

IS Asparagus springerii likely to do well in a sunny window in a hanging basket? ELSIE D. L.

Yes, if you are sure to keep it warm and well watered.

Last summer my asters were ruined by root aphis. Is there any way to prevent this same tragedy in the future? MRS. GEORGE P. T.

The root aphis on China asters is rather difficult to control, but where you have less than 100 plants you can use tobacco stems to good advantage. Place these about the base of the plants close to the soil. I hope you spaded the soil quite deep in the fall. If you did, it will allow the frost to penetrate deeply and thus kill all the aphis. It is safest, however, to avoid planting asters in the same spot another year.

I want to make a small rose bed next season. This I hope to be the beginning of a rose garden. As I must do most of the work myself, I must feel my way along. Mistakes are expensive and must be as few as possible. Please tell me how wide you think I should make the first bed, which will be only 20 feet long. MRS. PHILLIP C. H.

A rose bed should be at least 3 feet wide. This will in a measure prevent the intrusion of grass roots. The bed should not be more than 5 feet wide for convenience in picking and cultivating. Be sure to prepare your ground well. Dig deep and use plenty of well-rotted manure or bonemeal.

My rhododendrons are yellowish or brownish white and the leaves are becoming curled. Why is this? It is surely not a healthy condition. MISS PATSY R. E.

Your rhododendrons are probably infested by the lace-wing fly. Spray the plants in May with 5 pounds of fish-oil soap, one-half pint of nicotine extract to 10 gallons of water. Be sure that the liquid reaches the under surface of the leaves.

Please tell me whether this is a good time to repot my fern. It seems to be entering a new period of growth. I know it is potbound. ANNA E. G.

Yes. It is best to divide it when you are transplanting it, if you feel it has become too large for your window. From your description, it will require a small lawn tub rather than a pot unless you divide it.

Please tell me what to do to get rid of ants. They almost ruined my lawn last summer and I am anxious to prevent a repetition of the trouble. Also tell me if I must wait to prune a forsythia until after it has bloomed in May. MRS. SALLIE T. R.

If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to tell you the name of a proprietary preparation that will prevent all future trouble with ants. Prune your forsythia after it has finished flowering. If you prune it before it has bloomed, you will cut away flowering wood and have few flowers. Forsythia blooms on wood made the previous season.

Please tell me the names of four plants that will live in a north window. JOSEPH T. Y.

Tradescanthia, nonblooming varieties of begonias, ferns and English ivy will all do well in a north window.

(Copyright, 1931.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

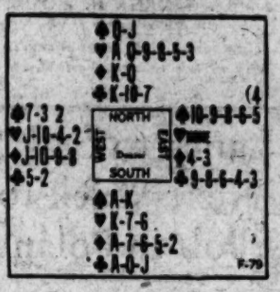
WORK ON BRIDGE



The above very unusual hand was played at contract in Detroit recently; South bid three No Trumps and had heart-failure when North jumped to seven No Trumps, until he saw his dummy.

Had it been played at Auction Bridge South would have bid one No Trump and North two Hearts; then South might have bid two No Trumps or passed.

When the hand was played, West led the Jack of Diamonds which dummy won with the Queen. The declarer then led dummy's Ace of Hearts, in accordance with the rule that with two top honors in one hand and one in the other, one of the two honors should be led first. Following the rule in this case was fatal as it enabled West to take either one heart or one Diamond trick. The Ace lead lost the grand slam, although it was in accordance with an ordinarily sound rule. Every Bridge player should realize that rules are not invariably to be followed and should be broken without hesitation whenever occasion demands.

In this case the Declarer should have seen that he had thirteen tricks "with his eyes shut" unless the four adverse Hearts were all in one hand. With all held by East, Declarer must lose a Heart trick no matter how he plays; but if four Hearts are held by West, the lead of a Heart Honor by North must make an adverse Heart good, while the lead of a small Heart by North will capture every Heart and insure the grand slam.

Therefore Declarer's play was a small Heart from North to trick 2 in defiance of the rule. Played in that way the refusal by East exposes the situation. South wins and leads another Heart; if West does not play an honor, North wins with a spot card, but of course West will play the Jack or Ten. North wins with the Queen and puts South in with a Club to lead a third Heart. West, with his Jack or Ten and Four is now helpless; and North runs all his Hearts, South obtaining one more Diamond discard than he needs.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Dissecting the Hero.

TWO letters lie before me, a challenge to romance and a farewell to soft sentiment. Both are from college girls and both calmly dissect a hero with expert touch. As signs of the times they are priceless documents and in presenting them we feel that we are helping to write history and spell the doom of all that meant so little but mattered so very much in the days that seem in the light of the present to have been very dead always. Read and rejoice or bewail, according to your temperament, as the modern maiden trains her microscope upon the mighty messenger of love.

Dear Frances McDonald: I suppose I will die and be buried an old maid. I may deserve my fate. But how can I whoop it up and sing with joy at having found favor in a man's eyes when to me he seems mightily inferior to most of the men I happen to know? Must I, because I am a woman, smile upon his mediocrities and give thanks that he has cast eye upon my humble state? So the family seems to think.

Give ear to my story? Well, he is 25 and was six years making college. He will have enough to live on always, but could not earn of his own enough to feed a healthy canary. He looks in mirrors. Know the type? Can't help it; does not even know it. Just dead in love with his looks—which are a bit insipid. Something lacking. Can not exactly put my finger upon what the face lacks, but what it lacks my man's face must have and I will know it when I see it. And I have seen it. There was a man fixed our car once in a God-forsaken place up in New England one summer who had it. Boy, how he had it. A look that told every one in the world to keep their distance, but not to hesitate to ask for help in trouble. That face did something to yours truly. I was having a sick affair at the time unknown to the family. That face ended the affair. I tried to picture myself explaining such an affair to a man with that kind of face. And it was a bit dirty, too. Well, so much for faces. But you get what I mean. So now I am supposed to be grateful that I have been able to attract this other face that looks in mirrors—approvingly.

It is my opinion that my lover is a fool. I have so informed my devoted relatives. And have been told that I will die unlovely and unloved, a shrivelled old maid. Couldst perchance offer comfort? MARIANNE.

And from Vivian:

Dear Frances McDonald: I do not attract men of the sort that I admire and simply can not give myself to the sort that will have me. One is devotion itself, but has lied to me so often about things that did not even signify, that I find myself wondering what he would do in a real tight place. I can not trust my future to him nor even respect him. Yet I am advised by every one to marry him. Another loves me equally but shirks his responsibilities at home. I have to remind him to do the things that he should for his own family. He would let his mother ask him for help instead of proffering it. He will buy a $60 overcoat when his mother needs a pair of warm gloves or a ton of coal. He is in my eyes a sort of craven, and yet wise and experienced people urge me not to let him slip off the hook. What does it all mean?

Do you really believe the older generation really were able to judge character as the younger can? I know this man would be a terrible husband. Why am I urged daily to grab him? VIVIAN.

What say the wise ones as to this modern version of the palpitating maiden of days gone by? Is she more fortunate in her wisdom than grandmother in her innocence and firm belief that whatever appeared to claim her heart and hand was heaven-sent and her soul's other half whether he was a fool or a sage?

What an uncomplicated sort of thing life was in those dear old days when it mattered very little what a girl married so long as she married in due course and thus saved the family from the blasting blight of having an unattached female to account for! What a change from this age when daughter looks the prospect over and says, "He might be your idea of a husband, mother, dear, but to me he is just one of those things that are nobody's fault but quite awful nevertheless." Marrying a girl off today is not the simple matter it once was. Now the girl has to be suited as well as the man! And that is something else again.!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"AQUARIUS"

IF January 29 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from noon to 2 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., and from 6 p. m. to 7:30 p. m.

History in some form or other, will repeat itself on this date, and you will be confronted with an old annoyance or problem. Those in poor or failing health, will find a change for the better. In the business world, there will be a tendency to slack and drift.

The child born on this January 29 will have enough vanity, or righteous pride to make it wish to be "somebody" in this world, and enough energy to make it work for its goal. It will have a solid, but brilliant mind, and will be "slow but sure." The strength of your character lies in the sweetness and sincerity of your smile, and not in the stiffness of your back. You are a diplomatic persuader, but a poor forcer. You use passive methods for getting your way, but they are none the less effective, and you are usually a popular victor, with many friends, and few, if any, enemies. You are a little inclined, however, to pass the buck, if it is to your benefit to do so. It is difficult for you to forego popularity or admiration, even for the sake of squaring the other fellow. You are a better fair weather companion than you are in times when self-sacrifice, and red blooded fighting are needed.

You will always shine more in a social than in a business way. If you be a man, much of your material success will be attributable to you being a good mixer, and to the assistance and generosity of your friends. You are not loath to take advantage of a "pull," or to throw yourself with those who can do you good. You are always ready, however, to help another, if you can do so without hurting your own position or pocketbook.

You have a vivid imagination, one which needs control, however, or it will carry you astray. You have brain storms, many of which are truly brilliant in their conception, but most of them need to be "slept upon" before acted upon.

Successful people born January 29:

1. Thomas Horatio Bevan, consular service.
2. Arthur Woods, former New York police commissioner.
3. Philip Powell Calvert, entomologist.
4. Daniel Keifer, political reformer.
5. Owen Davis, dramatist.
6. William McKinley, twenty-fifth President of United States.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Suggesting Sleep.

Dr. Cameron, writing about ways and means of getting little children to sleep, tells how important is the influence exerted through the power of suggestion, working upon the child through physical surroundings and the attitude of the attendant adult.

It is important that everything which touches upon the child's consciousness at this time should suggest to him that he is going to sleep.

The low, relaxed tones of mother's voice, the peaceful orderliness of the room in which he lies down, the absence of exciting colors, pictures and toys—all these suggest to the child that this is the time to be quiet, to rest, to sleep.

If it is necessary to take the child to bed when he is deeply engrossed in his play, we can help him first to put his playthings to bed, telling him that they are tired just as he is. Then we may let him take off his clothing and pretend that each shoe, each stocking, each article one by one is tired and being put to sleep.

By the time the child lies down, everything in his environment has suggested sleep to him. It will be surprising if he does not fall asleep in a very few minutes.

Negative suggestions, on the other hand, is sure to be equally effective in the opposite direction. A tense, commanding voice on the part of a parent who perhaps holds the fear that the child won't sleep, a room littered with playthings which stimulate thoughts of play, the awareness that a good deal is going on about the house—all these are likely to produce wakefulness, even when the child is thoroughly tired and otherwise ready for sleep.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

SAVORY CREAMED CHICKEN.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

Here's a delicious way of cooking a chicken that is past its first youth. Some of the fowls that are culled out of the poultry flock in the fall may appear in this dish, which is usually accompanied by rice or rice patties, or placed on rounds of tender biscuits. The Bureau of Home Economics gives the following ingredients and directions:

1 chicken, weighing about 3½ pounds, or 3 cups cut cooked chicken.
1 cup chopped celery and leaves.
1 quart chicken broth.
½ cup chopped onion.
½ to 1 cup cream.
½ cup flour.
¼ cup chopped green pepper.
1¼ teaspoons salt.
1-16 teaspoon curry.
3 drops tabasco.

Place the chicken in a kettle on a rack and half cover with boiling water. Cover the kettle tightly and simmer the chicken until it is tender, adding one-half teaspoon of the salt toward the last of the cooking. Allow the chicken to stand in the broth overnight in a cold place. Remove the bones to the broth and simmer for a short time so as to get off any small pieces of chicken that cling to the bones. Brown the celery, onion and green pepper in 4 tablespoons of fat removed from the chicken stock. Measure the drained broth. For each cup of broth add 2 tablespoons of flour to the cream, and mix until smooth. Add this cream and flour mixture to the chicken broth with the seasonings. Stir until thickened and then add the chicken. Mix until well blended and serve.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

CHAPTER XXVI.

On May 17, 1915, the Lusitania was sunk. For three days the Nation waited for a word from the President. When it came it came inadvertently, for the President had applied his words to other matters. But the American people could think only of the Lusitania, and when the President declared, in the face of Europe's heroic dying and America's military incapacity, that there was such a thing as a nation being "too proud to fight," the cosmic jest woke the derisive laughter of the world.

The day the President's message was published Gen. Wood received a telegram from the adjutant general forbidding any activities in connection with the students' summer camps.

"Don't let any quibbling or haggling over little things hold up the camps," Wood wrote Gen. Bliss, the assistant chief of staff. "They are of too vital importance to be stopped by trifles. * * * We can hold the camps in this department without any additional expense. I mean this literally, because they will be held on the post reservations, so that neither men nor material will have to be moved. I am going ahead on this assumption. Already the enrollment is heavy * * * to hold up the matter now would be serious for the boys, and I think unfortunate for all concerned."

Roosevelt volunteered to help raise the necessary funds, but his help was not needed. Bernard Baruch, a Southern Democrat and a friend of Wilson, gave Wood $10,000, and persuaded Daniel Guggenheim and others to contribute. The idea took hold and funds came in a flood, $100,000 in all. Rumors of Baruch's interest reached Washington, and he was chided as a busybody.

Plattsburg Camp Opens.

(A group of young college graduates, under Wood's guidance, determined to organize a military training camp of adults similar to those organized by Wood for students. The War Department was skeptical regarding the project and lent no aid. Recruits at first came slowly.)

The middle of June Gen. Wood spoke at a huge mass meeting at the Harvard Club, and the tide began to turn. There had been some question whether as many as 100 could be persuaded to offer themselves for the training; but when the men gathered at Plattsburg early in August there were 1,200.

They were as extraordinary an aggregation as that other body of high-hearted volunteers which Wood and Roosevelt had led to glory seventeen years before. There were professors, artists and lawyers; farmers, doctors and bankers; journalists, politicians, diplomats, a few clerks, a number of noted sportsmen, a large company of policemen and business men of every variety. No outburst of emotional fervor, no sense that an enemy was at the gate, had brought them together; no hunger to find in martial glory an escape from the drab commonplaces of life. For Plattsburg offered them work and rain and mud. But no glory; only an opportunity to serve their country and by their example to impel others to regard her need. Once more, as seventeen years before, the public read of millionaires doing "kitchen police," digging ditches, and caught the message behind the incongruity.

Training Is Strenuous.

The training followed the program of the student camps, and was strenuous. The men took the discipline with complete seriousness; former governors stood at salute before clerks, the Mayor of New York obeyed the orders of one of his own policemen.

"Robert Bacon was made a sergeant and his son a first lieutenant," Wood wrote McCoy. "Regis Post forgot he had insomnia and had to struggle to keep awake. All the men carried the full pack, absolutely regulation, and were as well disciplined as any bunch of men you ever saw, because they were living under a gentlemen's agreement.

"Fred Huidekoper almost died of solemnity. Such a thought as shaking hands when you met him in the shades of the evening filled him with horror. Once I forcibly grasped his arm and said, 'Damn you, shake!' Whereupon he became as immobile as an image, and the lines of his face straightened. However, he survived, and we still speak."

Even as it was Gen. Wood's mind which, fully recognizing at the outset its possibilities and implications, had evolved the summer training camp, so it was his spirit which infused it and gave it life.

Campfire Talks Memorable.

His talks to the men around the campfire at night were memorable. What entered into the minds of his hearers of history and military science was noteworthy, but more significant was that which enriched and deepened their spirits. At this first Plattsburg camp, Wood's life had, to this point, its finest flowering. Among many gifts, he had one thing which is more useful that any talent—an idea. He had contributed to the Army the riches of his energy and courage, but his most valuable contribution was his vision of the possibilities, even in time of peace, in the Nation's civilian youth. Looking beyond the moment's military need to the Nation's continuous need of the spirit of service and sacrifice, he gave young men a vision of their country and of their relation to it which they had not had before, and inspired them to make themselves ready for the emergency when it should come.

To do this seemed to him indeed an essential function of his position. To him the officers of the regular Army should be something other than the nucleus for the officers' corps of a national army in time of war, apostles of the idea of patriotism and unselfish service, dedicated first and foremost to the task of inspiring and leading the civilian youth of the country. His subordinates—notably Halstead Dorey, commandant of the camp—caught the vision, and with him made Plattsburg not merely a place for military training, but a school of patriotism.

The men who came for training that summer had two leaders—Leonard Wood and Theodore Roosevelt. Neither offered them ease or pleasant dreaming, excited their cupidity or held out hope of personal glory. The reiterant refrain of both was the hard word, duty. At a time when the Nation was gorging itself with the blood money of Europe, lulled by the President himself into a pharisaical complacency, Wood and Roosevelt offered the strong manhood of the Nation the bitter privilege of suffering and sacrifice. It was to the lasting glory of the Republic—and possibly her salvation—that they followed, not the President but Wood and Roosevelt.

Edits Roosevelt's Speech.

Roosevelt came to Plattsburg late in August, preceded by a telegram, comically cryptic:

"I request that my speech be made when the men are not on duty in camp in either the late afternoon or evening. I prefer that it be made out of camp, and I deem this advisable on more than one account. If possible, the men should be in citizens' clothing. Will explain in full tomorrow morning."

Grenville Clark and Willard Straight, scenting brimstone, begged Wood to edit Roosevelt's speech. Roosevelt cheerfully handed Wood the manuscript. Wood read it and lifted his brows quizzically. "Theodore, as a former President, you have presidential prerogatives on a military reservation. You may say what you want. But I suspect that some of the things you are planning to say are likely to stir up a lot of trouble."

"All right. What are they? I'll cut them out."

Wood indicated the dangerous portions and Roosevelt eliminated them.

Late that afternoon, standing with his back to the quiet waters of Lake Champlain and the Green Mountains beyond, facing the 1,200 volunteers, 600 regulars and 3,000 or 4,000 men and women who had flocked in from the countryside, Roosevelt spoke. He paid his respects to the pacifists, spoke of "hyphenated Americans," the need for undivided loyalty, the obligation to uphold the national self-respect; pointed out how little the Nation had done or was doing to prepare to defend its rights. All that he said was possibly not in impeccable taste. A politican sensitive to drafts might have called it indiscreet. But good taste and discretion were not the virtues which the men at Plattsburg most highly regarded, and Roosevelt was ready at any time to remind his countrymen that a national crisis was not a pink tea.

The twilight turned to darkness. A single lantern on a photographer's tripod fitfully illuminated the speaker. A terrier, wandering into the firelight, drew from him a thrust which his hearers could not fail to translate. The little dog was looking for his master and, bewildered by the crowd, ran this way and that, finally bumping against the speaker and rolling over on his back, his legs in the air: "That's a very nice dog," said Roosevelt, "and I like him. His present attitude is strictly one of neutrality."

Speaks Mind Off Reservation.

That night Roosevelt, having bade goodby to Wood and his staff and severed absolutely his connection with the camp, stepped on the train for New York and, as the reporters crowded around, unburdened himself. In the New York Tribune of August 26, 1915, he was quoted as follows:

"I heartily subscribe to this on condition, and only on condition, that it is followed by the statement 'so long as the President stands by the country.' It is defensible to state that we stand by the country, right or wrong. It is not defensible for any free man in a free republic to state that he will stand by any official right or wrong. * * * The right of any President is only to demand public support because he does well, because he serves the public well, and not merely because he is President. * * *"

All this, which he could not, out of respect to the commander in chief of the military forces, say in a speech on a military reservation, he had obviously a perfect right to say off the reservation. The newspapers next morning failed to make a distinction between the speech and the interview. The advance copies of his speech which they had received as usual from Roosevelt's secretary naturally contained, moreover, no rubrics explaining that this passage or that would be eliminated at the request of Gen. Wood. The speech, as it was printed, indeed contained passages which might be calculated to annoy even the pachydermatous.

The friends of the administration were indignant, not against Roosevelt, whose attitude toward Wilson was known, but against Wood. In inviting Roosevelt to speak at Plattsburg, he was, they asserted, an accessory to the act of criticizing the President and therefore amenable to the muzzle order of the Secretary of War. The incident seemed to confirm the suspicions which the administration had entertained from the beginning concerning the Plattsburg camp. Most of the men who had gone there were, it was pointed out, prominent Republican politicians, who, when the time came, would be ready to advance Wood's political fortunes.

Rebuke Falls on Wood.

The fact was that Wood had invited to Plattsburg not only Roosevelt, but Wilson and Garrison also, former President Taft, the labor leaders, Samuel Gompers and John Mitchel, a number of former Secretaries of War and a dozen university presidents. He had, moreover, sent the list to Garrison three weeks in advance of Roosevelt's visit and Garrison had offered no objection. The Secretary disregarded these matters; disregarded also the fact that the only direct attack which Roosevelt had made on the President, he had made outside the reservation, where he had a perfect right to make it, and, under the impulsion of the White House, sent Wood a sharp rebuke, as follows:

"I have just seen the reports in the newspapers of the speech made by former President Roosevelt at the Plattsburg camp. It is difficult to conceive of anything which could have a more detrimental effect upon the real value of the experiment than such an incident. This camp held under Government auspices, was successfully demonstrating many things of great moment. Its virtue consisted in the fact that it conveyed its own impressive lesson in its practical and successful operation and results.

"No opportunity should have been furnished to any one to present to the men any matter excepting that which was essential to the necessary training which they were to receive. Anything else could only have the effect of distracting attention from the real nature of the experiment, diverting consideration to issues which excite controversy, antagonism and ill-feeling, and thereby impairing, if not destroying, what otherwise would have been so effective.

"There must not be any opportunity given at Plattsburg or any other similar camp for any such unfortunate consequences."

Gen. Hugh Scott, called to the White House to discuss Mexican affairs, took occasion to tell the President that he was certain that Wood had no intention of transgressing the proprieties, and expressed the hope that Wilson would not hold anything up against Wood in his mind. Wilson showed his resentment. "I didn't want any one to rock the boat," he said.

Wood in Plattsburg showed Garrison's telegram to Maj. Kilbourne, his aid.

"You're going to tell him exactly what happened, aren't you, general?"

"No," Wood answered. "I don't believe in making explanations."

His answer was brief and direct.

"Your telegram received and the policies laid down will be rigidly adhered to."

Roosevelt Goes to Defense.

But Roosevelt, perturbed that he should have got Wood into trouble, jumped to his defense. In an interview in the New York Tribune, August 27, 1915, Roosevelt said:

"I am, of course, solely responsible for the whole speech. When, after three weeks notice, the War Department made no objection to my visit to the camp, they were disqualified from criticizing Gen. Wood because I went, and because he did not submit my speech to the administration for approval.

"If the administration had displayed one-tenth of the spirit and energy in holding Germany and Mexico to account for the murder of American men, women and children that it is now displaying in the endeavor to prevent our people from being taught the need of preparation to prevent the repetition of such murders in the future, it would be rendering a service to the people of this country."

Garrison made a flippant reply, obviously intended to close the incident. But Roosevelt refused to let it be closed. He answered with hot shot. Truly, it was an illuminating commentary by the administration on itself that it should regard a plea for preparedness as an assault on the administration and should object to the officers and men of the United States Army listening to a plea for undivided allegiance.

The administration showed signs of panic, seeing a political issue arising, left the field to Roosevelt and hastily set at rest the rumors that Wood might be relieved as commander of the Department of the East, or even court-martialed.

After the storm had subsided, Wood happened to run into Robert Lee Bullard, his friend of the California and the Mendanao days, who spoke of Garrison's rebuke. "That, general," said Bullard, "was severe."

"Yes," Wood admitted. "I am skating on thin ice, but I am going to skate."

"Please do not give yourself any uneasiness so far as I am concerned," Wood wrote Roosevelt. "I was delighted to have you here. * * * This incident, coupled with that of the American Legion * * * convinces me that they have a line of policy, so far as I am concerned, which they propose to carry out. I had warning of this attitude nearly a year ago, but have played the game squarely and openly, and shall continue so to do. I am out for national preparedness and I am going to get it."

RAINING CATS AND DOGS

IN SCANDINAVIAN MYTHOLOGY WITCHES WHO RODE THE STORMS ON BROOMSTICKS HAD THE POWER TO TRANSFORM THEMSELVES INTO CATS. THE DOG WAS A PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE OR SYMBOL OF ODIN, THE STORM KING. SO THIS EXPRESSION, APPLIED TO STORMS, IS A HERITAGE FROM THE OLD SCANDINAVIAN MYTHS.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—Closeups, more precious than gold to most screen actors, formed part of the pay issued to John Loder and Henry Victor, English players, in the picture "The Seas Beneath."

AL JOLSON

The director had visualized a torpedoed German sub, sinking to its death with the officers standing on the submerging decks, saluting their flag.

Whether suction might imperil the two actors was not known. Loder and Victor took a chance, both swam to safety, and in gratitude the director gave each a half dozen additional closeups in other scenes.

However, it was noted that in true film-hero style, both sank from sight facing, not the enemy, but the camera.

Magazine stands, book stores and libraries expect a slight business boom as a result of a ban on bridge-playing at most of the studios. The ban is aimed at extras who formerly spent most of their time between scenes playing bridge on the set.

The game was found to be too absorbing, the desire to finish playing a hand often winning out over the assistant director's request that they return to places before the camera.

Heart Problem.

Maureen O'Sullivan, sailing for a month's vacation at her Dublin home after fifteen months in Hollywood, made five pictures during her stay and broke at least a half dozen hearts—without the least bit of encouragement on her part.

In the meantime her own heart received a crack which film-city experts say won't be healed for a long time.

"He" is engaged to another girl, and while he doesn't love her, plans for the marriage are going ahead and he just doesn't know how to go about getting out of it.

Mammy!

Al Jolson has a half million dollars that he hasn't earned yet.

He was to have been starred by his friend, Joseph Schenck, in "Sons o' Guns," and Al went on a salary said to have been $30,000 a week, when preparations began. The weeks went by with Al still on the pay roll, and finally the picture was called off.

After Jolson gets through playing in a stage show he has under consideration, he will return to make "Sons o' Guns" or some other picture.

Your Name
WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Balfour" is of Celtic origin. It means "the pasture place" or "the pasture town," and indicates an original place of residence. Most families which bear this name have received it because of having once lived in Balfour, Fife, Scotland.

The family name "Hancock" is of combined Flemish and English origin. It was originally an English pet form of the Flemish personal name "Johan," and may be translated "dear Johan" or "dear little Johan." "Johan" (English "John") is ultimately of Hebrew origin, and means "God's gracious gift." The early spellings of this name, as seen in an English document of the year 1379, are "Hankok," "Hancok" and "Hanecock."

"Howell" is a very distinguished and ancient Welsh family name. A few of its variations are "Howel," "Howels" and "Howells." It means "the son of Hoel." The personal name "Hoel" occurs frequently in history as the name of many Welsh kings and noblemen. The old romances of King Arthur mention among Arthur's many nephews one named Hoel, who was Duke of Brittany. Although it can not be proved that this Hoel was a real character, it is known that there were at least three Welsh kings who bore this name, and that many princes and poets were also so named. An English document of the year 1213 mentions a Howel le Waleys and a Howel ap David. The personal name "Hoel" means "he who is like a lord or king."

The family name "Peterabend" is of German origin. It means "the evening of rest" or "the eve of a holiday." There is evidence that this name was first applied as a nickname to persons who did not work. A certain Burchardus Virabint is mentioned in a thirteenth century German document.

6 tablespoons butter.
1 large onion, chopped.

Boil the spaghetti for nine minutes in two quarts rapidly boiling water to which one-half tablespoon salt has been added. Drain. CHILDREN'S COLDS are doubly dangerous with FLU around

While there is no cause for serious alarm over the mild epidemic of flu in this locality, health authorities advise extra precautions against colds just now.

Check Every Cold at the Start

Unless treated promptly, colds tend to pull down the body resistance and often pave the way for an attack of flu with all its serious complications.

Don't "Dose" Except on Doctor's Advice

Too much internal medicine often disturbs the digestion and further lowers the vitality just when the body-strength is most needed. Modern mothers prefer Vicks VapoRub as it is applied externally and thus can be used freely and as often as needed without upsetting the stomach.

Attacks Colds 2 Ways at Once

Just rubbed on throat and chest and covered with warm flannel, Vicks acts thru the skin like a poultice or plaster, drawing out the tightness and soreness; at the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are inhaled direct to the air-passages, loosening the phlegm and soothing the irritation.

Of course, Vicks two-way action is just as effective for adults' cold-troubles, too.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES WITH COLDS, NOW!

CHANGES IN TRAFFIC ARE RECOMMENDED

Director Harland Proposes Three Alterations in Lights System.

CONGESTION IS STUDIED

Traffic Director William H. Harland yesterday announced that he would recommend three drastic changes in traffic control to the consideration of the District Commissioners.

The frequency with which operators of automobiles drive through the red and amber combination signal light, which precedes the green, has resulted in the proposal that the lights switch from red to green without the amber clearing signal. It is believed this plan would eliminate the accidents which result from drivers "beating the gun" on the amber.

In the new system, if adopted, a complete cycle of a light will be red-green-green and amber-and red again.

The second change developed by the director is a new light-timing system, known as "flexible progressive," to be used on Rhode Island avenue northwest, from North Capitol street to Twelfth street, replacing the "progressive system" now in use.

This plan, in addition to controlling the progressive synchronization of the lights, will adjust the length of "stop" periods at the intersecting streets according to the volume of traffic. No new lights will be needed to effect the change, but an additional timer on each signal will supplement the master timer now in use.

In an effort to aid the double parking problem in the downtown area, Harland has devised a plan which he believes will alleviate to a great degree the congestion caused by this evil. The plan proposes to set aside in every block of the congested area a space from 50 to 100 feet long to be used as unloading space for automobiles.

Cars waiting for passengers in the space will be required to move out if another vehicle enters to discharge passengers. The director has listed 3000 spaces which could be designated as loading and unloading zones.

Court Denies Writ To Return Records

Country Club Properties Loses Fight to Have Books Restored.

Justice Frederick L. Siddons, in District Supreme Court, yesterday refused to order United States Attorney Leo A. Rover to return books and records of the Country Club Properties, Inc. The action was taken on a petition for mandamus filed by the company several weeks ago and followed action of the Government in seizing the books and records for an audit.

United States Attorney Rover told the court, through his first assistant, John W. Fihelly, that the original complaint against the company was withdrawn due to the fact that a financial settlement had been made. He also insisted that other complaints still were being considered.

The books were seized by the United States attorney's office in connection with the original complaint, and Mr. Rover, through Mr. Fihelly, stated that the audit was being made with the greatest dispatch.

BRADY PROSECUTION SUDDENLY RESTS

year veteran Baltimore detective, to read interviews they had with the Bradys, from a notebook in which they had recorded the conversation.

In the Rockville trial Dr. Wood was permitted to introduce his testimony. Judge Moss, however, objected to such "experimentations" being introduced by either side.

"I can't see why such evidence is admissible," he declared. "He (Leroy Brady) may have had the opportunity and knowledge to construct such a bomb, but such testimony is not relevant to the case at this time."

J. Wilson Ryon, special prosecutor, contended that Leroy Brady received from his brother, Emmett, a fur gun of the type experts claim exploded the bomb when the package was untied. Emmett, first witness of the day, admitted sending such a gun to his brother for repairs, but said it had been returned to him before the explosion. Lansdale G. Sasscer, of defense counsel, declared that the bomb fragments could not be connected with Leroy Brady.

"Dr. Wood is creating a bomb of his own imagination," he said.

Surprise by the State.

The State sprang a surprise with its twenty-sixth witness. John Quintell, of Seat Pleasant, identified a car, indicating it was the same driven by Leroy Brady to St. Marys County about the time of the bombing. The court would not permit him to say who he thought was driving the car, nor his reasons for his belief. The State will recall him in rebuttal.

Judge Moss refused to permit Detective Itzel to read his notes on the Brady interview, because he held that a stenographer's record would be more accurate, and since the detective did not know shorthand he probably had not been able to get all of the testimony.

Itzel is regarded as one of its most important witnesses and another effort will be made to qualify him. Prosecutor Ryon is confident several witnesses whose testimony has been held out of order will be permitted to take the stand when the defense closes.

Warns Senators Action Now Would Result in Greater Economic Ills.

PREDICTS HEAVY DEFICIT

pay that amount then than it is now. It was entirely different from going out now for fresh capital."

"To put it another way," Mr. Mills interjected, "it is now proposed to wipe out the benefits of sound financing by the Treasury over the last ten years."

Mr. Mellon denied Senator Harrison's assertion that the people had been overtaxed.

Mellon Defends Course.

"These rates were not reduced enough," Harrison said, "because of the untrue estimates of the Treasury."

"They were the best estimates that humans could make," the Secretary replied.

In his prepared statement, Mr. Mellon said the legislation would "seriously retard business recovery, and so prolong unemployment."

"I can say without qualification," he declared, "that the Treasury Department could not sell $3,400,000,000 of bonds at the present time, except on terms which it would be very hard to justify and without complete disorganization of the Government and other security markets, with the most serious consequences not only to the public credit but to our entire economic structure."

He recited a number of "indirect consequences" which, he said, would be "even more serious," including depreciation of the price of all United States bonds; destruction of capital values running into hundreds of millions of dollars; death of the bond market for other kinds of securities, and destruction of the market for foreign securities.

The final effect of the proposal, Mr. Mellon said, "would be a deeper depression than the one from which the world is suffering today, emphasized still further by the temporary stimulation."

Questioned by Senator Watson, Mr. Mills testified the Government would have to pay between 4¼ and 4½ per cent to float a $3,400,000,000 bond issue.

Says Market Feels Effect.

Mr. Mellon said even the suggestion of cashing the certificates had already had an effect on the bond market and had depressed prices.

Senator Barkley said he did not understand why it should when every one knew the Government would have to meet the obligation in 1945 anyway.

Senator Couzens criticized the Treasury Department's attitude as expressed in a letter to Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, suggesting cash conversion might be harmful to the veterans as well as to the country at large.

"I think there is some question of good taste involved in the Treasury assuming to argue how it would affect the veterans," Couzens said.

"Each individual veteran is probably better able to judge for himself, but the Treasury is probably in a better position to judge for the group as a whole," Mr. Mills replied.

U. S. Bonds Take Slump As Bonus Fight Goes On

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The quoted values of all United States Government securities declined sharply on the stock exchange today.

Dealers said most of the liquidation came from New York banks, and was attributed to fear that Congress would approve the immediate cash redemption of veterans' insurance certificates and so necessitate flotation of a $3,000,000,000 bond issue by the Government.

Prices of Liberty bonds dropped more than $2.50 and the decline in long-term Treasury issues ranged as high as $5. The volume of transactions was fairly large on the exchange, but traders said the sharp reaction was due more to the persistence of sellers than to the volume. Ordinarily, the daily fluctuations in Governments is 1-32d or 2-32ds of a point.

The decline was the climax of three days of liquidation in Government bonds, and has dropped them from their peak prices of the last two years or more, to around the lows for 1930. Compared with the top prices of last week, Treasury issues at closing prices tonight were from $5 to $10 lower.

POLICEMAN IS SHOT IN CABARET AFFRAY

Baltimore Shooting Follows Street Battle Between Men in Autos.

TWO MEN SURRENDER

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A policeman was shot and another beaten in a battle with two men, one a former convict, early today in a cabaret here.

Patrolman Edward J. Ward was taken to a hospital with bullet wounds in the chest and an arm, and Patrolman Edward J. Twele was treated for face lacerations.

Frank Lample, recently released from the penitentiary after serving a term for jewel robbery, and Louis Kramer were held.

The shooting affray was almost coincident with a street battle between several men in two automobiles, which later were found, bullet scarred, in alleys.

Michael "Kid" Julian, former prize fighter, and Jacob Greamer, surrendered voluntarily shortly after the shooting. They declared they had fired on by several unidentified men as they sat alone in their car, but police said witnesses declared others were in the car with the two.

Conflicting versions of the cabaret shooting were given police officials and a general investigation got under way.

Indian Affairs Charges To Be Aired Tomorrow

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Frazier, of the Senate Indian committee, yesterday called a hearing for tomorrow to inquire into the charges he made in the Senate against Herbert Hagerman, former territorial governor of New Mexico, as special Indian commissioner. Senator Frazier has invited Hagerman and officials of the Indian Bureau to appear before the committee.

The Senate eliminated funds from the Interior appropriation bill for Hagerman's salary after Frazier had complained of him. The senator charges that a lease Hagerman negotiated with the Navajo Indians for oil lands for $1,000 was later sold for $1,000,000.

Contractor Fined $50 For Wrong Truck Tags

Found guilty on ach of five charges of operating trucks in Fairfax County on District tags, Warren S. Brenizer, a contractor of South Capitol street, was fined $10 and costs on each count yesterday by Justice of the Peace Harry Shepherd, of Accotink.

State Motor Vehicle Inspector Earl Clarke and Fairfax County Policeman Arthur W. Mills, who made the case, testified that Brenizer was operating five trucks on District licenses, using them to haul stone from a quarry near Occoquan to the Potomac River. Brenizer was also required to give bond of $400 on four 5-ton trucks in use, and $50 on a 2½-ton truck, to assure purchase of Virginia licenses for them.

Auto Works Adjudged Bankrupt.

The Dupont Auto Works, Inc., of 2130 L street northwest, yesterday was adjudged a voluntary bankrupt by Justice Jennings Bailey, of District Supreme Court. The action of the judge followed filing of a petition by Frank Rose, president, through Attorneys Tobriner & Graham. No schedule of assets and liabilities was filed, the company reserving the 10-day period of grace.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color, 15c, 30c, 60c.

JANUARY 29, 1906.

Dr. Thomas F. Gibbs, well-known local physician, died at his home, 1211 Thirteenth street northwest, death being caused by paralysis. He was active in civic affairs and plans were being made for an elaborate public funeral.

A scheme for building an underground water tunnel between Washington and New York was being discussed here by Otto Rupperstein. He planned to shoot air-tight carriages carrying four or five persons through the tube at the rate of 250 miles per hour.

Frederick VIII, son of the late King Christian, was crowned King of Denmark to succeed his father.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

GALLSTONES.

MRS. A. W. S. writes: Will you please write an article on gallstones, their cause, symptoms?

Reply: Gallstones is one of man's most frequent disorders and, at the same time, one of his most infrequent complaints. Many have them but few know about it, although the man who knows lets others know. A bunch of enigmatic statements, now to be explained.

A great many people have gallstones. In most instances where gallstones are present there are no symptoms. When symptoms are present the man who has them can be depended on to talk about them whenever he can find a listener. And now for the explanations.

The gall bladder is made to stagnate bile. The bile is a mixed fluid with a great tendency to thicken and to have some of its substances precipitate. Stagnation of any fluid promotes precipitation of its solids. If we hold drinking water in reservoirs that the solids may precipitate we should expect the same happening in the bile in the gall bladder. If the bile solids stick together the result is a gallstone.

A great many people 40 years old and beyond have them. Fat people who are physically inactive are especially prone to them. If typhoid fever is on the personal history sheet the probability is greatly increased.

The best-known symptom of gallstones is colic, a very painful disorder due to tearing and to violent contraction of the muscles as they push the stone along. But this kind of pain may be absent so long as the stone lies quiet in the gall bladder.

Persons with one large gallstone seldom have pain and autopsies show thousands with gallstones that were unsuspected during life. Many reputed cures of gallstones are merely instances of stones having come to rest in the gall bladder. On the other hand, when a man has an attack of gallstone colic his pain is too violent to be hidden.

Much of the old-style dyspepsia is an indirect effect of gallstones, the stomach playing second fiddle in the performance. This is the present-day explanation of belching, sour stomach, water brash, spitting up food. And the man who has this group of symptoms is fond of telling other people of them.

SCHOOLROOM WINDOW PANES.

R. W. writes: Recently in a class we were discussing the ideal schoolroom. I was under the impression that windows in schools were made with several small panes of glass instead of one large pane so that the sunlight would be divided and spread over a large section of the room. We could appreciate it very much if you could let us know if that is true, and if it isn't please tell us why the glass is put in small sections.

REPLY.

Small panes of glass are cheaper. If there is breakage the expense of replacement is less.

There is no health reason for or against small panes.

SWELLING BEST SYMPTOM.

Mrs. H. O. writes: (1) What are the symptoms of a rupture? (2) Is there a home treatment?

REPLY.

1. The swelling itself is the best symptom. The cough test generally shows whether a swelling is due to rupture. If there is strangulation the added symptoms are colicky pain and nausea.

2. Wearing a properly fitting truss or binder is the only treatment indicated in most cases.

SHARE PRICES DROP FROM 1 TO 5 POINTS

Extra-Dividend Declaration, However, Acts as Tonic to Tobacco Stocks.

U. S. STEEL SLUMPS 2⅜

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The stock market lacked a cushion of supporting orders today and bumped down heavily.

Secretary Mellon's pronouncement on the state of government finances, the weakness of Liberties and Treasuries, which had been the bulwarks of the reviving bond list and the Steel Corporation's fourth quarter earnings statement found speculative sentiment in favor of a decline, and shorts pressed their advantage. Recent coverings had left the market vulnerable to selling, which spread through all groups except the tobaccos. Net declines ranged from 1 to 5 points. Trading, however, remained light and sales approximated 1,600,000 shares. In accordance with its new policy, the exchange compiled the turnover to the nearest hundred thousand.

Strength of the tobacco stocks was based on the extra dividends voted by both Liggett & Myers and American. A few other issues were affected by special situations, notably Abitibi Power, which is figuring in newsprint merger plans. A handful of rails did well for a time, but finally succumbed to the trend.

B. & O. Issues Decline.

U. S. Steel, off a point at the opening, extended its loss to 3¼. Late short coverings, generally evident throughout the market, reduced the decline to 2⅜. There were roughly similar net recessions in American Can, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Woolworth, Baltimore & Ohio, North American and Electric Power and Light.

General Motors, General Electric, National Biscuit, Anaconda, Consolidated Gas, United Corporation, International Telephone and Rock Island were off 1 to 1½. The Wabash preferred shares broke sharply when the dividends were deferred, and Atlantic Gulf and West Indies slumped on the omission of its payment. New York Central and Auburn Autos lost 3. Reports that the stock exchange was investigating an alleged corner in the latter issue were denied. Case, Eastman Kodak and Allied Chemical tumbled about 4.

Midweek reports from the steel trade showed a smaller rate of increase, for estimates placed operations at 47 per cent of capacity, a gain of only 1 per cent. Automobile demand seems to be holding up, but orders for rails and structural steel are slow. "Iron Age" said the improvement in business since January 1 had been "disappointingly gradual" and saw no indication of a movement to replenish inventories in miscellaneous lines.

Drop in Governments Worry.

Mr. Mellon's warning as to the effect on the security markets and business recovery of a large Government bond issue to provide for immediate cash payment of the adjustment compensation certificates was read attentively in Wall street where there were some expressions of concern over the declines in Government securities. Banking circles want a strong bond market as insurance for ready and favorable financing by industry and the improvement in bonds since the December break has been regarded as the outstanding exhibit in the case for restored confidence.

Commodity prices weakened with stocks, and were to some extent influenced by the declines in equities. July wheat lost a cent, although other futures were steadier. Corn, however, broke more than 2 cents and closed virtually at the lowest. Cotton's losses ran from 8 to 12 points net.

Sterling's strength dominated the foreign exchanges, which were generally firm. London cables rallied 3-32 to 4.85 11-16, or safely above the point at which gold shipments to New York would be profitable.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Under sudden fire from offerings to Chicago by other principal market centers, corn plunged down today to the lowest prices reached here since 1922. Urgent orders to stop losses of holders of corn future delivery contracts brought about a maximum fall of 2⅝ cents a bushel, with the final dealings at the day's bottom figures. Rye outdid low records unequalled as far back as 1894.

Corn closed unsteady, 2 cents to 2⅝ down, rye 1¼@1⅜ off, wheat unchanged to 1¼ lower, oats at ⅝ to ⅞ declining, and provisions showing 2 to 22 cents setback.

Acute weakness of corn and rye became manifest chiefly near the day's end. Persistent springlike temperatures reducing demand from feeders of live stock acted as a pronounced disturbing factor, and the effect especially on corn was aggravated by evidence that industries here were obtaining the bulk of their supplies from other terminal markets. Some hedging pressure is attributed to Minneapolis sources tended further to send Chicago values down.

Waves of selling followed each other fast during the late transactions in corn, and met with an unusual dearth of buying power. The ensuing price breaks left the market 39 cents beneath the season's best figures touched last August. Overturning of the corn market was in the face of the fact that primary receipts were only 822,000 bushels compared with 875,000 a week ago and 1,319,000 at this time last year.

Liquidating sales by owners of rye came about in large degree through sympathy with corn. Support for rye was absent except on the part of previous sellers who were in a position to collect profits.

Wheat was influenced bearishly by forecasts that the seaboard on ocean passage would shortly assume much larger proportions. Argentina, Australia and Canada being likely to ship on an increased scale. Absence of moisture in domestic wheat territory failed to act as an offset. Oats declined with other cereals.

Provisions reflected downturns in hog values.

U. S. GOVERNMENTS MOVE OFF SHARPLY

Plans for Flotation to Pay Veterans Held Reason for Sale of Bonds.

LOSSES FROM ¼ TO ½

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Prices of United States Government securities dropped sharply on the stock exchange today as banks, apprehensive over the possibility of a huge bond issue to finance redemption of veterans' insurance certificates now being considered in Congress, turned to the selling side of the market.

Both Liberty bonds and long term Treasury issues suffered in the decline, with the day's losses ranging from ¼ of a point to ½. Traders said today that the strong statement of Secretary Mellon, in which he called attention to the disastrous effect a $2,000,000,000 bond issue would have on the economic situation of the country, had a steadying influence on the market.

Most of the selling was attributed to New York banks. One prominent dealers said that it was the persistence of sellers, rather than the volume, which accounted for the sharp declines. Treasury issues dropped the farthest. Treasury 3⅜ of 1943-1947 reacted 17-32ds, and Treasury 4¼s declined ½ a point. The decline in Liberties was the sharpest of the week, averaging 10-32ds of a point.

The weakness of the Government list and the reaction in the share market had an unsettling effect on corporate domestic investments. Second grade rails suffered the most, with losses of a point or more scattered throughtout the list, but even the prime rail bonds were depressed. The reaction in most utility issues was limited to small fractions and was partially offset by gains in some of the seasoned obligations. Convertibles reacted with stocks. Foreign loans were irregularly higher.

Curb Review

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The curb market turned heavy today, but trading slackened, and stock was not pressed for sale.

The day's turnover of 375,000 shares was 21,600 less than yesterday's. Selling was most active in the utility shares, and the market appeared to take its cue from the heaviness of the big board.

American Gas & Electric, Electric Power & Light warrants and American Light & Traction lost 2 points; Electric Bond & Share, American & Foreign Power warrants, Middle West Utilities and United Light A, 1 point. United Gas sagged a point.

Oils yielded only moderately, despite the unfavorable weekly petroleum statistics, showing a gain of about 1,000,000 barrels in gasoline in storage. Cities Service, Gulf and Indiana eased about ½ point, and Vacuum ¾.

In the industrials, Ford, Ltd., a recent firm spot, slipped off a point. In less active trading, Deere lost 3, and Western Air Express and Shaeffer Pen 2, the last touching new low ground. Bastian Blessing appeared for the first time in months, selling at 19½, approximately half the previous sale price.

Investment trusts moved narrowly in the main. The selected industries preferred issues rose 2 to 3, but the common eased a fraction.

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Officials of the Meadville plant of the Mead-Penn Iron Works announced today that virtually regular operation would be resumed at the plant with the receipt of orders for 700 tons of refinery equipment. The orders came from refiners in Boston, Chicago, Oil City and Pittsburgh.

The Pennroad Corporation, which is affiliated with the Pennsylvania Railroad interests, today declared a dividend of 20 cents a share, the same as was declared last summer. It is payable March 16 to stockholders of record of February 13.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. It is payable February 28 to stockholders of record February 2.

Prices continued very steady today on gray cloths for printing and converting. Fine kembed goods and rayon specialties were selling better. Business on finished cottons was improving steadily. Moderate orders continued for dress worsteds and men's wear fabrics. Silk was barely steady. Silk goods were more active. Rayon multifilament yarns were selling more freely. Burlaps were a shade easier.

Directors of the International Silver Company today voted to omit the dividend on common stock due at this time. President C. B. Gardiner in a statement said the financial status of the corporation would permit a dividend, but, due to a net loss in business during the year 1930, and uncertainty as to the future, the directors believed it best to omit the usual payment.

The Allgemeine Elektrizitaets Gesellschaft, of Berlin, today reduced its dividend to 7 per cent, compared with 9 paid last year. Net profits for the year were 14,230,000 marks, compared with 19,170,000 last year, and orders in hand, 250,000,000 compared with 350,000,000. The mark is quoted at 23 cents.

Imports of copper in unmanufactured form by the United States amounted to 21,895 metric tons in December, a decrease from 22,844 tons in November and 30,459 tons in October, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports. Exports of refined copper from the United States aggregated 24,170 tons in December, compared with 31,478 tons in November and 26,251 tons in October. Imports of copper in unmanufactured form by Great Britain increased to 11,024 tons in December as compared with 10,877 tons in November, but showed a decrease from the 16,399 tons imported in October. The bureau also reported that world production of slab zinc in December totaled 108,193 tons, against 104,271 tons in November and 112,306 tons in October.

Directors of the American Tobacco Co. today voted to sell 56,712 shares of the company's stock to employes at par. The action was taken under authorization voted by stockholders last July empowering the directors to sell stock to employes. Directors also declared an extra dividend of $1 on the common and common C stocks, in addition to the regular quarterly payment of $1.25. A statement said that although final figures for the year's operations are not complete, it is evident net earnings for 1930 will not be less than $42,500,000.

Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co. has arranged to acquire the assets and business of Time-o-Stat Controls Co., in exchange for approximately 15,000 shares of preferred stock and 18,467½ shares of common, subject to approval of stockholders of Time-o-Stat. The basis of exchange will be at the rate of $30 per value Minneapolis-Honeywell preferred for each share of Time-o-Stat class A, and one-third of a share of Minneapolis-Honeywell common for each share of Time-o-Stat class B stock. At the annual meeting of Minneapolis-Honeywell February 17, stockholders will be asked to authorize an issue of 100,000 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred, of which approximately 16,-000 shares will be used in connection with the acquisition.

The Cooper-Bessemer Corporation has received an order for eleven 800-horsepower gas engine compressors from Western Gas Co., of El Paso, Tex., a subsidiary of the El Paso Natural Gas Co. The total consideration was placed at $375,000. Five of the new engines will be used on a $6,000,-000 natural gas pipe line extending 275 miles westward from the present terminus at El Paso, Tex., to Douglas and Bisbee, Ariz., and Cananea, Mexico, via Deming, N. Mex. The line will be comprised of a 12-inch welded main good for 925 pounds of working pressure.

J. C. Chick, general sales manager of Cadillac Motor Car Co., a division of General Motors Corporation, said business of the company this month will exceed that of January last year by at least 25 per cent. We based the estimate on sales figures for the first 20 days this month.

The daily gold statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York today showed imports of $1,947,000 from Colombia.

A banking syndicate is expected shortly to offer an issue of $25,000,000 5 per cent preferred stock of the North American Co., callable at 107.

The Textile Organon, published by the Tubize Chatillon Corporation, says that the textile industry as a whole will show more strength than general business during the first half of this year, due to the fact that prices for both raw and finished products recorded greater deflation in 1930, than prices for other commodities.

A contest for control of Fajardo Sugar Co., leading producer in Porto Rico, is expected as the result of the action of a committee in asking stockholders for proxies to be voted at the annual meeting at Fajardo, Porto Rico, February 2. The committee's letter stated that the company has "suffered from the prevailing depression in the sugar industry and from the hurricane of 1928, but its present condition seems to us to reflect other and remediable causes." James Oliss Coombs, president, in a communication to stockholders, charged that the committee's circular "was undoubtedly issued at this last minute for the purpose of giving the present management no chance to refute these misleading statements."

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. today reported net income for 1930 of $24,-002,315, equal to $7.15 a share of the combined common and common "B" issues, compared with $22,017,128, or $7.82 a share, in 1929.

The Adams Express Co., now an investment trust, today reported net income for 1930 of $3,312,324, which, after preferred dividends, amounted to $1.71 a common share, compared to only 49 cents a share in 1929.

Iron and steel production increased slightly in the past week, but today's trade reviews said the gains had been spotty. Iron Age and Steel estimated the operating ratio at 47 per cent of capacity, a rise of 1 per cent. The latter journal said that "in spite of the noteworthy comeback immediately after New Year and the gains registered in each succeeding week the expansion in production in January does not quite measure up to the seasonal average."

E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroluem Institute, said today that present indications point to an outlet being provided ultimately for all but 5,000 of the stripper oil wells in the distressed district along the Oklahoma-Kansas border. The location of these 5,000 wells, which have a total production of 5,000 barrels a day, is such that it would be uneconomic to build lines to connect them with an outlet, he believed. The plight of the stripper wells resulted from withdrawal January 1 of the Prairie Oil & Gas Co. as a purchaser and broker of crude oil in that territory.

S. R. Dresser Manufacturing Co., maker of pipe line fittings, had net profit of $928,629 in 1930, equal to $5.24 a share on the class "B" stock, compared with $908,394, or $5.08 on the "B" in 1922.

There was an increase of $1,008,261 in net profits of the Canadian Pacific Railway for December, 1930, as compared with the month 1929. The gain was due partly to an increase in gross earnings and partly to a cut in working expenses.

Cities Service Will Get Richfield Oil Co., Claim

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—It was reported in Wall street today that Cities Service Co. has acquired virtual control of the Richfield Oil Corporation of California and probably will have little difficulty in obtaining the necessary balance of common stock to make up a substantial majority by February 25, the date of expiration of its exchange offer.

The Cities Service offer is for an exchange of one share of Cities Service for four shares of Richfield up to a total of 500,000 shares within 30 days from January 26. Holdings of Cities Service in Richfield at the time of the offer were estimated at close to 700,000 shares of the outstanding total of approximately 2,000,000.

Administration Letters For Estate Are Asked

Alleging that her father, Col. Robert M. Thompson, had property in the District worth approximately $365,-000, Mrs. Sarah Thompson Pell, of Ticonderoga, N. Y., yesterday asked the District Supreme Court for ancillary letters of administration.

Col. Thompson died September 3 last at Key West, Fla. The daughter states, through Attorney Julian W. Whiting, that her father was domiciled in Florida and that his will was filed there, as well as letters testamentary naming her as administratrix.

Woman Alleges Injury in Alighting From Rapid Transit Bus.

A District Supreme Court jury before Justice Wendell P. Stafford yesterday awarded Mabel G. Wilson, of 2121 New York avenue northwest, a verdict of $1,000 against the Washington Rapid Transit Co. The District of Columbia, which was a party defendant, was exonerated.

The woman claimed she had been severely injured December 17, 1927, when she fell into a hole while alighting from a bus of the defendant transportation company. She also alleged negligence on the part of the transit company.

Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert, R. N. Yeatman and George D. Horning, jr., appeared for the plaintiff. The District was represented by Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert E. Lynch.

WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, JANUARY 29, 1931. 17

PARE, FORMER G. U. NET ACE, JOINS TILDEN TROUPE

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Quite the most brilliant social affair of the current season in the smart cauliflower ear set was the dinner at the Madison Square Garden Club in honor of James Londos, one of the heavyweight champion wrestlers. That is to say, the dinner was intended as an honor to Mr. Londos. Due to some misunderstanding, Mr. Joe Humphries, the toastmaster, inferred that the occasion was arranged as a testimonial to himself.

The sumptuous rooms of the Madison Square Garden Club were appropriately decorated with sprigs of cauliflower, the guests entering the scene of splendor and extravagant beauty trod on a carpet of rubber checks and, in keeping with the general motif of the occasion, the only eating utensils laid beside the plates were cold chisels.

Mr. Jack Curley, the promoter of wrestling contests, stood at the head of the receiving line, counting the guests with an experienced box-office man at his side to double-check the tally, as the repast had been supplied on a basis of so much per head. Mr. Tammany Young was thrown out four times, a new world's record.

THROW-OUT RECORD IS MADE

During the evening, at such periods as Mr. Humphries paused to fortify himself with the costly viands, there were enthusiastic demands from the far end of the table for a speech by that peerless statesman, Senator Wild Will Lyons, which presently were traced to none other than that peerless statesman, Senator Wild Will Lyons. At one juncture Senator Lyons reached into his flask pocket and whipped out his pearl-handled pistol.

But an alert cheer leader, perceiving this move, danced before the disorderly element, waving his arms and crying, "All right, now; all together, fellows; he is coming out for the second half. I want nine loud raspberries for Senator Wild Will Lyons, the peerless statesman."

They were given with extraordinary cordiality, and the senator yielded the floor again to Mr. Humphries, still brandishing his pearl-handled pistol.

Mr. Humphries said, in very small part: "My friends, wrestlers, members of the 600 millionaires, sporting writers and gentlemen, it is a wonderful tribute that you are gathered here to pay to a man than whom I can say without fear of contradiction and I want to tell you right here and now without fear or favor it reminds me of a time when dear old Tex Rickard, God rest his soul, was alive and there, my friends, you can say whatever you want to about him, even if he was a four-flusher and a conniver, but he was the world's greatest promoter next to ——"

A voice: ("He's a liar!") "I see," Mr. Humphries went on, passing a refined glare in the general direction of his own game, which was wavering over a wide area, "I see that we unfortunately have the misfortune to have with us tonight some undesirable characters who do not know how to realize the solemn occasion that we are gathered here tonight, unlike the days of old when men were men, and I often think back to those times in the old Garden when the incomparable—the infidictumous—the, if I may be permitted to say so, there has never been his equal either as a man or as an evening which we will all remember with a tear in our eyes for my friend, Jack Curley, always the same through thick or thin, and I am proud to honor him with my presence on this festive occasion, for which, needless to say it, I thank you one and all as a fitting tribute to my 40 years of fearless sportsmanship, square dealing and integrity, bar none."

CURLEY IS HANDED A BOOST

At this point there was a diversion on the alum quarter of the table where Mr. Izzy Kaplan, the photographer, was assembled. Mr. Kaplan had drained a cask of near-beer and was now playing the same like a flute, with attendant sounds not unlike those which ill-bred persons create in sucking the pith out of a hollow T bone.

The orchestra met the emergency, discoursing "Joseph Humphries, the Man Than Whom."

When the last sad strains of this piece were yet reverberating through the hall, Mr. Humphries resumed to say, in small part, as follows:

"John McGraw, Terry McGovern, George M. Cohan, Stanley Ketchel—I have known them all and any lowdown, ignorant phoney and I don't care whether he be a president of some millionaire corporation or a bum in the gutter, it makes no difference."

Spencer May Relent Today; Marberry Parley Defers.

Griffith Demands Big Pitcher Guarantee His Condition.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

OF the eight Nationals who have not yet accepted salary terms for the coming season, President Clark Griffith admits that he is having trouble swinging two—Pitcher Fred Marberry and Catcher Roy Spencer—into line. The latter, however, is expected to sign up today, having been asked by the Nationals' owner to come on from his home at Augusta for a heart-to-heart conference, but indications are that the big pitcher will not enter the fold until he and Griffith get together at the Biloxi camp.

"Fred has been drawing a top-notch salary," said the Nationals' owner last night, "and, before I agree to give him one for 1931 I want what might be called 'guaranteed service' for the whole season. Last year Trainer Mike Martin insisted that he wasn't doing enough work at the training camp, but Fred insisted that he was ready. Manager Johnson gave him the opening-day pitching assignment and he lost that game, weakening badly after the first few innings. He was pounded hard in every other game he started until May 25, when he went the route while holding Boston to three hits. After being hit hard several times it finally dawned on Fred that he was not physically fit and the club lost his services for nearly six weeks while he was working himself into condition.

Griffith Wants Star
In Shape.

"I don't intend to pay big money to Marberry if he is going to loaf in the spring and not be ready to pitch good ball when the season opens, and have so written him. Our correspondence has been friendly and Fred appears willing to meet me half way. In my last letter I told him just how I felt about the matter and asked him to make me a proposition—perhaps a bonus one, based on him being ready to go the route when the season starts.

"I haven't received any proposition from Marberry yet, but I received a letter from him yesterday asking permission to go to Hot Springs for preliminary work and a course of baths and intimating that we would get together upon his arrival at the Biloxi camp. This is all right with me. "If Marberry can do a little throwing at the Springs, he need not report at Biloxi until March 1, but if he plans merely to take the baths and hike, I've told him to get there within a week or two in order that he can do this extra work in time to report at camp on February 26 as ordered."

Marberry's Judgment Proves Poor.

While President Griffith appears to be taking harsh measures in Marberry's case, the fact of the matter is that he, like most ball players, does not know when he is in shape. This business of taking off weight and getting the whole body physically fit is difficult for the players and Trainer Martin, whose duty it is to see that this is done, is regarded by all but the skinny ones, like Bobby Burke, as a taskmaster.

On several occasions, including last spring, Marberry has talked his way out of some of the work needed to get him on edge. No one questions but what he has been honest in his belief that he was fit, but the team has been the sufferer when the player later admitted that he was wrong.

This spring President Griffith is determined that Marberry will be "right."

Cosgrove, of Blues, Faces Baltimore U.

Del Cosgrove, Gallaudet's high scoring forward, is recovering rapidly from an attack of influenza, and is expected to take his usual post when the Blue dribblers meet the speedy Baltimore University five in the Kendall Green gymnasium Saturday night.

Cosgrove's return is regarded as most timely because the Blues anticipate one of their hardest games of the season. The Californian represents nearly half of the team's offense. Cosgrove was taken ill about 10 days ago.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

IN 1928, Senor Jose Gomez, a 100 per cent Argentine Indian, was still on active service under the Argentine colors. Gomez was by no means old and decrepit, but was perfectly fit, physically and mentally to perform his duties as a soldier.

Usually packages with no address are delivered to the Dead Letter Office, but not so with a parcel received last December by the postoffice of Ottawa, Canada. Knowing that the package contained some one's Christmas present, H. W. Mix, the assistant postmaster, carefully opened it and found a greeting card, "From Sarah to Miss Foulds." After searching the telephone directory Mr. Mix found that the package was intended for Miss Anna V. Foulds, a teacher of the High School of Commerce, and had been mailed by one of her pupils.

Joseph Golliher seems to have had a strong preference for the letter "Z." His dog was named Zip.

"Recruiting" Charge Is Ridiculed

Army A. A. Member Denies He Knew of Goff's Grid Talent.

Cadet Is Blamed for 'Boyish Enthusiasm' in Friend's Case.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—When he first initiated efforts to obtain an appointment for Kenneth Goff, Rhode Island State back-field star, to West Point, W. T. Wrightson, New York businessman and member of the Army Athletic Association, did not know the boy was a football player nor was he interested in "recruiting" gridiron talent for the Army forces.

This statement by Wrightson, whose name has figured conspicuously in the Providence Bulletin's disclosures of alleged recruiting on behalf of the Military Academy, followed the publication of several additional statements and letters today, all revolving around the case of the Brockton, Mass., boy who as late as yesterday wrote his friend, Cadet Paul Carroll, that "I do hope to get the chance to enter West Point."

Goff will not enter West Point, but the unofficial attempt to obtain an appointment for him through Congressman Stobbs, of Worcester, Mass., has developed something of a teapot tempest.

Letter Indicates Interest
In Matter by Coach,

The Providence Bulletin today published another letter from Cadet Carroll to his former classmate at Rhode Island, Goff indicating Maj. Ralph Sasse, West Point's football coach, had taken an interest in the case to the extent of suggesting what Goff could do to further his chances of appointment.

At West Point, Maj. Philip B. Fleming, the graduate manager, issued a statement saying the charges of proselyting by Army were "decidely farfetched, and giving the details of exchanges between Carroll and Goff showing, Maj. Fleming said, that it was a clear case of "boyish enthusiasm and admiration for his school, together with an effort of a civilian to help a deserving boy to get into the Military Academy."

Dismissed Matter From Mind, Says Sasse.

Supplementing this, Maj. Sasse said: "I told Carroll what he could suggest to Goff, just as I would tell the same thing to any boy. Naturally, I could take no steps otherwise. As a matter of fact, I never gave the matter another thought. It would be utterly ridiculous for me to attempt to recruit football players."

Meanwhile Wrightson told the Associated Press quite frankly his part in the case, exhibiting the correspondence he had with Goff and others. He denied he was actuated by any motive other than a desire to see an ambitious boy enter West Point.

"I have never seen Goff," he said. "I did not know he was a football player at all until this story came out. I first heard about him from Cadet Carroll, his friend, who came to see if I could do anything for Goff."

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Pat O'Hara Wood, Australian tennis player, has joined the ranks of the professionals. He hopes to compete against William T. Tilden's team when they visit Australia this year.

United Five to Seek Third A. A. U. Honors

Seeking his third A. A. U. championship, "Wally" Wolowitz is entering the United Typewriter Uniteds in the A. A. U. tourney, sponsored by The Post.

Wolowitz is relying on Scheele, Bob Freeman, Bill Washburn, Holden Ourand, Mike Hunt, Thurston Dean and the Duryee brothers to repeat his 1927 and 1929 successes.

The Uniteds open tonight against the Woodsides, in the Silver Spring High School gymnasium, at 8 o'clock.

Stribling Will Answer Schmeling With Mitts

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—W. L. (Young) Stribling is going to "talk" with his "mitts."

That was the Macon heavyweight's answer to Max Schmeling's statement in New York today that he would beat Stribling when they fight in June for the heavyweight title.

"What do you expect him to say?" queried the Georgian. "Well, I'll do my talking in the ring with the mitts. I am ready for him now."

Stribling and his wife flew here in their plane Sunday for a week's hunting trip.

V. P. I. DOWNS V. M. I. FIVE, 28 TO 27

Hall and Belote Are Heroes in Great Uphill Fight.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Jan. 28.—V. P. I.'s quitet spurted in the waning moments of a great court battle here tonight to thrill a capacity crowd with a 28-to-27 victory over V. M. I. Trailing by 5 points at the half, Hall and Belote raced through a fighting Cadet five to whittle their slender lead, jump ahead by the barest of margins, and hold it in the final minute.

Bus Hall and Benny Palmer boosted the Gobblers to a 10-to-5 lead midway the opening half by neat shooting only to have Tech's five falter on the home stretch. Palmer shot from midfloor to match the first score by Granger and Hall, spurted to ring up eight more. Like a cyclone the Keydets broke loose to nip the lead and forge ahead.

Cadets Lead by 5 Points
At the Half.

The Brown brothers alternated at close range, and Megenhagen, tall center, came in fast to sink two more. Hall sank two foul shots to bring the count to 17 to 12 at the half. Joe Barley and Bus Hall whittled the Keydet advantage to a single point as the half opened, but Gregory and R. Brown retaliated, to win back a 5-point margin.

Fighting brilliantly Tech and their rivals made the turn. R. Brown, raced in to score, then added another before Belote sank two at short range to cut the lead to a single point, Hall outsmarted the squadron to put the Gobblers in front, 27 to 26, never again to be headed.

Day and McAtee Win In Miami Beach Golf

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Win Day, Chicago, favorite in the Miami Beach men's amateur golf championship, won his second round match today from Lloyd Newman, of Buffalo, 2 and 1.

Kenneth Berry, of Miami, has to shoot 78 over the difficult La Gorce course to win 3 and 1 from W. T. Higbie, of Detroit, in their quarter finals match.

Jack Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., advanced to the semi-finals by winning through default of Clarence Cobb, of Cincinnati. Richard Bullen, of New York, medalist, fell before Linus "Pony" McAtee, of Jamaica, Long Island, in his quarter final match, 2 and 1.

Paris, Jan. 28.—Three of the outstanding tennis players of France will take part in the matches for the covered court championships of the United States, it was announced here today. They are Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus, and they will compete under the colors of the French Lawn Tennis Federation. The contests are to be held at the Seventh Regiment Tennis Club in New York. Borotra, Brugnon and Boussus will sail for the United States on March 4.

After the matches at New York, these three musketeers of French tennis" will compete under the Davis Cup rules in exhibition matches on March 23, 24 and 25, against a team which the United States Lawn Tennis Federation will organize.

Whitney's Easter Hero Wins Again in England

Sandown, England, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—J. H. Whitney's grand national candidate, Easter Hero, had another outing today in preparation for the major race and galloped eight lengths to victory in the Mole handicap steeplechase over a course of 2¼ miels and 75 yards.

Mrs. Hollin's Blaris was second and Martin Smith's Guiding Light third in the four horse race.

Easter Hero again was a short priced favorite, paying 4 for 5. Blaris was 11 to 8 and Guiding Light 20 to 1.

The race was worth 200 sterling ($1,000) to Whitney.

Liverpool, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The field for the Grand National Steeplechase to be run at Aintree, March 27, was cut to 62 today when 33 horses were withdrawn at the first calling of nonacceptances.

Campbell's Speed Car Unloaded at Daytona

Daytona Beach, Fla., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The Blue Bird II, racing car with which Capt. Malcolm Campbell, of England, hopes to establish a new world's automobile speed record here next week, was unloaded from a freight car today and towed to a garage.

Mechanics set to work checking the 1,450 horsepower motor and the huge streamlined body. It is probable Campbell may make several practice runs later this week, but the official sanction for record trials does not start until Monday.

The present automobile speed record is 231 miles an hour, established here two years ago by the late Sir Henry Segrave, also of England.

College Star Retires as Amateur

Signs With Curley to Tour With Tilden, Kozeluh, Hunter.

Troupe Seeks to List Outdoor Exhibition Here in May.

By BOB CONSIDINE
(Post Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Emmet Pare, nationally known former member of the Georgetown University tennis team, has joined the professional tennis troupe of Bill Tilden, Karel Kozeluh and Francis Tilden, Karel Kozeluh and Francis Pare, the most famous of Georgetown University's netmen until the matriculation of Gregory Mangin at the Hilltop two years ago, today signed a contract with Jack Curley, New York promoter, who weaned Tilden from amateur ranks last month, and later signed Francis Hunter.

In renouncing his amateur status, Pare removed himself as a possibility for the Davis Cup team of 1931. He was rated sixteenth in the national rankings last year and apparently was destined to be ranked higher in 1931.

During 1926, 1927 and 1928 when he was a student at Georgetown and captain of the varsity tennis team for two seasons, Pare was a prominent contender in many tournaments of the Middle Atlantic section.

Invited to Davis Cup
Tryouts.

His play was so impressive in 1928 that he was invited to compete in the Davis Cup tryouts last year, but poor physical condition prevented his participation.

A native of Dayton, Ohio, Pare first gained national fame when he won the Western junior championship. He is the only nationally-known player who favors the use of the steel racket.

It was also learned today that Washington is likely to be one of the Tilden troupe's points of call. The seven-time national champion declared that he was negotiating with a club in the vicinity of Washington with the intention of staging an outdoor exhibition in May. The Edgemoor Club or the Columbia Country Club loom as the greatest possibilities.

The professional troupe left New York tonight for Punta Gorda, Fla., with Pare included, and will open its exhibition campaign with a series of matches in Florida next week.

Bracey, Texas Star, Enters National Sprint

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The entrance of one of America's "fastest humans" in the national indoor track and field championships to be held at Madison Square Garden February 28, was assured today with the announcement that Claude Bracey, former Rice Institute sprinter, would arrive here Friday to start training.

Accompanying Bracey will be Nelson Greer, also of Rice Institute, who won the National A. A. U. junior half-mile championship at Denver, Colo., in 1929. Bracey, who was a member of the 1928 Olympic team, won the national collegiate 100 and 220 yard championships in 1928, scoring a double victory over George Simpson, the Ohio State flash.

Although no announcement has been made, the two runners probably will appear in several meets before the national championships.

Grayson, Nats' Rookie, Starred at Warrenton

George Grayson, the Warrenton pitcher whom the Nationals will take with them to the Biloxi training camp next month, has made quite a record for himself in his home town. Two years ago, while performing on the hill for Warrenton High, he turned in a no-hit, no-run game with the Remington nine as his victims. In this game, he fanned 17 and did not issue a single pass.

Grayson, a big right-hander, with good speed and curves and excellent control, was personally scouted by Manager Walter Johnson last summer. He has been pitching four seasons, the last two with the Warrenton A. A. team. Grayson, a nephew of John B. Grayson, Warrenton postmaster, has not been offered a Washington contract but probably will be signed if his showing at Biloxi warrants a trial, either with the Nats or with the Chattanooga Lookouts.

Flagstead, Ex-Nat, Signs With Portland

Portland, Oreg., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The Portland Baseball Club of the Pacific Coast League announced today the acquisition of Ira Flagstead, veteran outfielder, who obtained his unconditional release from Pittsburgh under the ten-year rule.

Flagstead, who starred for years with the Boston Red Sox, was obtained by the Nationals via the waiver route for pinch-hitting purposes in 1929 when the Sox let the veteran go as part of their rebuilding plans. He started off well with the Nationals, but later slumped and was released, the Pittsburgh Pirates signing him after all clubs had waived on him, thus making him a free agent.

FRAZER PEORIA PILOT.

Cincinnati, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Charles (Chick) Frazier, scout and coach of the Pittsburgh Pirates for eighteen years, was named today by Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, as manager of the Peoria Three-I League team. The Reds operate Peoria as a development farm for young players.

DELAWARE BOXING O. K.

Dover, Del., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Gov. Buck today signed a bill passed by the Legislature several days ago to legalize boxing in Delaware. The measure permits not more than eight rounds in a single match and not more than a total of 30 rounds in any boxing show.

NAVY PREPS FOR FIRST BOUTS

Mass. Tech Boxers to Invade Annapolis February 7.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 28.—The opening boxing match with Massachusetts Tech on February 7 looms large before every member of the Navy boxing squad, and they are working with feverish intensity this week in preparation for it.

With only three regulars back from last year's team, there are four positions still in doubt. In fact, Capt. Mike Walace, 135 pounds, and Norman Hall, 145 pounds, are the only two boxers whose positions seem to be certain. The veteran Johnny Fitzgerald, who has held down the 125-pound class the past two seasons, is not sure of his berth this season, due to the splendid form being displayed by Frank Foley and Bill Holt. Both these featherweights are giving Fitzgerald no little amount of trouble.

Close Competition For Positions.

There are particularly close competitors in the 115-pound and 160-pound classes. Archie Wright and Al Cope are dangerous opponents of Art Dolan, of last season's plebe team in the former, while Dick Andrews will have to fight hard to keep his place against either Bert Davis or Bob Frey.

The light heavyweight and the heavyweight division are wide open, with a wealth of material trying to make them. At this writing Harlan Johnson, son of Representative Royal Johnson, of South Dakota, is slightly in lead, with Frank Brownrigg and Jim Reedy, both members of the football team, pushing him. Such big fellows as John Greathouse, Duke Crinkley, John White and Tom Carpenter, all 200-pounders, are milling away with the hope of winning the right to represent Navy in the heavyweight class.

The combatants against the boxers from Massachusetts Tech will be chosen with particular care, as the result means much to the Naval Academy.

EASTERN BOY REFEREE AS TEAM WINS

Alex. High Coach Permits Foe to Act as Arbiter.

SPORTSMANSHIP reached new heights in scholastic basket ball yesterday, when the coach of the Alexandria High School basket ball team permitted a regular member of the Eastern High five to referee the contest at Eastern, when the approved board official failed to put in an appearance. Eastern won the game, 40-26.

The contest was a return game, Eastern having triumphed on Alexandria's home floor last week, 54-18.

Eastern Second-Stringers Are Used.

Dallas Shirley, outstanding member of the Eastern team, who had a prominent part in this victory, was the player chosen to referee the game yesterday. At no time was his work protested.

Eastern, playing a second-string line-up led from the start, and at half time was in the van, 16-10. Watters, diminutive forward, led the attack with 16 points.

$750,000 Suit Names Hockey Team Owners

Chicago, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the Chicago Blackhawks, and seventeen others were made defendants today in a $750,000 suit by Edward J. Livingstone, Toronto, Canada, former owner of the Chicago Cardinals, the American Association Hockey Team. Livingstone charged conspiracy to wreck his team.

A previous suit, filed in Federal Court, was dismissed after a juror was withdrawn.

PENN STATE BEATEN BY NAVY, 45-38

Loughran and Bedell Lead Scorers in Triumph.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 28.—Flashes of fast, clever passing, offset an otherwise ragged exhibition of basket ball between Navy and Pennsylvania State College here today, which was won by Navy by a score of 45 to 38. Rivalry, born of competition between the two schools in nearly all branches of sport, was in evidence throughout the game, and the result was in doubt almost to the final whistle.

The Middies were somewhat off color, compared to previous performances, probably because of the fact that they are now in the throes of midsemester tests. However, they got together at several stages to stop the ever-threatening Lions. No fewer than five times was the count knotted, or either team was out in front during the major part of the first half.

Navy started the game with a second-string combination, and play virtually was on even terms. After Byrd Names 9 Capital Boys On All-Time Football Team Representing Maryland U.

NINE of the 11 football players picked for the all-time all-University of Maryland by H. C. (Curley) Byrd, athletic leader and gridiron coach for the past 19 years at the Old Line school, are former Washington High School players.

One of the nine, Leke Bailey, is listed as from Maryland. His home is in Bladenburg, Md., but he attended Central High School.

Intelligence, speed and ranginess, not poundage, predominate in the selections. Byrd, upon request, made the choices in quick order, not taking more than ten minutes to make up his mind definitely. His choices range from the 1912 team to the 1926 combination. This combination averages quite 178 pounds to the man, the line 181 and the backfield 171, but contains everything that goes to make up a powerful and versatile football team.

Bobby Jones Challenged to Give Pointers on Midget Golf by Radio

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones has been deluged with letters from midget golf addicts asking that he include in his weekly radio golf talks advice on how to putt through barrels, chip over goldfish ponds and approach through crooked, hollow logs.

"It is all very well," says one letter from a Pacific Coast fan, "to tell of 300-yard drives and iron shots over tall and stately elms. I'm thrilled by these intimate stories of the greatest plays of all time.

"But I'd also like to know the proper method to play on the pigmy courses, which require a technique all their own."

Whether Bobby has ever played on the midget courses is not known, and some of those who have written him indicate their belief he would not be so successful on the pint-size courses as on the 4 and 5 mile affairs where he has won so many championships.

EASTERN SEEKS 4TH SERIES VICTORY TOMORROW

Western and Tech Backs To Wall

Lincoln Park Team Favored in Second Game.

Central and Tech to Clash in Opener of Program.

IF the Dolly Sisters referee instead of the Mitchell Brothers, or if Janitor Jones does not have to be called upon to fix that ailing south basket, high school court fans will be surprised tomorrow.

After being interested, excited, thrilled and finally pop-eyed at some of the series happenings, the rooters have reached a stage of basket ball sophistication where anything that Central may do to Tech or Eastern may do to Western, or visa versa, will create no more excitement than the ringing of the second period bell back at school. All of which may or may not be a slight exaggeration.

In an ordinary series it would be safe to say that the championship hopes of Tech and Western hinge on the two contests. These teams took beatings from Eastern and Business, respectively, last Friday, and defeats tomorrow would bring their records to two victories and four losses. But, inasmuch as the first series ended in a five-way tie, it is not impossible that the second group of games will not go the same way.

Eastern Seeks 4th Victory.

Eastern seeks its fourth victory in its clash with Western and success will make Eastern the favorite to take the title for the second time since the series began. Eastern then will have Central and Business in its path. Many believe that the Lincoln Parkers, with Noonan in top shape, and the Stenographers without Bobby Lucas, will reverse the decision on Business.

However, the Western sharpshooters—Latona and Buscher—may have their eyes sharpened today. At any rate, a battle as good as the previous clash of the clubs, in which Eastern won, 32-26, is expected.

If Tech and Central repeat their last game, which ended in a 26-25 decision for Tech, fans are sure to get their fill of action. There is no doubt that Central has improved greatly since thas contest, but, while bare results do not show it, Tech is still a high-class basket ball team, which is not going ot be uncrownde without a whole lot of fighting basket ball.

Fans will have to wait until Friday to see what the Lucas-less Business Team can do toward staying in the championship going.

—Miami Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

WITH the racing strip at Miami in fast condition, Racing Secretary Wallace has arranged an attractive card of six supporting races to the Anglers Claiming Handicap, which will feature the program. The main event, the fifth race, which has been fashioned for 3-year-olds and upward, will be contested over the 6-furlong sprint distance. A field of five top-notch speedsters will be sent after the major portion of $1,200 added value of the purse.

DR. PARRISH, from the W. E. Martin Stable, has shown speed in his recent efforts. Although the Light Brigade gelding lost a head decision to Black Watch, he is favored to improve enough to take down the important money. OKAY BEE faltered in his last race over the mile course, after forcing the pace most of the way. The Carroll color-bearer will appreciate the shorter distance and should furnish the contention. GRACIOUS GIFT returns to the races after a long rest, and is selected for the minor award. THE GEN and GREENOCK, the other two starters, are lightly weighted, but appear outclassed in this field.

FIRST RACE—Nine 3-year-olds will face the barrier in the opening 6-furlong dash. LITTLE TOOTS, the fast-stepping daughter of Black Servant, is the class of this affair, and should lead from the drop of the flag. FLYING CHEROKEE suffered interference last start, and made up considerable ground to finish a fast-closing third. With better racing luck, the Dodge racer figures to extend the top selection. REST EASY appears best of the others and is given the show call.

SECOND RACE—Two-year-old maiden colts and geldings will match strides over the quarter-mile dash of the second number. Among the field of twelve nonwinners, nine are first starters. DON RED showed a high turn of speed in his debut, but lost a nose decision to Judge Primrose. The California Stable's promising juvenile is selected over this unruly field. SIBERIA, an unsexed son of St. James-Sanberia, has displayed fast trials and may prove dangerous. BIG VOICE has schooled well and should finish in the picture.

THIRD RACE—The third event will bring together ten 3-year-old claimers in a 6-furlong sprint. TALIS, a Polymelian filly trained by Moe Simon, defeated a better field the other day and is ready for another winning effort. VOLTA BUSH has been raced into better condition and should offer the opposition. MYNHEER appeared a trifle short in his last attempt and should improve off that effort.

FOURTH RACE—The Hallandale Purse, an allowance affair for 3-year-olds exclusively, a gallop of a mile, will serve as the secondary feature today. The fourth event has attracted another small field of five starters. LIGHTNING BOLT, a recent winner at this track, appears admirably placed in this event. The 3-year-old Wrack gelding picks up six pounds off his winning effort and despite the added weight is given the call. This weight-carrying speed ball has been selected as the most probable winner of the entire card. IMPISH, from the Wheatley establishment, is moving up a notch and may finish in the runner-up position. DIS DAME, a recent graduate from the maiden ranks, is given the show call.

SIXTH RACE—A field of seven 4-year-old platers will be sent over the three-quarter route in the sixth event. GERMAINE CHAUVELOT, a fleet mare owned by E. McCuan, showed a return to her best form recently in leading Zeta and Port Harlem to the wire in a spirited battle. The McCuan 7-year-old is well suited by the conditions and figures to annex the purse. MAKE BELIEVE, from the J. E. Smallman stable, has worked well over the Hialeach course, and on his Bowie record should force the pace. GUIDE RIGHT has shown improvement of late and may finish in the money.

SEVENTH RACE—In the closing affair eight 4-year-olds and upward will be dispatched at a mile and an eighth. DODGSON gained an easy victory over Croyden in his previous outing and will favor the distance. The Everglade Stable plater has raced consistently and is selected to capture the purse. MADDER weakened after leading throughout in his last race at a mile and a half, but should appreciate the shorter route.

BIG MUTUELS PAID AT MIAMI

Poinciana, at $62.40, Longest Shot of Day to Win.

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A very ordinary program of seven claiming events was offered the racegoers to wrestle with at the Hialeah track today. They were not very successful, as long-priced horses won a majority of the races.

The fourth race, a six-furlong sprint, was won by J Denquoto's Poinciana, ridden by Tommy Malley, and paid $62.40 for a $2 ticket. Perkins was second and the favorite, Sunny Pal, third. Red Cross Sister, one of the well-played horses, failed to get away at the start and was a distant trailer for entire trip.

Poinciana Rushes to Safe Early Lead.

Poinciana, alert at the gate, rushed to the front and, showing good speed, took a safe lead early over Sunny Pal, who was being taken all over the track. Poinciana, after making all the pace, had enough left in the stretch to stall off the determined challenge of Perkins and win by half a length in 1:12 2-5.

The Justa Farm's Justa Moment, paying $42.50 for a $2 ticket, was a driving winner of the "baby" race, running the quarter time in 0:23 1-5. Chinkee was second, with Bonnet third. Parties, the favorite, had scant chance after the crowding at the start.

Playfellow's Dream, paying $20.90, won the fifth race by a head over Prince Tokalon with Bounding Deep third. Tony Joe, odds-on favorite, failed to finish in the money, being a bad fourth.

best all-around athlete ever at Maryland, could do everything that a back should do—pass, kick, run with the ball and play defense.

Brooke Brewer could do all these things, and was one of the fastest men ever to play football in America. He ran the 100 in 9 4-5 seconds and the 220 in 22 4-5, being the schoolboy sprint champion of the country in 1915, the year before he entered Maryland.

Brewer, in Byrd's opinion, was the greatest kicker ever produced in American football. Samples of his prowess can be given by referring to three games. In 1918 in a clash with V. M. I., Brewer stood 8 yards back of his own goal line to punt. On the next play, V. M. I. punted from behind its own goal. Brewer having sent the ball out of bounds on the Cadets' 3-yard mark with a mighty boot.

Field Goal in 1921

Beat Syracuse.

In 1921, when Maryland surprised the football world by beating Syracuse, 10 to 7, Brewer six times punted over the safety man's head for about 70 yards each time, and then wound up his day's work by booting a drop-kick from a difficult angle from the 42-yard line to win the game.

Probably his greatest kicking feat was turned in in Oriole Park in Baltimore in 1921 against North Carolina State. This game was played in a pouring rain with the field ankle deep in mud, yet Brewer twice sent the ball across the bar from drop-kicks, both from nearly 40 yards away, to tie the count at 6-all. Mud splashed in his face when he dropped the ball to the ground and there were pounds of mud hanging to his shoes. Al Sharpe, famous Yale player, who refereed the game, declared that it was the greatest kicking feat in the history of football. Conditions hardly could have been worse, but the ball each time whistled well above the bar and almost in the center of the goal posts and carried much farther than was necessary.

McQuade and Mackert

Defensive Stars.

McQuade and Mackert both were remarkably powerful defensive backs and effective blockers, while the former was a great line plunger and the best passer ever to wear the Old Gold and Black of Maryland. He had an arm like Shorty Chalmers, of the present Maryland grid force, and was aided by his height of 6 feet 1 inch.

Everything that goes to make up a great forward wall is offered in the seven linemen chosen. They would wreck the opposition both offensively and defensively. Supplee, Heagy and Burger all were great pass receivers, Bailey, a roving center of brilliance, and all the others measured up to their tasks in every respect.

eight minutes had elapsed, the teams were in a deadlock at 11-all. Then Coach Johnny Wilson sent his regulars into the breach, but the Nittanys managed to hold their own until within four minutes of the close of the half, when Loughran and Bedell, Navy scoring aces, led a rally that sent the home team out in front with a 9-point margin, at 29 to 20 when the whistle sounded.

This rally, as subsequent events revealed, saved the day for the Tars, for in the second half the visitors held an edge in general play and outscored the Middies by two points. At no stage of the final half, however, were the Lions again able to bring themselves on even terms in the scoring, 5 points being the closest approach to knotting the count.

SAYS PEGLER

ference to me because, when the great umpire calls we are all one and the same without any distinction, absolutely, until we come to my friend and pal, Bill Carey, the president of Madison Square Garden, a squarer square-shooter you never met without fear of favor and I will look any man in the eye right here and now, with my record of 40 years of faithful service announcing fights for all the champions as they come and go and I might say that the most of them were a lot of fine fellows, but plenty of them were phoneys and bums, at that, as you will all, I am sure, uphold by fearless judgment.

HUMPHRIES ON FEET AT 2 A. M.

At 2 a. m., one of the guests, a bum, no doubt, was starting home with a cluster of about 50 toy souvenir hats. Mr. Humphries was still on his feet acknowledging the honor which this turn-out of the wit and chivalry of all that was highest in sportsmanship in the empire city of the world, ruled over by that faithful little pal and square-shooting friend and the next President of the U. S., Jimmy Walker (cheers), had done him when another guest espied the guest who was starting home with all the trick hats strung together by the elastic strings. By this time the barriers of formality had been burned away by the fires of fellowship and enthusiasm, and Mr. Kaplan,, emerging from his keg, inquired:

"Vot hissit; you should stealink hall de hets from hall de customers?"

"I am taking these home to my kiddies," the other guest said.

"Feefty hats he is taking home to his keeds," Mr. Kaplan exclaimed, diving back into the keg. "He has feefty keeds. He is not a man. He is a herrink."

A dainty collation was served, followed by nonalcoholic fruit punch, from a recipe by Mrs. Elia Boole, of the W. C. T. U., and just before the patrol wagons called to take the guests home, Mr. Humphries again thanked the assemblage for the appropriate honor which they had done him, which was only a deserved honor, as he said, and a trifle delayed, after all, without fear or favor.

The guests departed to the cry of Senator Wild Will Lyons, the peerless statesman. "My friends, we are gathered here tonight——"

Also present was Jim Londos, champion heavyweight wrestler.

FAIRFAX TO PROCEED WITH WATER BONDS

Owners of Dogs Warned to Procure Licenses at County Office.

C. C. CARR IS CANDIDATE

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Fairfax town council at a special meeting voted to proceed with the issuance of the bonds for a municipal water system. The bonds were authorized at an election last fall, but the issuance has been held up pending the settlement of protests filed with the council against locating of the water tower and wells on the property purchased by the town from the estate of J. R. Allison on Payne street, near the courthouse.

The special committee appointed by Mayor Thomas P. Chapman to confer with those objecting to the location reported that they had interviewed the protesting parties and they presented a communication from John H. Barbour, who made the principal protest. Members of the council refused to discuss the contents of the letter written by Mr. Barbour, but they stated that he had withdrawn most of his objections with reservations and the council came to the conclusion that the tower should be located on the site originally planned.

A test of the well that has been drilled to a depth of more than 300 feet will be made today and if found pure and with a flow of 50 gallons a minute another well will be drilled and work of supplying the water to residents will be pushed rapidly. The contractors will begin laying the mains soon.

Crocket C. Carr, 55, of Fairfax, yesterday announced himself as a Democratic candidate for the office of County Treasurer, which is now held by Dr. Frank W. Huddleson.

Mr. Carr has been a resident of Fairfax County for eighteen years and is an active worker in the educational and political circles of the county. Previous to moving into Fairfax County he taught school in southwest Virginia, and is a graduate of the University of Nashville, Tenn.

For several years he engaged in farming near Herndon, later moving into Herndon, where he was elected as a member of the Herndon Town Council. Later he was elected mayor. At present he is president of the District Cooperative Educational Association and secretary of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce. During the past year he has served as clerk of the Fairfax County Board of Assessors and clerk of the Board of Tax Equalization and Review. He is married and has four daughters.

At the annual business meeting of the Volunteer Fire Department, at Herndon, T. Edgar Reid was elected president; George F. Harrison, vice president; Howard M. Armfield, secretary; Benjamin F. McGuire, treasurer; Walter A. Farr, fire chief; Thomas Groff, first assistant fire chief; Holden Harrison, second assistant fire chief; H. Arnold Greear, third assistant fire chief; David Horn, fire marshal; Eustace Taylor, electrician, and John Hurst, trustee.

Annual dues are now payable. The department was notified that the Herndon Town Council has agreed to pay all gasoline bills for the fire apparatus. Chief Farr was given permission to grant the request of the Martinsburg (W. Va.) Fire Department to demonstrate the efficiency of the Herndon Fire Department's apparatus.

Fairfax County Game Warden A. B. Carter has issued a warning to all persons owning dogs in the county that licenses must be procured before next Sunday and the tags on the dogs, as the time limit expires on January 31. The dog licenses can be bought at the county treasurer's office in Fairfax.

County Commissioner of Revenue James U. Kincheloe warns all persons that licenses for business and professional men must be purchased before Saturday evening. Otherwise the penalty will attach as prescribed by State law.

Thomas, Fairfax County home demonstration agent, will give a public demonstration this afternoon to the women of the Andrew Chapel community who are interested in forming a local home demonstration club. The Kenmore Council has perfected plans for the district meeting. The entertainment committee is composed of Mrs. Francis Lanham, of Andrew Chapel; Mrs. Leon Fritter, of Ballston, and Mrs. Annie Robey, of Alexandria. Refreshments will be served under the direction of Mrs. G. Ashley Money. Mrs. Bessie Kenyon, of Vienna district, deputy State councilor, will preside.

The Rev. Royal A. Rice, pastor of the Southern Methodist Church at Fairfax, will present an illustrated lecture, "Dream Pictures," this evening at the church, for the benefit of the parsonage fund. The lecture is a result of several years of effort and more than 50,000 miles of travel. Scenes will be shown from national parks and forests of the West.

ARLINGTON WOMEN FAVOR WORLD COURT

Postponement of Vote on U. S. Entrance Hit by Voters League.

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Indorsement of a resolution asking Senators Claude A. Swanson and Carter Glass to use their influence in reversing postponement on a favorable vote regarding entrance of the United States into the World Court was given by the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County at its meeting yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the Cherrydale Firemen's Hall.

Miss Eleanor D. Brannan, associate secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, declared that America today is the leader of the world, but refuses to accept the responsibility. She further stated that 13 out of 96 senators have thus far succeeded in preventing this Government from entering the World Court.

Miss Brannan strongly indorsed the entrance of the United States into the World Court and appealed to the members present to call upon their senators to urge the passage of the bill.

Another resolution which had the indorsement of the executive committee was read by the secretary and unanimously approved.

Context of Resolution.

The resolution reads:

"That the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County commend the action of the American Civic Association for its crusade to clean up and beautify the 20-mile metropolitan area of the National Capital, particularly in relation to the matter of signboards along the highways."

The resolution further cites that Frederic A. Delano be commended for his action in suggesting tothe various companies now using signboards for advertising purposes that it would be a fine patriotic gesture if they discontinue this practice within the metropolitan area.

The resolution further recommands to the county board of supervisors and zoning administrator that the county zoning ordinance be so amended as to prohibit the further granting of permits for the erection of signboards in any part of Arlington County, excepting small ones advertising products manufactured or for sale on the premises.

A copy of this resolution will be sent to Miss Harlean James, secretary of the American Civic Association; Mr. Delano, National Capital Park and Planning Commission; Robert H. Forman, zoning administrator, Arlington County Civic Federation; C. L. Kinnier, county engineer, and to the county board of supervisors.

Officers Are Elected.

Mrs. Ruby Simpson, of Washington District, was unanimously reelected to serve her third term as president. Other officers are Mrs. Ruby Lowell, of Arlington District, vice president; Mrs. Anna J. Sloan, of Jefferson District, recording secretary; Mrs. Edith Walton, of Washington District, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ada Davidson, of Washington District, treasurer; Mrs. Ethel Cook, of Arlington District, registrar, and Mrs. Florence E. Cannon, of Arlington District, parliamentarian.

District chairmen are: Arlington District, Mrs. Mabel Lewis; Jefferson District, Mrs. Jessie Skidmore, and Washington District, Mrs. Ruth W. Smith.

Membership committee — Mrs. Julia D. Richart, Mrs. Pauline A. Smith and Mrs. Lola Miller, from Jefferson District; Mrs. Edith Rose, Mrs. Mary Snyder and Mrs. Ruth Lowell, from Arlington District, and Mrs. Dorothy Dunn, Mrs. Helen A. Fellows and Mrs. M. E. Reid, from Washington District.

The president announced that other standing committee appointments would be given out within the next 30 days.

The Livingstone Heights Citizens Association, meeting last night, completed plans to develop the maximum voting strength of that section at the coming county election when county officers for the next four years will be elected. It will be the aim of the association to see that every eligible resident of Livingstone Heights is properly registered and has all the required poll taxes paid. A committee cohsisting of Grayson A. Ahalt, Walter G. Campbell and James W. Sommerville will direct the work.

Unanimous endorsement was given the following resolution, offered by Lieut. Comdr. P. T. Wright:

"That the association heartily indorses the movement looking to the removal of signboard advertising from the highways and approaches to the National Capital as well as all unsightly conditions is in the best interest of Washington and its environs.

"Further, that the association is in hearty accord with the movement to clean up Arlington County."

The resolution further sets forth that the association offers its active cooperation with the American Civic Association, and all other organizations of Arlington County, in any movement to accomplish the further beautification of Arlington County as an integral part of the Nation's Capital during the celebration in 1932 in honor of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

Through an error it appeared that the Thrifton Village Improvement League adopted a resolution approving the illumination of signboards along the highway. It should have read that the league strongly approved the movement for the elimination of all signboards.

The condition of E. C. Turnburke, of Cherrydale, supervisor from Washington District, who has been confined with illness to his home for the past week, was reported as much improved last night.

Election of officers of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce will be held tonight in the offices of the Brumback Realty Company, in the Rees Building, at Clarendon. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock.

With but three days remaining, County Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green announces that revenue licenses for stores, professions and other businesses requiring them must be obtained not later than Saturday of this week. Applications for license should be sworn to before licenses can be issued. Failure to renew licenses by Saturday will subject all individuals and firms requiring them to a penalty of 10 per cent, Commissioner Green states.

Col. R. H. Leavitt, R. O. T. C. office, 3rd Corps Area, conducted the midwinter inspection of the cadet corps at the Washington Lee High School yesterday morning There were 150 uniformed cadets in line.

The county board of supervisors will hold its monthly meeting in the courthouse tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock with Chairman Edward Duncan presiding.

The Rev. John H. Pearson, pastor of the Clarendon Methodist Church, is announced as the principal speaker at the meeting of the Arlington County Monarch Club to be held today in the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse. President Albert H. Cohen will preside. The program will include recitations by Mrs. Pearson.

The Arlington County Business and Professional Woman's Club will hold a benefit card party tonight at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse.

The League of Republican Women of Arlington County, will meet tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. Mary Dudley, Chain Bridge road, Cherrydale, at which time there will be an election of a nominating committee.

Colvin Run Arson Hearing Postponed

William Adams Will Face Trial February 13, Due to New Evidence.

The trial of William Adams, colored, former convict, of Colvin Run, Va., on an indictment charging arson of the home of Daniel Sullivan, when Sullivan's wife and three small children were burned to death last November, which was scheduled to be heard yesterday before Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Fairfax County Circuit Court, has been postponed until February 13, because of recently discovered evidence.

A warrant was issued yesterday morning by the Fairfax County authorities for Rufus Adams, a brother of William Adams, living on K street, near Twenty-eighth street northwest, in Washington, for the felonious shooting of Joseph Woodley, also colored, during a "craps game" in the fall of 1927, near Colvin Run.

It is also claimed by the Fairfax authorities that rumors had reached them that since William Adams had been arrested on the arson charge, Rufus has been in the Colvin Run neighborhood, telling the witnesses what to testify in court concerning his brother.

The January term of the county circuit court usually ends this week, but Judge McCarthy stated that he would return to Fairfax on February 13 to hear the case against Adams before closing the term.

Baltimore Banker Gives Up; Is Bailed

M. B. Delcher Surrenders in Chesapeake Failure; Two Others Held.

Baltimore, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Charged by the grand jury with peculations totaling $95,469, Milton B. Delcher, vice president of the Chesapeake Bank, which closed December 9, surrendered today and provided $25,000 bail.

He had been sought since yesterday, along with Frederick W. Kahl, a depositor of the bank, accused of conspiracy to obtain $40,870 by fraud. Kahl, jointly accused with James I. Smith, manager of one of the bank's branches, was expected to provide $10,000 bond later in the day. Smith was ill at his home and a police guard was sent there.

The three were presented, usually equivalent to indictment under Maryland law, by the grand jury yesterday after an investigation in progress more than a week.

MONTGOMERY CLUB INSTITUTE TO BEGIN

Fire Department Sponsors Mass Meeting at Silver Spring.

"HE-NIGHT" FETE IS SET

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post.
9103 Conn. ave., North Chevy Chase, Md.
Telephone Wisconsin 4205

Maryland's most prominent clubwomen will conduct a club institute this afternoon at the Presbyterian Church of Chevy Chase Circle under auspices of the Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, will head the group. Mrs. Matthew Gault of Baltimore, State chairman of club institutes, will be in charge of the program. Mrs. R. W. Nicolls, State vice chairman of the State committee on education, will detail the proposed year's program.

Mrs. Paul Criblet, of Towson, will speak on the work of the fine arts committee and Mrs. Calvin Gabriel, of Baltimore, will describe the national program for the citizenship committee. Miss Estelle Moore, of Sandy Spring, former county president and State chairman of the committee on public welfare, will tell of child welfare work, assisted by Mrs. William J. Brown of the State committee on correction and prison and Mrs. Ethel M. Troy, of Baltimore.

Mrs. G. E. Purnell Truitt, of Baltimore, will speak on junior membership and Mrs. R. Frank Skutch, president of the Baltimore district, will make a plea for the Foundation Fund. Mrs. J. Enos Ray, of Chillum, State director, and Mrs. Rudolph S. Allen, of College Park, president of the Prince Georges County Federation, will be guests of honor.

An executive board meeting will be held in the morning followed by a luncheon at which the visitors will be guests. The institute will begin at 1:30 p. m. One of the features of the afternoon will be the talk of Mrs. Frank M. Hoadley, of Chevy Chase, who is editor of the Maryland Clubwoman.

Mrs. B. Peyton Whalen, of Alta Vista, who is president of the county federation, will introduce the speakers.

A special committee of the Montgomery County council of home demonstration clubs headed by Mrs. James D. King, president of the council, tomorrow will confer with officials at the University of Maryland extension service regarding the location of a farm woman's market at Bethesda.

Judge Robert B. Peter, in circuit court at Rockville, yesterday dismissed a cross bill for divorce filed by Samuel Jewell, of Silver Spring, and affirmed the limited divorce granted Mrs. Edna Jewell, June 13, 1930.

The husband had alleged infidelity in his cross bill and named a corespondent but the judge held that all of the circumstances pointed out appeared to be innocent and that there was not enough evidence to show infidelity.

The couple was married February 4, 1901, and has five children, only one of whom is under age. Judge Peter granted the wife, who is represented by Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, of Rockville, alimony of $25 a month.

The Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a mass meeting of civic organization representatives of the Silver Spring area tonight at 8 o'clock in the Fire Hall, at which plans for future development of the department will be discussed. The delegates also will be given an opportunity to view the new pumper engine of the department which it is testing now before finally accepting for service.

Former Gov. Samuel R. McKelvie of Nebraska, a member of the Federal Farm Board, will address the annual meeting of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau Saturday at the Rockville Courthouse. Dr. F. B. Bomberger, of the University of Maryland, and associated with the Federal Farm Board, also will talk.

Josiah W. Jones, of Olney, president of the Farm Bureau, will preside. Otto W. Anderson, county agricultural agent, will outline the program for the year, with special emphasis on drought-relief work.

Richard C. Birney, of Aspen, has been elected president of the newly formed Glenmont Citizens Association. Other officers elected were: Don E. Clarke, of Glenmont; Edmund H. Royal, of Lay Hill, and William D. Buck, of Wheaton, vice presidents; Donald Bowie, jr., secretary, and Leo L. Graeves, treasurer. The association plans to affiliate with the Montgomery County Civic Federation.

The Montgomery County Board of Education will meet today at Rockville to discuss the school improvement situation. In view of the strict economy order of the county fathers, the schools are faced with the possibility of having to cut their improvement program to forego other educational features. The board will discuss possible ways of caring for the situation.

Plans for the annual "He-Night," which is to be held February 21 at the Congressional Airport on the Rockville pike at Halpine, were discussed at a meeting of the Rockville Volunteer Fire Department last night in the fire hall.

Twenty-four members of the department were detailed into teams to traverse the principal roads of Montgomery County today and post advertising stickers. Arrangements were made to have a crew of carpenters at the airport Sunday morning to work on the necessary framework.

The department adopted the slogan, "Wild and Rough," for the affair, which has achieved wide importance in the sporting life of Washington and Montgomery County. This will be the tenth annual "He-Night."

Thirty-six rounds of boxing, wrestling and 10 of the wildest wild women in captivity are promised by the committee in charge. The proceeds are to be used as usual, in paying off the debt on the firehouse. Rockville's $60,000 fire-fighting equipment now has only an indebtedness of $10,000, and it is hoped to clear this amount in 1931.

Special to the Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 28.—Crazed by poverty caused by the prolonged drought, Marsh Ellison, 35, a farmer of Baldwin, Gilmer County, father of ten children, drank a bottle of slow acting poison last night at a soda fountain at Weston.

Late today he was in a critical condition in the city hospital at Weston.

Lights at Natural Bridge Are to Be Set With Music

Tests Reveal Symphonic Arrangement Proves Impressive at Night When Gorge Is Illuminated by Modern Electrical Equipment.

Natural Bridge, Va., Jan. 28 (A.P.). Resounding musical notes will greet visitors to the Natural Bridge of Virginia soon, Oliver J. Sands, vice president of Natural Bridge Incorporated, announced today.

Night lighting at the bridge will be set to symphonic music which has been written especially for use at the bridge. The tones will echo through the gorge.

In connection with the musical project Mr. Sands said, "Perhaps our finest single undertaking in the way of improvements is the contemplated setting of our night lighting to symphonic music, which will be specially written for us by a New York Composer.

"The equipment to be used in this production will be of the most modern type installed by the Western Electric and Graybar Cos. These firms have recently finished a similar installation of tremendous magnitude at Atlantic City.

"Musical tests already made have demonstrated the bridge and gorge to be beautifully responsive to harmony and all those who have heard our experimental effort have been charmed by the effect. We believe this undertaking will attract nationwide attention.

The music is among many projects of an improvement program planned for the Natural Bridge this year. Approximately $33,000 has been spent on hotel improvements, and other changes are being made in the vicinity of the place, as well as on the highways leading to the bridge.

MAN RUNS AMUCK, FRIGHTENING GIRLS

Annapolis Postmaster Visited by Strangely Acting Eastport Resident.

HELD FOR INVESTIGATION

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Jan. 28.—A quartet of girls barely missed being kissed, a deputy sheriff barely avoided losing a $10 bill and Postmaster Joseph M. Armstrong was greatly alarmed here today, when a man giving his name as Vincent G. Gauthier, 25, of Eastport, ran amuck.

Gauthier was arrested by Deputy Sheriffs Tom Prout and George Harrison while the man had Postmaster Armstrong on needles and pins. He is held in jail for investigation by Sheriff R. Glenn Prout.

Trouble enshrouded Gauthier. Deputy Harrison reports that he was paying a bill in Main street when Gauthier took a $10 bill out of his hand and claimed it belonged to him. Harrison asserted himself, but Gauthier was not arrested then.

Later Gauthier accosted four girls in St. Annes Circle, according to James Wesley Gardner, of Mayo. He said he tried to hug two of the girls. From that escape, Postmaster Armstrong says that Gauthier found his way to his private office.

"He told me he had a criminal record, and then poking his hands in his pocket informed me that he was quick with a gat. I did some quick thinking, and finally offered him a job as a truck driver. Upon the pretense, I was summoning someone to talk the job over further with him. I left and asked Superintendent of the Mails Arthur D. Moss to telephone for the sheriff," Mr. Armstrong said.

$5,000 in Two Drugs Found, Suspects Held

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 28.—Eugene Maddox and A. O. Jones, of Roanoke, found in possession of more than $5,000 worth of morphine and heroin here this week and since taken to Roanoke for Federal Court trial, are reported by prisoners in the city jail to have thrown away almost as much of the drug as had been seized.

Several prisoners who were in a cellroom with Maddox and Jones said they threw "some white powders" out of a window into the jail yard and that the size of the packages was about as large as those seized by the police, who estimate the men had $10,000 worth of the drugs. They were on their way from New York when caught here operating an automobile having 1930 license plates. In a cell at City Hall the police last night found a rubber finger stall filled with heroin.

WHIPPING DOUBTED TO STOP THIEVERY

Proposal Discussed in Kent County as Stealing of Poultry Grows.

EFFECTIVE IN DELAWARE

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., Jan. 28.—Despite the fact that the Kent County Farm Bureau is said to be preparing to sponsor a bill in the present Maryland General Assembly to permit the use of the whipping post in this county as a punishment for thieves who are robbing hen roosts and taking valuable fowl from poultry farms in this vicinity, doubt is cast by some local officials on the prospect of being able to enforce such a law.

Though there is already a law on the statute books permitting the use of the post for wife beaters, in the discretion of the sheriff of the county, the law has not been invoked for many years, though within the last few years Magistrate Olin B. Stafford sentenced a man to the post for such an offense, but the sentence was never carried out.

The same justice of the peace also within the last year sentenced convicts to work on the county roads, but the sentence was never executed. Two years ago Delegate Ellsworth Bowers introduced a bill, which was passed in the Legislature, providing for such a penalty instead of the present method of keeping prisoners in the county lockup for months.

Sentiment, however, is growing for the use of the whipping post, such as is proving effective in Delaware, as a last resort in dealing with the wave of thievery which is sweeping over this and other Eastern Shore counties this winter, including housebreaking, robberies of stores and the wholesale taking of fowl from county farms. Mere jail sentences, according to officials, are proving ineffective. Already the local jail is filled to capacity with prisoners convicted or awaiting trial on similar charges.

Tricounty Christian Endeavor Union Meets

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 28.—More than 200 members from Frederick, Montgomery and Washington Counties attended an intercity banquet and meeting of the Christian Endeavor Union in Centennial Memorial United Brethren Church last night. Gordon F. Palmer, Lewistown, presided, and addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. James H. Straughn, Westminster; Harry E. Silverwood, Baltimore; F. C. Dixon, Miss Ethel Rohrer and Paul Smith.

Announcement was made that the annual State convention will be held in Hagerstown October 8, 9, 10 and 11.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE, WICKERSHAM STYLE.

WHEN (if ever) in the course of human events* it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, a decent respect to the opinion of mankind requires that they should declare the courses which impel them to this separation.

* Except Tuesdays and Fridays.
 July to Labor Day only.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, or what have you?—

1. That all men (subject to supplementary lists) are created equal and we are opposed to the creation of unequal men unless so specified in writing and duly recorded by a notary public whose commission expires June 6.

2. That they are (unless the chair hears an objection) endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights. (See Footnote a),

3. That among these Rights (or Warrants) are Life (see Footnote b), Liberty (see Footnote c) and the pursuit of Happiness (see Footnote d).

4. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed (Messrs. Button Gwinnett, Samuel Adams and Benjamin Franklin dissenting).

5. That whenever any form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People, unless hereinafter specified to the contrary, to alter or to abolish it. (Messrs. Jefferson, Harrison, Chase, Lee and Braxton dissenting.)

6. That it is the Right of the People to institute a new Government, laying its foundations on such principles as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. (Messrs. Hancock, Penn and Sherman present, but not voting.)

7. That it is the people's right to throw off such Government and to provide new guards for their future security. (Your commission is opposed to new guards for future security except during leap year.)

WE therefore do in the name and by the authority of the Colonies declare: That we are opposed to anything being done about the matter until the King of England has been given a further trial.

An appended report will show 34 of the 56 signers disagreeing with the conclusions of this declaration.

MAKING FRIENDS IN THE OLD DAYS.

Hi: In the late sixties in Nevada there used to be a gambler named Joe Potter. One day, when he was on the Carson & Glennbrook stage, going up to Glennbrook, Calif., on Lake Tahoe, the stage stopped at a roadhouse kept by a friend of Joe's, who said:

"Joe, I've been drinking too much. Would like to go to the Hot Springs and get boiled out. Can't you run the place a few days?

Joe agreed. After about two weeks the proprietor returned.

"Well, Joe, how is business?" he asked. Joe replied, "Fine!" "How is the whisky?" asked the proprietor. "All gone," said Joe. "How are the cigars?" he asked. "All gone," said Joe.

"How much money did you take in?" asked the boss.

"I didn't take in any money, but I made you a host of friends," replied Potter. B. F. B.

MAN HELD IN BAIL AS CHICKEN THIEF

Prince Georges Henhouse Robbed of 10 Birds Valued at $10.

RECKLESS DRIVER JAILED

James Allan got three months in the Maryland House of Correction yesterday on being found guilty of assault on Thomas Washington. He had fired shot at a man with a shotgun, it was testified in the Hyattsville Police Court. He also was fined $10 for disorderly conduct at Washington's house.

Arthur White was held in $1,000 bail for the grand jury on a charge of stealing ten chickens valued at $10 from the henhouse of Howard Severe.

Fined $12 for reckless driving and having a chauffeur's expired license, William Presser was committed to jail in default. He was fined $10 for reckless driving and $2 on the other charge. He pleaded guilty. Louis V. Forsythe was fined $5 for being drunk and disorderly at Berwyn.

Charges of possession against Vernon Eaton were dismissed. Eaton, a young employe of the Government Printing Office, was arrested last week because policemen had found 40 gallons of wine in a vacant house next to Eaton's home on Edmonston road.

For speeding in a populous area, Norman E. Schwartz and James I. Fowler were fined $2 each. William Frye was fined $3 for being drunk and disorderly.

Theodore Campbell, of Waldorf, Md., was arrested by State Policemen W. A. Rogers on a charge of failing to report a serious accident. Campbell was the driver of a car that ran off the road and caused the death of John A. Gross, also of Waldorf.

Gross's back was broken, but he lived two days. It is said Campbell's car ran off an embankment near T. B. Monday night and that Gross was taken to the Casualty Hospital.

Enoch R. Hawkins, of Washington, filed suit in Prince Georges County Circuit Court for absolute divorce from Lena Hawkins, of Brentwood. Through his attorney, Kenneth Lyddane, of Rockville, the complainant says they were wed in 1914 and that the wife deserted him in 1921. They have one child, Sylvia, 16, whose custody he demands.

A decree giving Margaret M. Wright absolute divorce from James A. Wright was signed. Through her attorney, John S. White, the woman said the man had deserted her.

Assessment against property owners for the new sidewalk on Rhode Island avenue, Hyattsville, was passed last night; the job has not been formally accepted by the town. There is still some work to be done on the project, and the contractor has agreed to do this. The total cost will be about $2,200.

A special committee on changing the town road law will meet Saturday night with Waldo Burnside, corporation counsel, to draft a bill providing for various changes in the methods of building and financing streets. The bill will be offered at this session of the legislature.

The committee comprises Dr. F. P. Brookens, fourth ward, chairman; A. C. Moore, third ward, and Thomas E. Hume, second ward.

Assessors who will make the regular spring appraisal of new property in the town will not be appointed until the next regular meeting of the council, February 9.

William S. Freeman has been elected new chief of the Mount Rainier unit of the county fire rescue squad, and George R. Lee is the new sergeant. R. L. Flynn was chosen secretary, and B. Beall, treasurer.

Two new committees were appointed by the Mount Rainier company. One, to consider purchase of a radio, is composed of Richard Moore, Lee and Beall. The other, to be known as the archives committee, will care for the records of the company. It is composed of Francis Crown, H. Wilson, sr., A. J. Bates, A. Gill and M. C. Harman.

The department voted to donate $25 to the county rescue squad work, and to lend the Oxon Hill volunteer fire department a small truck which is not being used by the Mount Rainier department.

Flu Reports Held False at Hospital

15 U. S. Medical Men Are Transferred From West to Portsmouth.

Norfolk, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Authorities at the United States Naval Hospital at Portsmouth said tonight that a detachment of fifteen Hospital Corps men had been ordered here from Mare Island Station, Calif., to fill vacancies in the local staff.

They denied a report from Vallejo, Calif., that there was an influenza epidemic here, stating there were ten cases of influenza and ten cases of catarrhal fever, a kindred disease, in the hospital. They said the number was not excessive for this season of the year.

There have been a number of cases of mild influenza among the civilian population here.
